THE SPANISH GRAMMAR

PREFACE

THERE are already extant several excellent grammars for the study of Spanish, but most of them present the subject with such a mass of details that it was thought there was room for a book which should give, in clear and concise outlines, the essential features of the language. Considering the small amount of time devoted to the modern languages in our educational institutions, it is not possible for the student to do more than master the main facts of any language. The minuter details can be acquired only after long years of patient study and observation, and to present them in a book intended for beginners must prove a discouraging and confusing obstacle rather than an aid.

Much objection has been latterly brought against treating the pronunciation of foreign languages from the standpoint of English analogies, but the objectors so far have produced no system sufficiently simple and practical to take the place of such treatment. Of course, nothing will prove a substitute for the living teacher; but even with such aid, the learner must be taught how to make the sounds which differ from those of his native language, and this, in most cases, can only be done by approximation to and comparison with sounds already known. The present writer has found no sufficient reason for attempting any other mode of treatment, and he believes that, by following the directions given, a fairly good Spanish pronunciation will be acquired.

The following method of using this book is suggested:

After a few days spent on the pronunciation, the Spanish exercises being used for practice in reading, the student may be set to work on the lessons assigned at the head of the exercises, page 248. Where it is desired to get to reading connected texts as soon as possible, the translation of the English exercises may be omitted until the Spanish exercises have been completed. After a careful study of these, a short time may be spent on the remaining tenses of the auxiliary and regular verbs; then the student may pass on to the Spanish reading matter, page 292, and at the same time begin the writing of the English exercises.

If a conversational exercise is desired, the teacher may address to the student a question on each of the sentences of the Spanish exercises. For instance, on the first sentence he might ask: ¿En cuánto tiempo gira la tierra alrededor del sol? The student would answer: La tierra gira alrededor del sol en un año. And so for the rest. When the SPANISH READINGS are begun, the same exercise might be continued.

In the syntax only such a general outline as the student will have time to master has been attempted. Anything more than this would prove an incumbrance and beyond the scope of this grammar. The prepositions a, en, para, and por, having such a variety of uses, no better plan of treatment could be devised than to give copious examples. A thorough study of these will prove of more utility than any amount of reasoning about them.

In recent years there has been a disposition in some quarters to condemn exercises based on detached sentences, and a demand for connected thought. The present author has never been in sympathy with this movement, chiefly because thought that has to be guided in its expression by the exigencies of the rules of syntax can not but be stilted, and hence no more interesting than detached sentences, and not nearly so useful for syntactical illustrations. While the exercises of this book are mostly of the latter kind, an effort has been made to render the sentences practical and interesting by confining them to common, every-day subjects. It is hoped they will be found an improvement on the usual grammatical exercises.

It is proper to offer some justification for inserting Spanish composition of my own rather than selections from Spanish authors. My reason for this was twofold. First, it seemed desirable to introduce some easy dialogue; but most Spanish dialogue is too difficult for beginners on account of its idiomatic character. Secondly and chiefly, I wished to give a general review of the grammatical principles previously treated, and nothing could be found in a short space suitable for the purpose.

In the making of a grammar, where he has had so many predecessors, an author can lay but little claim to originality, particularly in the accidence, to which necessarily belong features common to all grammars. The most that he can do is to present in his own way such matter as will best contribute to his aims. The sources, both European and American, from which valuable aid has been received, are so numerous that only a general acknowledgment can here be made. At the same time I would say that I have not adopted anything from another without fully substantiating it by my own researches.

The ESCENAS SOCIALES contains one or two passages where I have paraphrased some thoughts not my own. Some of the pleasantries will also be recognized as old friends; but they are classical in a way, and it is hoped they will be revitalized by their new setting and dress.

The selections bearing no signature have in most cases been gathered from newspapers. Experience proves that, in the absence of opportunity for social intercourse with the natives, there is no better way of acquiring a practical knowledge of a language than the constant reading of the daily press; and even with such opportunity, it can not be too highly recommended for its helpfulness.

To Mr. Esteban Banchs, a Spanish gentleman of Baltimore, I am indebted for a revision of the Spanish portions of the manuscript. It is believed that the care with which he did the work will be a sufficient guarantee that he missed nothing of importance that needed correction.

Thanks are likewise due to Messrs. Ceballos & Co. of New York for the business letters and forms.

THE SPANISH ALPHABET

VOWELS

1. Spanish vowels are uttered as clear simple sounds and not, as in English, with a vanish. It is especially difficult to avoid this in final vowels; hence, the greatest care must be taken to stop the vowel sound without changing, in the slightest degree, the position of the vocal organs. Diphthongs and triphthongs are pronounced in one uninterrupted impulse of the voice, each vowel being distinctly heard.

The vowel bearing the syllabic accent in each word is indicated by heavy type.

a. Strong { a varies between a in ah and a in am: padre, acta.
 { e varies between a in late and e in where: dedo, jefe.
 { o varies between o in go and o in loft: amō, árbol.

Weak { i (y) as i in fatigue: mí, rey.
 { u as u in rule: mulo.

b. DIPHTHONGS (of Strong and Weak Vowels) ai, ay as in baile, ay.

ia as in diario.

au as in aula.

ua as in cuando, guarda.

ei, ey as in veinte, ley.

ie as in miel.

eu as in deuda.

ue as in luego.

oi, oy as in oigo, hoy.

io as in dios.

ou as in bou.

uo as in cuota.

SPANISH GRAMMAR

Note that in diphthongs formed of a strong plus a weak vowel, or of a weak plus a strong, the chief stress is on the strong vowel. Where this is not true, the accent is marked: traigo, but traído.

Also that strong vowels in contact make separate syllables, but only when one of them bears the stress: poeta, but línea.

c. DIPHTHONGS (of two Weak Vowels) iu as in diurno ui, uy as in ruin, muy.

Note that in diphthongs of two weak vowels the last is stressed, unless the first bears the written accent: buitre, but fluído, where the diphthong is dissolved by the accent.

Also that in all unaccented final diphthongs neither vowel has any decided stress: lirio, antiguo.

d. TRIPHTHONGS (of a Weak plus a Strong plus a Weak Vowel)

The stress is on the strong vowel.

iai as in estudiáis. uai, uay as in amortiguáis, guay.
iei as in pronunciéis. uei, uey as in desagüéis, buey.

CONSONANTS

2. In Spanish nearly all consonants are pronounced much more indistinctly than in English. So much is this the case that many careless speakers allow them to be assimilated or absorbed by contiguous sounds. They are best studied and classified from their relation to the vocal organs.

a. LABIALS (Lip Sounds)

v as in vivo. p as in pavo.
f as in faena. m as in mamá.
b as in bebo. w as in Wéber, WíndSOR.

NOTE. — Bring the lips lightly together in the middle, but keep them apart in the corners of the mouth. Then pronounce the corresponding English letters. V and f are the weakest and are made by the merest contact of the lips; b, p, and m require a little more pressure. W occurs only in foreign proper names. In those coming from German, w is sounded as v, while in English names it is like u: Wéber = Véber; Wíndson = Uíndson.

b. DENTO-LINGUALS (Tooth-Tongue Sounds)

- c before e and i } as th in thin { cebo, ciencia.
- z in all positions } zapa, baza.
- ch as ch in church: muchacho.
- d as d in did, but with the vanish of th in the: dedo.
- l as l in let: lecho, alma.
- ll as lli in filial: bello, llamo.
- n as n in bone: uno, mente.
- n before hard g and c as n in ring: tengo, blanco.
- ñ (n with the tilde) as ni in union: niño.
- t as t in ten: todo, entonces.

Note that these Spanish sounds are produced by placing the tip of the tongue against the lower edge of the upper front teeth, while the position of the tongue in English is just where the gums join the upper teeth.*

c. ASPIRATES

- g before e and i } as h in hat { agente, gime.
- j in all positions } bajo, junto.

NOTE.—Set the vocal organs for a in hat; then expel the breath lightly as if clearing the throat. It is much more strongly aspirated than our English h.

h is silent in all positions: ahora, hablar.

d. GUTTURALS (Throat Sounds)

- c { before a, o, u, and }
- { before a consonant } as c in cat { cabo, codo, cuando, acción.
- qu before e, i } quedo, aquí, kiosco.
- k in all positions }

* Except, however, n before hard g and c, which is a tongue-palate sound.

g { before a, o, u, and } { before a consonant } as g in go { gato,gota,guapo,grito. } gu before e, i { sigue,guía. }

NOTE.—When the u of gue and gui is pronounced, it receives the diaeresis : antigüedad, lingüística.

e. LIQUIDS (trills)

- | | |
|---|--|
| r is slightly trilled : | pero, leer. |
| r initial or after l, n, s is strongly trilled : | rana, rosa, malrotar,
honra, israelita. |
| rr strongly trilled : | perro, tierra. |

NOTE.—The finals ar, er, ir, or, ur are pronounced with a short, clear trill : fiar, comer, vivir, olor, tahur. Observe also that the Spanish r is made with the tongue vibrating against the gums just back of the upper teeth, never in the throat.

f. s is always s in base : casa, sastre.

x is a double consonant and is generally equivalent to ks, k very slightly pronounced : examen.

y is a consonant only when initial or between two vowels and is y in yes : yeso, cayó.

3. Dialectic and other peculiarities. In some parts of Spain and generally in Spanish America certain consonants are interchanged with others and certain others are suppressed. This is not uncommon even with well-educated people.

Vowels coming into contact with each other in the same sentence are merged into a single sound: {Qué está haciendo? What is he doing? De esta manera, in this way; Cómo está usted? How are you? This is done by all classes, and the learner should adopt it at once.

4. As to the consonants:

b interchanges with v, and vice versa, as bibo and bivo for vivo, vevo and bevo for bebo.

c (before e and i) is pronounced as s: coser for cocer.

c and p before t are assimilated: perfetto for perfecto, ratto for rapto (both t's being sounded).

d final and between two vowels is absorbed: verdá for verdad, naa for nada, vivío for vivido, dao for dado.

g is absorbed before u: aua for agua.

n final is pronounced as though followed by g: Don(g) Juan(g).

ll as y (consonant): cabayo for caballo, and as English j: llorar.

x loses its k-element, becoming s: espresar for expresar.

s is dropped, especially when final and before consonants: pue for pues. ¿Cómo etá uté? for ¿Cómo está usted? La mima cosas for las mismas cosas.

y is pronounced as English j: yo, yeso.

z is substituted for s, and vice versa: ¿Cómo eztá ozté? for ¿Cómo está usted? = How are you? Casar for cazar, to hunt.

NOTE.—The above are some of the more common peculiarities, which are frequently heard even on the lips of fairly well-educated people, and the student who expects to talk with native Spaniards should learn them in order to save himself much perplexity.

SYLLABICATION

5. The question of syllabication is very important, as on it depends a good pronunciation. A single consonant and the letters ch, ll, and rr go with the following vowel: moti-vo, mu-cha-cho, ba-ta-lla, ba-rrro.

a. Two or more consonants between vowels are separable: al-ma, cons-tan-te; but b, c, d, f, g, p, followed by l or r, combine with the following vowel: li-bró, pu-drir, i-gle-sia. T and r combine, but t and l are separated: a-troz, a-trás; but at-leta, At-lante.

b. Compound vowels may not be separated : gue-no, tie-ne; but ba-úl.

c. The prefixes des, ab, sub are excepted from the above rules, when they are felt as prefixes : des-acordar, ab-rogar, sub-arriendo; but su-bir, a-bundar.

ACCENTUATION

6. In words of two or more syllables, one syllable is enunciated with greater emphasis than the others. This is called the tonic or syllabic accent, and the pause on this syllable is longer and more decided than in English. It is hard to acquire, and persistent practice is very necessary.

7. Words ending in y or a consonant, except s or n, have the stress on the ultima or final syllable : animal, sencillez, Echegaray.

8. Words ending in a vowel or in n or s are accented on the penult or syllable before the last: padre, joven, lunes.

9. All words not falling under these two rules must bear the written accent on the stressed syllable: rincón, jóvenes, alférez, además.

a. Note that when the terminations ia, io, ie, ua, ue, uo form separate syllables, the accent must be marked: astronomía, navío, envíe, continúa, continúe, continúo; but astucia, serio, serie, antigua, pingüe, exiguo. Also that all interrogative and many other words bear the written accent to distinguish them graphically from others of the same form but different meaning, while some again have it for no particular reason: cómo (how?), como (as), tú (thou), tu (thy), and é (and), á (to).

b. Note further that all syllables preceding and following the tonic syllable are evenly pronounced, there being scarcely any secondary accent in Spanish: tipográfico, jurisdicción. From this must be excepted many compounds whose component parts are felt to be separate words: jurisconsulto, sobremanera, salvaguardia. Here belong all adverbs compounded of an adjective and the noun mente (manner): solamente, medianamente. But even in this case, as in all others, great care must be taken not to slight the unaccented syllables. These must be distinctly and evenly uttered. Above all, don't drawl the final vowels, making them into diphthongs like: āhū, ey-ū, ē-ū, ō-ōo-ū, ōō-ū.

PUNCTUATION AND CAPITALS

10. Spanish punctuation varies but slightly from the English. The only differences that need be noted here are that the points ! and ? are placed respectively at the beginning (inverted ! ; ?) as well as at the end of exclamatory and interrogative sentences, and that where we use a dash (—) to indicate an interrupted sentence, Spaniards use suspension points (. . .).

a. In the use of initial letters, the chief unlikeness is that the pronoun I (yo), except when beginning a sentence, the names of months and days, proper adjectives, both as adjectives (la lengua española, the Spanish language) and as nouns (los españoles, the Spaniards), are written with small initials. Uniformity in this respect is not, however, always observed.

II

THE ARTICLE AND THE NOUN

11. The definite article has three forms in the singular and two in the plural:—

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
Masculine,	el,	los.
Feminine,	la,	las.
Neuter,	lo,	(wanting).

a. When the prepositions de and á are used before el, the two are contracted into one word: del (of the), al (to the). This contraction does not, however, take place before a title with the article: El autor de El Barómetro, the author of (the play called) The Barometer; Una carta á El Avisador, A letter to The Advertiser (newspaper).

b. Before feminine singular nouns of two or more syllables beginning with tonic a or ha, el takes the place of la for euphony: el ave, the bird; el haba, the bean. But not in the case of adjectives or proper names: la alta torre, the high tower; la Ángela, la Alvarez.

12. Indefinite article.

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
Masculine,	un(o) } a, an.	unos } some, a few,
Feminine,	una } a, an.	unas } several.

a. At the present day the usage has become pretty well established to use un before the nouns of the above category (11 b). Hence: un águila, an eagle; un hacha, an ax. But before an adjective, neither the masculine nor the feminine is abbreviated : un libro, a book; uno bueno, a good one; un ave, a bird; una buena, a good one.

DECLENSION

13. Nouns have no case endings ; they vary only to indicate the plural. Strictly speaking, therefore, they can not be said to be declined ; but it is found convenient to make a declension by means of prepositions.

SINGULAR

PLURAL

Nom. el hombre, the man.

los hombres, the men.

Gen. del hombre, of the man, de los hombres, of the men, the the man's. men's.

Dat. al hombre, to the man. á los hombres, to the men.

Acc. el or al hombre, the man. los or á los hombres, the men.

a. The declensions with the other articles, definite and indefinite, are made in the same way, save that there are no contractions.

Note. — The form of the accusative with á is, in general, used when a noun, representing a person or other animal, is the object of a transitive verb. In other cases the preposition is usually omitted : —

El maestro castiga al discípulo, The teacher punishes the pupil.

El muchacho pega á los perros, The boy beats the dogs.

Leo el libro, la carta, I read the book, the letter.

NUMBER

14. Nouns ending in an unaccented vowel (except y), or in é, ó, ú, and papá, mamá, sofá, take s in the plural : —

SINGULAR

la casa, the house.

los pies, the feet.

el corsé, the corset.	los corsés, the corsets.
el rondó, the rondeau.	los rondós, the rondeaux.
la tribu, the tribe.	las tribus, the tribes.
el tisú, the tissue.	los tisús, the tissues.

NOTE.—But some authors add es to nouns in ó or ú: rondoes, tisúes. This is the teaching of the Spanish Academy.

15. Nouns terminating in y, in any consonant, or in i or í (except the three above named) and all the letters of the alphabet, add es:—

SINGULAR	PLURAL
el rey, the king.	los reyes, the kings.
el rincón, the corner.	los rincones, the corners.
la flor, the flower.	las flores, the flowers.
el rubí, the ruby.	los rubíes, the rubies.
el bajá, the pacha.	los bajas, the pachas.
la o, the o.	las oes, the o's.
la be, the b.	las bees, the b's.

a. Z final becomes c before the plural ending es: El pez, the fish, los peces, the fish(es); la cruz, the cross, las cruces, the crosses.

b. The unaccented finals -is, -es, and proper names in ez, es, and és, and most other proper names, have the same form in the plural:—

la crisis, the crisis.	las crisis, the crises.
la tesis, the thesis.	las tesis, the theses.
el lunes, Monday.	los lunes, Mondays.

And so: Los Sánchez, los González, los Cervantes, los Valdés, los Robespierre, los Danton, los Marat.

NOTE.—Proper names, when used with the force of common nouns, may take the plural: los Castelares, i.e. the great orators like Castelar.

- c. Lord and milord lose d in the plural: lores, milores.
- d. The tonic accent of carácter and régimen is shifted to the following syllable: caracteres, regímenes.
- e. When any noun, not accented on the last syllable, receives es, the tonic vowel must be marked in the plural. On the other hand, a noun having the written accent on its final vowel rejects the accent in the plural, unless this vowel is weak (i, u) :—

el joven, the young man.	los jóvenes, the young men.
la nación, the nation.	las naciones, the nations.
el bajá, the pacha.	los bajas, the pachas.
el jabalí, the wild boar.	los jabalíes, the wild boars.

16. Compound nouns are pluralized in accordance with the above rules, the last part of the compound generally taking the plural ending:— .

la salvaguardia, the safeguard.	las salvaguardias, the safeguards.
el cortaplumas, the penknife.	los cortaplumas, the penknives.
el ferrocarril, the railroad.	los ferrocarriles, the railroads.

17. Finally, certain nouns are used only in the plural:—

los calzoncillos, the drawers.	los víveres, the provisions.
las nupcias, the nuptials.	las enaguas, the upper skirt.

a. Here should be noted also certain masculine nouns which, in addition to their regular plural meaning, frequently indicate both sexes of pairs naturally associated ; as, los padres, the fathers, or the father and mother, the parents. And so :—

los reyes, the king and queen.	amos, master and mistress.
los tíos, the uncle and aunt.	esposos, husband and wife.
los parientes, the kinsmen (both sexes).	duques, duke and duchess.
los hermanos, the brothers and sisters.	hijos, sons and daughters.
	abuelos, grand parents, ancestors.

GENDER

18. Natural gender. — Most nouns indicating living beings are masculine or feminine according to sex:—

el hombre, the man.	la mujer, the woman. el padre, the father.	la madre, the mother.
el hijo, the son.	la hija, the daughter.
el tío, the uncle.	la tí, the aunt.
el caballo, the horse.	la yegua, the mare.
el toro, the bull.	la vaca, the cow.
el gallo, the cock.	la gallina, the hen.

NOTE.—It is well to learn all nouns of this kind in pairs, as they are more easily remembered thus.

19. Grammatical gender. — All nouns having no natural gender are, by a kind of grammatical fiction, treated as either masculine or feminine. The gender of such nouns can only be learned by observation. The best aid to this is to attach the proper article to each noun when learned. The student should fix in his mind the general rule that o is a masculine and a a feminine termination. Hence:—

a. Excepting la mano, hand, la nao, ship, la seo, cathedral church, nouns in o final are masculine:—

el vino, wine.	siglo, century.	deseo, desire. el vaso, glass (vessel).	año, year.	fuego, fire.
el vicio, vice.	tiempo, time.	patio, yard, court.
el vidrio, glass.	verano, summer.	espacio, space.
el estado, state.	viento, wind.	encanto, charm.

b. A large majority of nouns ending in a are feminine. Observe particularly the terminal part, in heavy type, as being characteristically feminine:—

la pereza, laziness.	afronta, affront.	gracia, grace.
la fortuna, fortune.	comida, dinner.	doctrina, doctrine.

la abeja, bee.	llanura, evenness.	disputa, dispute.
la lechuga, lettuce.	línea, line.	empresa, undertaking.
la arrogancia, arrogance.	alegría, joy.	entrada, entrance.
la diferencia, difference.	derrota, course.	escalera, stairs.
la alianza, alliance.	descarga, discharge.	escena, scene.
la prensa, press.	fábula, fable.	estufa, stove.
la envidia, envy.	fatiga, fatigue.	excusa, excuse.
la divisa, device.	entrega, delivery.	flotilla, flotilla.

NOTE.—The exceptions under this heading are chiefly words having the final syllable ma :—

el tema, thente.	problema, problem.	idioma, language. el drama, drama.	sistema, system.	dilema, dilemma.
el poema, poem.	clima, climate.	enigma, enigma.

Exceptions : la diadema, diadem; la rima, rime.

c. Many nouns ending in consonants are masculine; but the exceptions are too numerous to make a rule of any practical value. All phrases and parts of speech used as nouns, and generally the names of ships, are masculine : el sí, the consent (yes); el por qué, the why; los vivas, the hurrahs; el comer, the eating; El Reina Regente, El Vizcaya, El Oquendo, El Plutón.

d. Feminine are the letters of the alphabet and all nouns ending in ión, tad, dad, tud, umbre, ie, and abstract nouns in ez :—

la pasión, passion.	mitad, half.	virtud, virtue.
la nación, nation.	libertad, liberty.	esclavitud, slavery.
la creación, creation.	edad, age.	serie, series.
la estación, season.	bondad, goodness.	especie, species.
la muchedumbre, crowd.	vejez, old age.	sencillez, simplicity.

FORMATION OF FEMININE NOUNS

20. The feminine of nouns denoting living beings is expressed either by changing the ending of the masculine, by a different word, or by using macho, male, or hembra, female.

a. The ending o becomes a :—

el abuelo, the grandfather.
 el hijo, the son.
 el hermano, the brother.
 el tío, the uncle.
 el primo, the cousin.
 el sobrino, the nephew.

 la tía, the aunt.
 la viuda, the widow.

b. Most nouns ending in a consonant add a :—

el patrón, the patron.
 el león, the lion.
 el traidor, the traitor.
 el lector, the reader.
 el marqués, the marquis.
 el inglés, the Englishman.
 el señor, the gentleman.
 el capitán, the captain.
 el dios, the god.

la patrona, the patroness.
 la traidora, the traitress.
 la lectora, the reader (fem.).
 la marquesa, the marchioness.
 la diosa, the goddess.

c. The same form for both genders :—

el, la compatriota, the compatriot. el, la mártir, the martyr.
 el ángel, the angel (11, b). el, la reo, the criminal.
 el, la homicida, the homicide. el, la testigo, the witness.

d. The following are some of the many that can not be arranged under any regular rule :—

el actor, the actor.
 el conde, the count.
 el poeta, the poet.
 el sastre, the tailor.
 el rey, the king.
 el héroe, the hero.
 el príncipe, the prince.
 el pariente, the relative.

 la condesa, the countess.
 la poetisa, the poetess.
 la sastra, tailoress, or tailor's wife.
 la princesa, the princess.
 la parienta, the relative (fem.).

e. The feminine is expressed by a different word :—

el hombre, the man.	la mujer, the woman.
el toro, the bull.	la vaca, the cow.
el caballo, the horse.	la yegua, the mare.

f. Lastly the names of most insects and small animals have but one form for both genders :—

el águila, the eagle.	la hormiga, the ant. el ratón, the mouse.	la mosca, the fly.
el gorrión, the sparrow.	la pulga, the flea.
el ruiseñor, the nightingale.	la trucha, the trout.
la codorniz, the quail.	la perdiz, the partridge.

NOTE.—When it is necessary to distinguish sex in these words, macho or hembra is used ; i.e. la hembra del gorrión or el gorrión hembra, the hen sparrow.

QUALIFYING SUFFIXES

21. Spanish is very rich in qualifying suffixes. They abound in satirical, humorous, popular, domestic, and familiar language and are joined to nouns, adjectives, participles, adverbs, and even sometimes to gerunds, to express various shades of meaning which are usually rendered in English by adjectives and adverbs. It is very difficult for an English-speaking person to employ them freely without making ludicrous mistakes, and he should avoid them whenever he is not perfectly sure that he is on safe ground. This he can always do by the use of qualifying words.

The feminines are made in the same way as for other nouns.

AUGMENTATIVES

22. Óñ and etón are simply augmentative :—

hombre, man.	hombrón, big man. mujer, woman.	mujerona, big woman.
mozo, lad.	mocetón, big fellow.

a. Azo and ada express largeness with the concomitant idea of ungainliness; but more commonly these endings mean a blow or thrust with, or the contents of the thing implied in the noun to which they are attached :—

librazo, large ungainly book, or blow with a book.

bocaza, large, wide mouth; bocada, mouthful.

cucharazo, blow with a spoon; cucharada, spoonful.

asnazo, big jackass; big brutal fellow.

fusilazo, blow with a gun, gunshot, report of a gun.

puñalada, thrust with a dagger; sudden shock of pain.

cañonazo, large cannon, shot, report of a cannon:

b. Acho, icho, ote give an idea of ridicule, disdain, depreciation :—

populacho, the rabble; vinacho, bad wine.

animalucho, ugly, hideous animal, vile beast.

casucha, shanty, hut; poor old house.

amigote, old cranky friend; librote, bad old book.

c. Arrón, ejón, erón, achón, gón, astro are augmentative, pejorative, deprecative :—

nubarrón, great black cloud.

ventarrón, violent wind storm.

callejón, alley, side street; pedrejón, large loose stone.

caserón, large house in a bad condition.

poblachón, large town with houses huddled together.

narigón, large long nose; raigón, stump, snag.

politicastro, unscrupulous wire puller; peanut politician.

DIMINUTIVES AND CARITATIVES

23. The forms of these are much more numerous than those of the augmentatives and are applied both to common and proper nouns. The idea of smallness is not always present.

a. Ito, cito, ecito express smallness, affection, commiseration, good-natured irony, etc. :—

hijito , (dear) little son.	hijita , (dear) little daughter.
Juanito, Johnnie.	Juanita, Jennie.
pobrecito, poor fellow.	mujercita, (dear) little woman.
iovencito, stripling.	florerita, (pretty) little flower.
primito, little cousin (m.).	primita, little cousin (f.).

b. Ico, cico, ecico have about the same meaning as the above (a), but their use is local and dialectic rather than general :—

perrico, little dog.	ovecico, small egg.
iovencico, youngster.	avecica (f.), little bird.
Juanico, Jack, Johnnie.	manecica (f.), little hand.

c. Illo, cillo, ecillo, in addition to diminutiveness, frequently add a waggish, arch, pejorative, or commiserative turn to the word :—

Luisillo, (arch) little Lou.	loquilla, silly little girl.
amorcillo, flirtation.	mujercilla, dawdling woman.
viejecillo, poor old man.	manecilla, small hand, index.

d. Uelo, zuelo, ezuelo, ichuelo, achuelo, are diminutive, and besides express lowness, vileness, pettiness, roguish banter, etc. :—

hijuelo, young child or son.	jovenzuelo, vile youth.
reyezuelo, petty king.	portezuela, small door.
portichuelo, narrow entrance.	riachuelo, rivulet.

e. Other suffixes of similar import are ete, cete, ejo, in, ino :—

mocete, small boy.	pobreta, poor girl.
lugarete, small town.	animalejo, animalcule.
espadín, small short sword.	palomino, young pigeon.

f. Finally, it should be noted that many words have some of the above endings without being augmentative or diminutive :—

buñuelo, bun, fritter.	pañuelo, handkerchief.
tornillo, screw.	mantequilla, butter.
calzoncillos, drawers.	ladrillo, brick.
chaqueta, jacket, coat.	anzuelo, fishhook.
mallorquín, Majorcan.	cascarón, eggshell, vault.

III

ADJECTIVES

24. Spanish adjectives usually change their forms to agree in gender and number with the nouns they qualify. The terminations are about the same as those of nouns, and the modifications they undergo follow the same general rules. The augmentative and diminutive suffixes are the same likewise and are modified similarly.

POSITIVE DEGREE

TWO TERMINATIONS

a. Adjectives ending in o, ete, ote, change the final vowel to a to form the feminine :—

blanco, blanca, white.	blancos, blancas.
negro, negra, black.	negros, negras.
rojo, roja, red.	rojos, rojas.
amarillo, amarilla, yellow.	amarillos, amarillas.
regordete, -a, fat and plump.	regordetes, regordetas.
grandote, -a, rather big.	grandotes, grandotas.

b. Those ending in án, ón, ín, or (except comparatives in or) and proper adjectives in és add a, rejecting the written accent of the masculine :—

holgazán, -a, lazy.	holgazanes, holgazanas.
alemán, -a, German.	alemanes, alemanas.
burlón, -a, roguish.	burlones, burlonas.
chiquitín, -a, wee.	chiquitines, chiquitinias.

traidor, -a, traitorous .	traidores, traidoras.
emprendedor, -a, enterprising .	emprendedores, emprendedoras.
francés, -a, French .	franceses, francesas.
inglés, -a, English .	ingleses, inglesas.
escocés, -a, Scotch .	escoceses, escocesas.
portugués, -a, Portuguese .	portugueses, portuguesas.

NOTE.—Ruin, mean, low, and comparatives in or remain unchanged in the singular (see 32, a) ; and español and andaluz take a for the feminine.

ONE TERMINATION

c. Adjectives in a, e, i, l, en, un, r, z, and common adjectives in és have but one form for both genders :—

agrícola, agricultural .	agrícolas.
persa, Persian .	persas.
verde, green .	verdes.
grave, grave , weighty .	graves.
carmesí, crimson .	carmesies.
fiel, faithful ; azul, blue .	fieles, azules.
fácil, easy ; débil, weak .	fáciles, débiles.
joven, young ; común, common .	jóvenes, comunes.
impar, odd ; familiar, familiar .	impares, familiares.
cortés, polite ; gris, gray .	corteses, grises.
capaz, capacious , fit .	capaces.
feliz, happy .	felices (15, a).

APOCOPATION

25. The following adjectives drop final o, when they stand immediately before a masculine noun :—

alguno, some , any .	ninguno, no , not any , none .
bueno, good ; malo, bad .	primero, first .
postrero, latter , last .	tercero, third .

Ex. Ningún hombre, el primer tren (train) ; but: ninguno de mis amigos (my friends).

a. Before feminine nouns beginning with tonic a and ha (see 12 a), good usage also allows the apocopation of the above adjectives : algún águila, some eagle; and some authors even drop the feminine a before all nouns.

b. Santo, saint, loses its syllable to before the names of most of the saints : San Pablo, San Pedro, San Juan. Except : Santo Tomás (or Santo Tomé), Santo Toribio, Santo Domingo.

Note also Santiago, St. James (in one word).

c. Grande, great, stands before its noun and may or may not lose its final de : grán señor, great lord or gentleman. When grande means large, it is placed after the noun : una casa grande, a large house.

d. Cualquiera, pl. cualesquiera, whatever, any, is treated as grande. It may retain or drop a according to its position : —

Cualquier(a) casa (house), cualesquier(a) casas : Una casa cualquiera, cualquiera de las casas.

e. Cada, each, every, and demás, other, remaining, are invariable : Cada seis días, every six days; los demás, the others; lo demás, the remainder.

f. Ambos, both, and sendos, one each, as many, have no singular.

QUALIFYING SUFFIXES

26. These suffixes having been treated at some length under nouns, it will suffice here to give only a few examples of the adjectives : — rico (rich), ricacho, ricachón, ricazo, ricote.

chico (small), chiquito, chiquitito, chiquirritito, chiquillo, chiquitín.

guapo (elegant, pretty, brave), guapetón, guapito, guapazo.

rubio (red, blond), rubito, rubión.

pobre (poor), pobrete, pobretón, pobrecito, pobrecillo, pobre-zuelo, pobrecico.

bueno (good, nice, neat), bonito, bonacho, bonachón, bonazo, bonico, bonillo, bonitillo.

NOTE.—Very many adjectives, possibly the majority, rarely, if ever, take the diminutive or augmentative forms; and very few have as many modifications as those just cited.

COMPARATIVE DEGREE

27. The comparative degree is formed by placing más (more), menos (less), or tan (as, so), before the positive and que or de (than), de lo que (than), or como (as), cual (as) before the second term of the comparison.

a. Más forms the comparative of superiority: Mi casa es más alta que la de mi amigo, My house is higher than that of my friend.

b. Menos expresses the comparative of inferiority: Este libro es menos interesante que el otro, This book is less interesting than the other one.

NOTE.—De takes the place of que before numerals in affirmative sentences, but either que or de may be used when the sentence is negative in any way: He estado en París más de diez veces, I have been to Paris more than ten times; Tengo menos de cinco pesos en mi cartera, I have less than five dollars in my pocket-book; but: No tiene más que tres manzanas, He has no more than three apples; No hay menos de seis perros en el jardín, There are no less than six dogs in the garden.

c. When the second member of the comparison contains a verb } different from that of the first, than is rendered by de lo que: } Es más hermosa de lo que dicen, She is prettier than they say; but when the comparison depends on a noun instead of an adjective, than is translated by del que, de la que, de los que or de las que, according to the gender and number of said noun: } Tenía menos deudas de las que pensaba, He had fewer debts than he thought.

d. Tan (a contraction of tanto) . . . como forms the comparative of equality: Esta mercancía es tan barata como aquélla, This merchandise is as cheap as that.

NOTE.—Tan may be omitted and cual may take the place of como, the article before the following noun, in the latter case, being dropped: Su tez es como la nieve, or, cual nieve, blanca, Her complexion is as white as snow (white like snow).

28. Tanto (so much, as much, many) . . . como is used when nouns are compared: Compra tantos melocotones como peras, He buys as many peaches as pears.

a. But tanto . . . cuanto is the formula when a different verb is used in the second member: Tenemos tantos dependientes cuantos (or como) necesitamos, We have as many clerks as we need.

See also 96, Note.

NOTE.—Certain irregular comparatives, for the sake of convenience, will be treated in the following section (see 32).

SUPERLATIVE DEGREE

29. The relative superlative is formed by placing the definite article, or one of the possessive adjectives, before the comparative degree. The three degrees may be illustrated by hermoso, pretty, and poblado, populous:—

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE	PLURAL
hermoso,	más hermoso,	el más hermoso,	los más hermosos,
hermosa,	más hermosa,	la más hermosa,	las más hermosas,
pretty ,	prettier ,	(the) prettiest ,	(the) prettiest .
poblado,	menos poblado,	el menos poblado,	los menos poblados,
poblada,	menos poblada,	la menos poblada,	las menos pobladas,
populous ,	less populous ,	(the) least populous ,	(the) least populous .

a. When the article, or possessive adjective, precedes the noun, and the adjective follows it, the latter usually rejects the article : la nación más adelantada, the most progressive nation; mi amigo más querido, my dearest friend.

b. The adjective, used predicatively, rejects the article when there is no comparison and retains it when there is : Ella es más cariñosa cuando está buena, She is most affectionate when she is well; but : Ella es la menos cariñosa de mis hermanas, She is the least affectionate of my sisters.

c. When used independently, or when qualifying a noun in apposition, the superlative requires the article : Mi buen tío, el más noble de los hombres, vive en Boston, My good uncle, the most noble of men, lives in Boston; Cánovas del Castillo, estadista español el más célebre, murió debido á un asesinato, crimen el más atroz, Cánovas del Castillo, a most celebrated Spanish statesman, died by assassination, a most atrocious crime.

30. The absolute superlative indicates a very high degree of the quality of the adjective without any idea of comparison. It is made in one of two ways :—

a. First, by putting before the adjective muy, very, bien, very, well, sumamente, highly, or any other adverb which enhances the force of the adjective : muy dulce, very sweet; bien rico, very rich; sumamente grato, highly pleasing.

b. Secondly, by affixing to the positive the termination ísimo (sometimes rimo) : querido, dear, queridísimo, very dear.

31. In the formation of the absolute superlative the adjective is subject to the following changes :—

a. A final vowel, or diphthong, is usually dropped : amplio, full, amplísimo, very full; limpio, clean, limpísimo, very clean.

Except : agrio, sour, agrísimos; pío, pious, piésimo; frío, cold, friésimo.

b. Final co, go, z become respectively qu, gu, c: rico, rich, riquísmo; vago, restless, vague, vaguísimo; atroz, atrocious, atrocísimo.

c. The ending ble is changed to bil: amable, amiable, amabilísimo.

Except feble, feeble, endeble, weak, and doble, double, which are regular (31, a) : feble, feblísimo, very feeble, etc.

d. Tonic ie and ue revert to e and o, the primitive Latin vowels : ardiente, ardent, ardentísimo; cierto, certain, certísimo; nuevo, new, novísimo; fuerte, strong, fortísimo.

e. The following form their absolute superlative in accordance with their Latin radicals : —

amigo , friendly , amicísimo .	magnífico , splendid , magnificéntísimo .
fiel , faithful , fidelísimo .
íntegro , candid , integérximo .

NOTE.—Fácil and difícil affix either ísimo or imo.

f. It should be observed that all adjectives do not customarily take this termination. Many ending in io, io, i, l, n, r prefer the form with muy.

NOTE.—Occasionally adjectives with the prefix re are used in popular language with the force of absolute superlatives : rebueno, very good.

IRREGULAR COMPARISONS

32. Besides their regular comparison, a few adjectives have an irregular one based on the Latin.

POSITIVE

- bueno, good.
- malo, bad.
- grande, great.
- pequeño, small.
- mucho, much.
- poco, little.

SUPER. RELAT.

- el mejor, the best.
- el peor, the worst.
- el mayor, { greatest,
 { oldest. }
- el menor, { smallest,
 { youngest. }
- los más (de), the most.
- los menos (de), the fewest.

COMPARATIVE

- mejor, better.
- peor, worse.
- mayor, greater, older.
- menor, smaller, younger.
- más, more.
- menos, less.

SUPER. ABSOL.

- { óptimo, } very good.
- { bonísimo, } very bad.
- máximo, very great.
- mínimo, very small.
- muchísimo, very much.
- poquísmo, very few.

a. The comparatives and relative superlatives of the above adjectives, as well as all comparative forms, such as superior, inferior, interior, exterior, etc., have but one termination for the masculine and feminine : la mayor parte, the greater part; el mejor de mis amigos, the best of my friends.

33. Participles used as adjectives undergo all the modifications of the latter : querido, dear (from querer, to love), más querido, dearer, el más querido, the dearest, queridísimo, very dear.

POSITION OF ADJECTIVES

34. The adjective may stand either before or after the noun it qualifies, but its position is not altogether arbitrary.

While in some instances it depends on the choice of the speaker, in others the harmony of the sentence or usage determines its place.

35. The more common position is after the noun, especially when it is desired to attribute to a noun a quality which does not necessarily belong to it. Many adjectives which follow the noun may be ranged under certain headings:—

1st. The names of colors and other qualities appreciable to the senses: un caballo blanco, a white horse; una vaca negra, a black cow; vino tinto, red wine; la fiebre amarilla, the yellow fever; una mesa redonda, a round table; una superficie llana, a smooth surface.

2d. Adjectives derived from proper names: la lengua castellana, the Castilian language; las dependencias españolas, the Spanish dependencies; la música alemana, the German music.

NOTE.—Nouns used as adjectives invariably follow: el proceso Dreyfus, the Dreyfus case.

3d. Participial or verbal adjectives: una hija amada, a beloved daughter; un edificio cuadrado, a square edifice; un deseo ardiente, an ardent desire; una herida penetrante, a deep wound.

4th. Adjectives modified by adverbs or containing more syllables than the nouns they qualify: un hombre tan bueno, such a good man; un tiempo demasiado largo, too long a time; una romería sumamente grata, a highly agreeable pilgrimage; un discurso kilométrico, a speech a mile long; una mujer doctísima, a very learned woman.

5th. Two or more adjectives qualifying a noun in the plural: Las lenguas italiana, española y francesa se derivan del latín, The Italian, Spanish and French languages are derived from the Latin; los capítulos primero y segundo, the first and second chapters.

36. The adjective stands before the noun :—

1st. When it expresses a characteristic quality: la dulce miel, the sweet honey; el duro hierro, the hard iron.

2d. When used figuratively: una negra acción, a dark deed; la dulce y encantadora voz del ruiseñor, the sweet and enchanting voice of the nightingale; la meliflua armonía, the mellifluous harmony.

3d. For rhetorical effect: ¡Dichosa edad y siglo dichoso aquel! Happy age and happy century that! Las claras fuentes y corrientes ríos les ofrecían sabrosas y transparentes aguas, The clear fountains and running streams offered them delicious and transparent water.

4th. When expressing quantity: más dinero, more money; con toda prisa, with all speed; muchas riquezas, much riches; tanto ardor, so much ardor; demasiado calor, too much heat; poco pan, little bread; menos oro, less gold.

NOTE.— Mero, mere, bueno, good, malo, poor, regularly stand before the noun, but observe: él lado malo ó el lado bueno de la medalla, the wrong or the right side of the medal.

37. The meaning of certain adjectives may vary according as they precede or follow, while others may take either position without any appreciable difference in meaning :—

Una mala pluma, a bad pen; un hombre malo, a wicked man; un gran libro, a great book; un libro grande, a large book; ciertas palabras, certain words; una promesa cierta, a sure promise; un pobre poeta, a poor poet; un poeta pobre, a poet without means; el caballero de la triste figura, the knight of the rueful countenance; un asunto triste, a sad affair.

NOTE.— The above rules must not be taken as absolute guides. In many, if not the majority of cases, the rhythmical balance of the sentence, more than anything else, determines the position of the adjective.

CARDINALS

39. Except uno, ciento, and the higher numbers, mil, millón, etc., the cardinals are treated as invariable adjectives.

a. Uno, -a, being the same as the indefinite article, drops o when it precedes a noun: un libro, one book. When preceded by another number, both o and a are dropped before nouns: veintiún plumas, 21 pens; treinta y un manzanas, 31 apples. See also 12, a.

b. The numbers 16 to 19 and 21 to 29 are likewise written separately: diez y seis, veinte y uno, etc., but custom is fast deciding in favor of the forms given in the list.

c. Ciento is invariable for gender but loses the final to, if followed immediately by a noun or adjective: cien ciruelas, a hundred plums; cien buenos poemas, a hundred good poems. When multiplied or used as a noun, ciento takes the plural sign: doscientas aves, two hundred birds; unos cientos pesos, some hundreds of dollars; cientos de hombres, hundreds of men. But centena or centenar may be used in the latter case.

d. Mil is used as an invariable adjective: mil hombres, dos mil mujeres, or as synonymous with millar: miles de or millares de soldados, thousands of soldiers.

e. Millón is a noun: un millón de gracias, a million thanks (a Spaniard's exaggerated way of saying: many thanks); dos millones de duros, two million dollars.

f. After 1000, numbers are expressed by thousand(s) plus hundred(s): mil doscientos caballos, 1200 horses; tres mil quinientos habitantes, 3500 inhabitants.

g. The conjunction y (and) is usually placed between the last two numbers, when the last number is one of the units from 1 to 9, inclusive: mil ochocientos noventa y nueve, 1899; but even in this case y may be omitted: ciento seis ciudades, 106 cities.

ORDINALS

40. The ordinals are grammatically treated as adjectives and vary for gender and number. They usually stand after, but may stand before, the noun: lección primera, the first lesson; la décimocuarta fila, the 14th file.

a. For the apocopation of primero and tercero, see 25.

b. The Spanish ordinals are little used beyond vigésimo, 20th, and not always up to that point. The cardinals take their place, because shorter, and when so used are always placed after the noun: página veintiuna, page twenty-one; el día dos de mayo, the second day of May.

c. To distinguish rulers, when there has been more than one of the same name, the ordinals are used up to décimo and generally the cardinals thereafter: Carlos segundo, Felipe cuarto, Luis catorce.

d. In numbering the days of the month primero is used for the first, but the cardinal numbers for all the rest: el primero de marzo, March 1st; á doce de abril, on the 12th of April.

e. The ordinals may be abbreviated in writing or printing, as follows: 1º, 3º, 10ºs, 20ºs, etc.

FRACTIONS

41. With the exception of $\frac{1}{2}$ to tenths, which generally correspond to the English method of formation, Spanish fractions have special forms.

La mitad }	$\frac{1}{2}$	Un quinto	$\frac{1}{5}$
Un medio }	$\frac{1}{2}$	Un sexto	$\frac{1}{6}$
Uno y medio }	$1\frac{1}{2}$	Un séptimo	$\frac{1}{7}$
Una y media }	$1\frac{1}{2}$	Un octavo (ochavo)	$\frac{1}{8}$
Un tercio	$\frac{1}{3}$	Un noveno	$\frac{1}{9}$
Un cuarto	$\frac{1}{4}$	Un décimo	$\frac{1}{10}$

a. From décimo on, avo is added to the ordinals:—

Un onzavo	$\frac{1}{11}$	cinco cincuentavos	$\frac{5}{50}$
Un trezavo	$\frac{1}{13}$	tres setentavos	$\frac{3}{70}$
Dos quinzavos	$\frac{2}{15}$	doce noventavos	$\frac{12}{90}$
Un diecisieteavo	$\frac{1}{17}$	dos centavos }	$\frac{2}{100}$
Tres veintiunavos	$\frac{3}{21}$	dos centésimos }	$\frac{2}{100}$
Siete treintavos	$\frac{7}{30}$	quince milésimos	$\frac{15}{1000}$

b. As in English, fractions may be expressed by parte, part: la cuarta parte, the 4th part; la décimoquinta parte, the 15th part.

COLLECTIVES

42. Collectives generally express approximate numbers; as, una decena, about ten. Other forms are:—

un par, a pair, couple.

una gruesa, a gross.

NOTE.—Approximate number may be expressed by adding poco más ó menos, cosa de, unos or á eso de: cincuenta días, poco más ó menos, about 50 days; cosa de veinte pesos, a matter of 20 dollars; unos doscientos soldados, some two hundred soldiers; á eso de las cuatro, towards 4 o'clock.

MULTIPLICATIVES

43. These are formed on the cardinals by means of a suffix, meaning to fold:—

simple, single, simple.	quíntuplo, -a, fivefold.
doble, duplo, -a, double.	séxtuplo, -a, sixfold. triple, tríplice, triplo, -a, triple.	décuplo, -a, tenfold.
cuádruplo, -a, cuádruple, quadruple.	céntuplo, -a, a hundredfold.

NOTE.—There are also participial forms such as duplicado, triplicado, etc., from duplicar, triplicar, etc., to double, to triple.

	se (reflexive),	sí (reflexive).

NOTE.— Se and sí mean: himself, herself, itself, yourself, your-selves, themselves.

45. Yo occasionally occurs after a preposition in connection with another pronoun: con usted y yo, with you and me.

46. Nos for nosotros, -as, is employed in official language somewhat like our editorial "we."

47. Tú is the pronoun of familiar address and is used in the family, between intimate friends and relatives, in poetry, and in speaking to little children and domestic animals.

48. Vos is always singular though it governs its verb in the second person plural. It is more respectful and deferential than tú, and is employed as an intermediary between the familiar tú and the formal usted.

49. Vosotros (fem. vosotras) is used as the plural of tú and vos, and also in addressing public assemblies by persons who are actually, or by implication, on intimate terms with their hearers.

50. Usted, you (pl. ustedes, contracted from vuestra merced, your grace, vuestras mercedes, your graces) is the common form of polite address and is the one which the foreigner should always use for you, except when speaking to little children and animals. Owing to their etymology the verbs agreeing with usted and ustedes will be in the third person. They are abbreviated to V. or Vd. and VV. or Vds.

51. Se, sí, are the reflexive forms of the third person and of usted and ustedes for all genders and numbers, while for the first and second persons the forms in the second column are used as reflexives:—

yo me engaño, I deceive myself. nosotros,-as, nos engañamos, we, etc.

tú te engañas, thou deceivest, etc. vosotros,-as, os engañáis, you, etc.

usted se engaña, you deceive, etc. ustedes se engañan, you, etc.

él se engaña, he deceives, etc. ellos (m.) se engaña, they, etc.

ella se engaña, she deceives, etc. ellas (f.) se engañan, they, etc.

52. The forms in the second column (44) are also employed as the object of the verb, both direct and indirect. The latter has all the force of a dative case and is variously translated by to, for, from, etc., while at times it is merely expletive and is left untranslated. Pleonastically the prepositional forms are constantly used along with the verb forms for purposes of clearness or emphasis. He gives me a book is él me da un libro or á mí me da un libro, or again: él me da un libro á mí. Other examples: Digo á usted or le digo á usted, I tell you. Te quita la pluma, or te quita á tí la pluma, He takes the pen from thee.

53. Self is expressed by adding mismo, -a, -os, -as (less frequently propio) to the subject or prepositional forms:—

yo mismo,	usted mismo,	mí misma.
tú misma,	ustedes mismas,	tí mismo.
él mismo,	vosotros mismos,	tí misma.
ella misma,	ellos mismos,	sí mismos.

Si mismo, oneself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, etc.

54. The pronouns must agree with the nouns to which they refer in gender and number: ¿ Tiene V. mi pluma? Sí, la tengo, Have you my pen? Yes, I have it; ¿ Dónde están mis zapatos?—Los veo en el rincón, Where are my shoes? I see them in the corner.

55. Ello, lo, the neuters, are used to represent nouns not named or specified, as a circumstance, a thought, or sentence, and also with ser, estar, to be, as predicating the truth or falsity of a statement made or a question asked: ¿ Es usted su sobrino?—Lo soy, Are you his nephew? I am (it); ¿ Está él contento?—Si no lo estuviera, lo diría, Is he satisfied? If he were not (it), he would say so (it). No lo es, It is not so.

NOTE.—But when the English it refers back to the subject of the sentence, lo is always omitted : ¿ Es usted ?—Sí, yo soy, Is it you ? Yes, it is I (lit. I am). ¿ Quién es ?—Él es, mi hermano, Who is it ? It is he, my brother.

56. Le, lo, la, los, las are likewise used as indefinite pronouns in the sense of some, one, any, such : Es un pillo, si los hubiera, He is a rascal, if there ever was one. ¿ Hay tinta en el tintero ?—La hay, Is there any ink in the ink-stand ? There is (some). Encontrará V. manzanas sobre la mesa, si las quiere, You will find apples on the table, if you desire any.

57. The prepositions de and á do not now, as with the article, make contractions with any of the personal pronouns. Hence : Hablo de él, de ella, de ello, I speak of him, of her, of it ; Le pregunto á él, I ask him.

NOTE.—Formerly de was contracted with the pronouns, making dél, della, dello, dellos, dellas, and they are so pronounced at the present day but are always written separately.

58. Mí, tí, sí, when used with con, with, are lengthened into migo, tigo, sigo and become conmigo, contigo, consigo, written as one word.

POSITION OF THE PRONOUNS

59. The subject pronouns regularly stand before the verb in declarative, and after it in interrogative, sentences ; but the order may be reversed for rhetorical effect. The subject pronouns are, however, for the most part, omitted when not emphatic or when the context or the personal ending of the verb shows clearly enough the subject :—

Yo quiero á mis amigos, I love my friends.

Eso lo digo yo, That say I.

¿ Sale usted á paseo ? or ¿ Usted sale á paseo ? Are you going out to walk ?

NOTE.— Usted may be omitted, but its constant use is considered more polite. A disagreeable repetition of it, however, should be avoided.

60. Pronouns which are the objects of a verb are suffixed to and form one word with the verb, whenever the latter is in the affirmative imperative, in the gerund or in the infinitive, or in the present subjunctive used affirmatively as an imperative. They always precede the negative imperative, however :—

Digame V. lo que quiera.

Tell me whatever you will.

Dádmelo, si gustáis.

Give it to me, if you please.

Voy á decirle por qué.

I am going to tell you why.

Y saludándome partió.

And saluting me he went away.

Hablémosle en seguida.

Let us speak to him at once.

Muy bien ; díganmelo.

Very well ; let them tell me so.

No me lo dé V. ; no lo quiero. Don't give it to me ; I don't want it.

NOTE.— Exceptions to the above rule may occur when the gerund and infinitive depend on a preceding verb, in which case their objects may be transferred to this verb :—

Lo estoy haciendo.

I am doing it.

No lo quiero aceptar.

I don't wish to accept it.

No me vuelvas á hablar.

Don't speak to me again.

a. In other cases than those above named the objective pronoun may precede or follow the verb in simple, and the auxiliary in compound, tenses. But when it follows, it is always treated as an enclitic, i.e. is attached to the verb as its final syllable.

Yo le doy un peso.
Tú me das cuatro peras.
V. le escribe una carta.
No me hable V. ahora.

I give him a dollar.
Thou givest me four pears.
You write him a letter.
Don't speak to me now.

But—

Dejóme en seguida y fué á casa.
Salióle á buscar, pero no le halló.

He left me immediately, and went home.
He went out to look for him,
but did not find him.

NOTE.—The pronoun is appended to the past participle when the auxiliary is omitted :—

Ya le había visto y díchole que viniera.

He had already seen him and told him he should come.

61. All the rules for the position of one objective pronoun apply equally when the verb is accompanied by more than one. When this occurs, the pronouns stand as follows with reference to each other. The full-faced type indicates the indirect object (dative) :—

Me le, lo, la, les, los, las.
Te le, lo, la, les, los, las.
Se le, lo, la, les, los, las.

Nos le, lo, la, les, los, las.
Os le, lo, la, les, los, las.
Se le, lo, la, les, los, las.

a. From the above it appears that the indirect object always stands before the direct when the latter is in the third person :—

Mi padre me lo dice.
Tu tío te los ha dado.
Su madre se las pide.
Díganoslo, si le gusta.
Viene á pedíroslos.
Se las dan á ustedes.

My father tells it to me.
Thy uncle has given them to thee.
Her mother asks them of her.
Tell it to us, if you please.
He comes to ask them of you.
They give them to you (pl.).

NOTE.—The se in the above examples must not be mistaken for the reflexive. It is a euphonic substitute for le, les, and las. Whenever two pronouns beginning with l come together, the first is changed to se. Hence le lo, les los, las lo, etc., become se lo, se los, se lo, etc.

b. When the reflexive se is used with other pronouns, it stands first, and the following pronoun will be the indirect object (dative). Such combinations are generally a substitute for the passive voice.

Se me, se te, se le ; se le . . . á usted.

Se nos, se os, se les ; se les . . . á ustedes.

No se me da un higo que I care not a fig whether he venga ó no. comes or not.

Se le compra una naranja. An orange is bought for him.

Se te pide una limosna. An alms is asked of thee.

Á mis amigos se les preguntó My friends were asked whether si vendrían. they would come.

Se les ofrece una copa de A glass of cool water is offered agua fresca. you (pl.).

62. The prepositional forms of the pronouns, when used for direct or indirect object, or after neuter verbs of motion, may stand either before or after the verb:—

Á él no le quiere nadie.

Se lo daré á usted y no á ella.

¿ Lo destina V. á él ó á mí?

Á usted.

Vino á mí y me lo reveló todo.

No one likes him.

I will give it to you, and not to her.

Do you intend it for him or for me? For you.

He came to me and revealed to me all.

POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES

63. Possessive adjectives are designated as prepositive and postpositive, because the former always precede, and the latter always follow, the noun.

PREPOSITIVE		POSTPOSITIVE
SING.	PLUR.	SING.	PLUR.
mi	mis	my	mío, -a
tu	tus	thy	tuyo, -a su	sus	{ his, her, its, your, one's }	suyo, -a nuestro, -a	nuestros, -as	our	nuestro, -a vuestro, -a	vuestros, -as	your	vuestro, -a su	sus	their, your	suyo, -a

64. The most of the above forms vary for 'gender and number, but they agree with the gender and number of the person or thing possessed, and not, as in English, with the possessor; so that su casa may mean his, her, its, one's, your, or their house, according to its grammatical connection.

Mi bota, mis botas.	My boot, my boots.
Tu media, tus medias.	Thy stocking, thy stockings.
Su cenojil, sus cenojiles.	His garter, his garters.
Nuestro sacabotas.	Our bootjack.
Vuestras camisas.	Your shirts.
Sus vestidos de usted.	Your clothes.

65. It has been shown (64) that su may have any one of six meanings. When it becomes necessary to specify the ownership more clearly, it is done by adding the requisite personal pronoun preceded by de. So we have such combinations as :—

Su or el cortaplumas de él.	His penknife.
Su or la cara de ella.	Her face.
Su or el abrigo de usted.	Your overcoat.
Sus or los impermeables de ellos.	Their raincoats.
Sus levitas de ustedes.	Your frock-coats.

NOTE.— Both forms may be used, as in the last example.

66. Own is rendered by propio :—

Mis propios parientes.	My own relatives.
Tu propio parentesco.	Thy own relationship.
Sus propios cuñados.	His own brothers-in-law.
Su propio suegro.	Her own father-in-law.

67. The postpositive forms take the place of the prepositive in direct address, when the noun is not qualified by an adjective, and in the conventional letter headings, also when the noun is used in a kind of partitive sense :—

Muy señor mío, muy señores nues- My dear sir, (our) dear sirs, etc.
tros, etc.

Padre nuestro que estás en los Our Father who art in heaven.
cielos.

Hijita mía, ven acá. My (dear) little daughter, come here.

Un discípulo mío quiere verme. A pupil of mine wishes to see me.

Observe, however, the address of a subordinate to his superior :—

Sí, mi general; no, mi amo. Yes, general; no, master.

68. But when an adjective accompanies the noun, the possessive may stand either before or after :—

Mi estimado amigo. } Apreciable amigo mío. } My esteemed friend.

69. When the noun is not in direct address, one of the articles usually precedes it, if the possessive follows it; but there are certain conventional expressions which omit the article :—

El hermano mío que murió.
Un conocido suyo llegó ayer.

The brother of mine who died.
An acquaintance of his arrived yesterday.

But —

De parte tuya, suya.
Á fe mía, tuya.
Á casa nuestra.
Á pesar mío.
Á costa suya.

On thy, his part.
On my, thy faith.
To our house.
In spite of me.
At his expense.

70. Contrast or emphasis is sometimes aimed at by placing the possessive after the noun; but for the most part the position is a mere matter of taste. Emphasis may, however, be very effectively secured by using the demonstrative:—

Este tu hermano muerto era, y This thy brother was dead and revivió. (revived) is alive again.

71. In speaking of the parts of the body, its faculties and clothing, possession, under certain circumstances, is expressed by putting the article before the thing possessed and the indirect personal pronoun corresponding to the possessor before the verb; but frequently the article alone suffices:—

Me limpio las uñas.
Me ha cortado la mano.
Le duelen los dientes.
La bala le llevó la cabeza.
Le pidió la mano.
Perdió la vida en un naufragio.
Tengo en la mano una plumafontana.
Está en mangas de camisa.
Murió sin recobrar los sentidos.

I clean my nails.
He has cut my hand.
His teeth ache.
The ball knocked off his head.
He asked for her hand.
He lost his life in a shipwreck.
I have in my hand a fountain-pen.
He is in his shirt sleeves.
He died without recovering his senses.

72. But there are many instances where the above construction can not be used and where recourse must be had to the possessives :—

Mi sombrero está en casa del sombrerero. My hat is at the hatter's.

El perrito duerme sobre mis rodillas. The little dog sleeps on my knees.

En torno de su boca jugaba una sonrisa encantadora. Around her mouth played an enchanting smile.

El día del gozo de su corazón. The day of rejoicing of his heart.

NOTE.—The usage with clothing and the faculties is not constant, as we may say :—

El salteador de caminos le quitó su or la capa. The highwayman took away from him his cloak.

Se quitó su propia vida. He took his own life.

Note also the conventional el colega, my, our, colleague, etc.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

73. Possessive pronouns are so called, because they stand for or in place of the omitted noun. They are formed by means of the definite article and the postpositive possessive adjectives.

MASCULINE

el mío, los míos,
el tuyo, los tuyos,
el suyo, los suyos,

FEMININE

la mía, las mías,
la tuya, las tuyas,
la suya, las suyas,

NEUTER

lo mío, mine.
lo tuyo, thine.
lo suyo, his, hers,
its, yours, theirs.

el nuestro, los nuestros, la nuestra, las nuestras, el vuestro, los vuestros, la vuestra, las vuestras, el suyo, los suyos, la suya, las suyas, lo nuestro, ours.

lo vuestro, yours.
lo suyo, his, hers,
yours, theirs.

See 66.

74. The prepositions de and á contract with el, making del and al, but remain unchanged with the remaining articles:—

Tu bote y el mío.	Thy boat and mine.
Tiene nuestro dinero y el suyo.	He has our money and his (own).
El color de su pelo y el del mío es negro.	The color of his hair and mine is black.
Habló á tu tío y al mío.	He spoke to thy uncle and to mine.

75. As in the case of the possessive adjectives (see 64 and 65), confusion may arise in regard to the meaning of the third personal singular and plural forms. This is avoided, when necessary, in the same way as in the case of the possessive adjectives or by the use of el de, la de, los de, las de, that, those of:—

Este lápiz es suyo or de ella.	This pencil is hers.
Hé aquí mi pañuelo y el suyo or el de usted.	Here is my handkerchief and yours.
Mis vestidos y los de ustedes.	My clothes and yours.

76. With the verb ser, to be, the article is omitted in expressing simple possession and retained to mark a contrast or emphasis:—

Tuyo es el reino, y el poder, y la gloria.	Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory.
El anillo es mío.	The ring is mine.
Este reloj (pr. reló) es el mío y ése es el tuyo.	This watch is mine and that is thine.

77. The masculine plural and the neuter are used absolutely as substantives:—

La ley de lo mío y de lo tuyo.	The law of mine and thine (meum and tuum).
El enemigo atacó á los nuestros á eso de las dos.	The enemy attacked our (soldiers) about 2 o'clock.
¡ Expresiones á los suyos !	My regards to your folks !

DEMONSTRATIVES

78. These may, for convenience, be called demonstratives of the first person (este, estos, etc.), because indicating proximity to the speaker; demonstratives of the second person (ese, esos, etc.), proximity to the person addressed; and demonstratives of the third person (aquel, -la, aquellos, etc.), distance from both. The adjectives, which stand before the nouns, are:—

MAS.	FEM.	NEUT.
First { este, person { estos,	esta, estas,	esto, (wanting)	this, } near me, us.
Second { ese, person { esos,	esa, esas,	eso, —	that, } near you.
Third { aquel, person { aquellos,	aquella, aquellas,	aquello, —	that, } distant from both.
Pro- { el, nouns { los,	la, las,	lo, —	that, those.

79. Otro, other, is joined to the above, making such combinations as:—

Estotro, -a (-os, -as), this other, these others.

Esotro, -a (-os, -as), that other, those others.

Aquel otro, aquella otra, that other.

Aquellos otros, aquellas otras, those others.

But these may be written separately: este otro, estos otros, etc.

80. The prepositions de and á contract only with el: del, al. De formerly made one word with the other forms beginning with e: deste, dese, and they are so pronounced at the present day but are always written separately.

81. For emphasis the demonstrative adjectives are sometimes placed after the noun, but the latter is then always preceded by the definite article:—

La ventana esta.	This window (here).
La época aquella.	That (remote) epoch.

82. Ese, like the English that, may be used to express contempt:—

¡ Ese hombre un rival mío !	That man a rival of mine !
¡ Ese caballo llevarse el primer premio !	That horse carry off the first prize !

83. Aquel, when used of the past, applies, in general, to time remote from the present, while ese fixes the period within the more recent personal experience of the speaker and his auditors:—

Dichosa edad y siglos dichosos aquéllos á quien los antiguos pusieron nombre de dorados. — Don Quijote.	Happy age and happy centuries those, to which the ancients gave the name of golden.
Esos días no se asemejan en nada á aquéllos dichosos de nuestra juventud.	Those days resemble in no way those happy ones of our youth.

84. In a correspondence en esta and en esa are used elliptically for en esta ciudad, in this city (where I am), and en esa, in that city (where you are).

85. Esto, eso and aquello are used only as pronouns and represent a thought, statement, or circumstance; also an object, but one not specifically named or easily recognizable at sight; otherwise, the demonstrative must agree grammatically with the name of the object specified:—

Esto no me agrada de ningún modo. This does not please me in any way.

Aquéllo no me importa. That does not concern me.

Esto es vidrio, eso es madera, pero aquello es piedra. This is glass, that (near you) is wood, but that (yonder) is stone.

But —

Esta es la carta de mi tío. This is the letter of my uncle.

Ese es un libro que hallé. That is a book which I found.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS

86. The same forms are used for the pronouns as for the adjectives, but they are distinguished from the latter by the written accent: éste, ése, aquél, etc., usually, but not always, rendered in English by: this one, that one, the one (that one) yonder; in the plural: these, those:—

Esta casa es la mía, ésa es de usted, y aquélla es de mi padre político. This house is mine, that one is yours, and the one yonder is my father-in-law's.

87. When two persons or things have already been mentioned and it is desired to contrast them by an additional statement, éste means the latter, and aquél, the former:—

Isabel y Cristina han sido reinas de España ; ésta es ahora reina regente, y aquélla es ex-reina y vive en París.

Isabella and Cristina have been queens of Spain ; the latter is now queen regent, and the former is ex-queen and lives in Paris.

NOTE.— But the order of éste and aquél may be reversed, and primero may take the place of aquél, and último that of éste.

88. In the expression: mi periódico y el de mi amigo, my newspaper and that of my friend, el is not, in any proper sense, a demonstrative, but the article agreeing with periódico understood; but as that and those conveniently translate el and its variations, they may be called demonstratives. Their functions are as follows:—

1st. To represent a noun already expressed:—

Esta mi finca linda con la del gobernador. This estate of mine is contiguous to (that of) the governor('s).

Estos barcos y los del enemigo son blindados. These ships and those of the enemy are ironclad.

Entre los muertos por la fiebre. Amongst those killed by the fever.

2d. To serve as antecedent to the relative que:—

El que no sabe eso no sabe nada. He who does not know that does not know anything.

Al que está contento basta poco. Little suffices for him who is contented.

Los que no admiten la inmortalidad del alma son pocos. Those (they) who do not admit the immortality of the soul are few.

NOTE.—We may also say: aquel que, aquellos que, etc.

3d. To represent a noun omitted in the second term of a comparison:—

Ahora tengo menos dinero del que tuve no ha mucho tiempo. Now I have less money than (that which) I had not long ago.

Tuvo que pagar por su hijo más deudas de las que pensaba. He had to pay more debts for his son than (those which) he thought.

89. The neuter lo is used,

1st. Pronominally in the sense of the matter, the affair:—

Lo del oro y de la plata.	The question of gold and silver.
Lo de Dreyfus.	The Dreyfus affair.
Lo del Maine es de lo más serio.	That matter of the Maine is of the most serious kind.

2d. To form adverbial phrases of manner:—

Lo representa á lo vivo.	He represents it in a life-like manner.
Á lo Victor Hugo.	In the style of Victor Hugo.

3d. As the antecedent to the neuter relative que, which, making lo que, that which, what. It can not be omitted as that in English:—

Lo que usted dice es verdad.	What you say is true.
De lo que me alegra mucho.	At which I rejoice greatly.

4th. In a comparison where two degrees of quality of the same subject are compared :—

Es más bonita de lo que yo pensaba.	She is prettier than (that which) I thought.
-------------------------------------	--

5th. As an adverb of quantity in the sense of how, how much, etc.:—

¡ Lo que es el no tener nada que hacer !	How nice it is not to have anything to do !
Usted no sabe lo buena que es Sor Luisa.	You don't know how kind Sister Louise is.
¡ Lo que cuesta al mundo la ignorancia !	That is just what ignorance costs the world !
¡ Si él supiera lo que le quiero !	If he (only) knew how much I love him !

RELATIVE PRONOUNS

90. Relative pronouns are so called, because they relate to nouns already mentioned or implied, which are termed their antecedents.

- que, } who, which, that.
- quién, quiénes, }
- el cual, los cuales, f. la cual, las cuales, } who, which.
- el que, los que, f. la que, las que, }
- cuyo, cuyos, f. cuya, cuyas, which, of which, whose.
- tal . . . cual, such . . . as.
- tanto . . . cuánto, as much, so much, many . . . as.
- lo cual, which, that which, what.

NOTE.— El, in the above forms, being the article, is contracted with de and á into del and al. There are no other contractions.

91. Que is used for all genders and numbers and for both persons and things but not for persons when the relative is governed by a preposition:—

El hombre que corre..	The man who runs.
La mujer que viene.	The woman who comes.
La ciudad que es grande.	The city which is large.
Las casas que son altas.	The houses which are high.
Los hombres que aman.	The men whom they love.
La iglesia á que voy.	The church to which I go.
Las plumas de que hablo.	The pens of which I speak.

NOTE.—The relative in English, when the object of a verb, may be omitted, but in Spanish it must always be expressed: el libro que leo, the book I am reading.

92. Quién (pl. quiénes) may be used,

1st. As a nominative, when both the principal and relative clause may be turned into independent clauses connected by and:—

Vino á mi casa un hombre, quien me lo dijo. There came to my house a man who told it to me.

Vino un hombre á mi casa y me lo dijó. A man came to my house and told it to me.

But —

¿Vive el hombre que no sea egoísta poco más ó menos? Is the man living who is not more or less selfish?

2d. When the relative refers to a person and is governed by a preposition:—

Es aquel hombre á quien debo 25 pesos. It is that man to whom I owe 25 dollars.

Aquí están las mujeres de quiénes hablé. Here are the women of whom I spoke.

3d. In a compound sense embracing both antecedent and relative:—

Quien se bate y huye, vivirá para batirse otra vez. He who fights and runs will live to fight again.

No faltan quienes afirman lo contrario. There are not wanting those who affirm the contrary.

4th. In a partitive sense, meaning some, being marked in this case with the written accent:—

De repente se escondieron, quiénes bajo la mesa, quiénes detrás de la puerta. Suddenly they hid themselves, some under the table, some behind the door.

NOTE.— Cuál may also be used in this last sense, and it, as well as quién, may be either singular or plural.

93. Quien, though usually singular, is found as a relative to a plural antecedent:—

Los héroes á quien celebramos. The heroes whom we honor.

Los siete sabios á quien venera la Grecia. The seven wise men whom Greece venerates.

NOTE.—The grammars say that quien is no longer used of things, but the two following sentences are found as part of the text of the last edition of the Gramática de la Real Academia Española :—

La partícula que no se pospone nunca al nombre ó verbo á quien rige.

Hay también nombres á quienes el uso ha dado ya verdadera significación de

The particle que is never placed after the noun or verb which it governs.

There are also nouns to which usage has given the decided signification of

94. El que and el cual, used of both persons and things, enable the speaker to avoid a disagreeable repetition of other forms of the relative and likewise, by means of their inflection, to secure greater precision when the relative is separated from its antecedent :—

El Oquendo que salió del puerto y del que depende el éxito de la empresa.

The Oquendo, which went out of port and on which depends the success of the undertaking.

La pluma de mi hermano, la cual está en la mesa.

My brother's pen, which is on the table.

Mi tía dió dos tertulias en su quinta, á las cuales me convidó.

My aunt gave at her country seat two evening parties, to which she invited me.

95. Cuyo, whose, of which, agrees in gender and number with the noun by which it is limited :—

Aquel hombre cuyo nombre es sinónimo de honradez.

That man whose name is a synonym for integrity.

Los griegos cuyas arquitectura y escultura aun hoy quedan sin rivales.

The Greeks, whose architecture and sculpture remain even to-day without rivals.

96. Tal . . . cual and tanto . . . cuantos, as correlatives, find their place here: —

Tal es su conducta cual era de esperar. His conduct is such as was to be expected.

Tendrá V. tantos honores cuantos quiera. You will have as many honors as you may desire.

NOTE.— Tanto is frequently omitted, and cuanto, or todo cuanto, includes both antecedent and relative: — Tenemos cuantos discípulos de seamos. We have as many pupils as we desire.

Todo quanto posee no bastará. All that he owns will not suffice.

See also 28 and 28, a.

97. Lo cual and lo que never relate to a personal noun but represent a previous assertion or situation: —

Declaró que moriría antes, lo cual causó gran rumor en la sala. He declared he would die first, which created a great stir in the hall.

Estamos rodeados por los sitiadores, lo que es muy peligroso. We are surrounded by the besiegers, which is very dangerous.

98. Donde, like its English synonym, where, frequently takes the place of a relative governed by a preposition: —

La ciudad donde vivimos. The city where (in which) we live.

El teatro á donde vamos. The theatre to which we are going.

99. Quién, quiénes, who? qué, whai? what (a!)!

Cuyo, cuyos, f. cuya, cuyas, } whose?
De quién, pl. de quiénes,

Cuál, pl. cuáles, which? what?

Qué tal, qué tales, what kind of? how?

Cuánto, pl. cuántos, how much? how many?

Qué tanto, how, how much?

NOTE.—Observe that the chief difference between the relatives and interrogatives is the written accent of the latter.

100. Quién is used only of persons:—

¿Quién se lo ha dicho á V.? Who told it to you?

¿Quiénes son aquellos forasteros? Who are those strangers?

¿Sabe V. con quién vino? Do you know with whom he came?

101. Qué is invariable and is used both as pronoun and adjective and for both numbers and genders:—

¿Qué come usted? What are you eating?

¿Qué libros compró V.? What books did you buy?

¿Qué pluma quiere V.? What pen do you want?

¿Qué es geografía? What is geography?

NOTE.—Qué, like lo que (see 89, 5th), is used in exclamatory sentences in the sense of how, what, what a:— ¡Qué feliz soy yo! How happy I am!

¡Qué buen tiempo! What fine weather!

¡Qué casa más bonita! What a most beautiful house!

REMARK.—When the noun is followed by an adjective, the latter may be strengthened by tan:—

¡Qué asunto tan molesto! What a (so) troublesome affair!

102. De quién and cuyo are synonymous, except that the latter is limited by the noun and the former not. As an interrogative, cuyo is less frequently used than de quién:—

- ¿ De quién es esta casa ?
 ¿ Cuya es esta casa ?
 ¿ Cuya casa es esta ?
 ¿ De cuyos poemas habla usted ? Of whose poems do you speak ?

Whose house is this ?

NOTE.—The answer must always correspond syntactically to the question. In replying to the above questions, we might say :—

- Es de mi tío ; es mía.
 De los de Cadalso.

It is my uncle's ; it is mine.
 Of Cadalso's.

103. Cuál (pl. cuáles) seeks information about individuals of a class or number of persons or things specified, either actually or by implication. Consequently it is usually followed either by de, expressed or understood, or by the verb to be. It is also used adjectively :—

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| ¿ Cuál de los dos perros es de usted ? | Which of the two dogs is yours ? |
| ¿ Cuál es la hora de la siesta ? | What is the hour of the mid-day nap ? |
| ¿ Cuáles son sus primos ? | Which are his cousins ? |
| ¿ Cuál poesía prefiere usted ? | Whose poetry do you prefer ? |
| ¿ Qué poesía prefiere usted ? | What (kind of) poetry do you prefer ? |
| ¿ Cuál es la gramática ? | Which is the grammar ? |
| ¿ Qué es gramática ? | What is grammar ? |
| Dígame cuáles son. | Tell me which (ones) they are. |

104. Qué tal is used adjectively and adverbially, as well as pronominally :—

- | | |
|--------------------------------|--|
| ¿ Qué tal tiempo hace ? | What kind of weather is it ? |
| ¿ Qué tales son las muestras ? | What kind of samples are they ? |
| ¿ Qué tal sigue usted ? | How are you getting along ?
(How are you ?) |

105. Cuánto varies for gender and number and is used adjectively and pronominally. As an adverb, it is abbreviated to cuán before an adjective or adverb:—

- | | |
|--|---|
| ¿Cuánto dinero perdió usted ? | How much money did you lose ? |
| ¿Cuántos caballos compró él ? | How many horses did he buy ? |
| ¿Cuánto costó á V. esa máquina ?
—No recuerdo cuánto. | How much did that machine cost you ? I don't remember how much. |
| ¡Cuán dichosa es ella ! | How fortunate she is ! |
| ¡Cuán airadamente se condujo ! | How angrily he conducted himself ! |

106. Qué tanto is similar to cuánto in all its uses and variations and loses the final to under the same circumstances:—

- | | |
|---|---|
| ¿Qué tanto se diferencia del otro ? | How much does it differ from the other one ? |
| ¿Qué tantas deudas tiene ? | How many debts has he ? |
| Usted ignora qué tan airosa es
la anciana. | You don't know how graceful the old lady is. |

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS

107. Indefinite pronouns are so called because of their indeterminate or impersonal meaning. Being pronouns, strictly so called, they can not qualify nouns:—

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| alguien, somebody. | fulano, } such, such and |
| algo, something, somewhat. | mengano, } such a one, |
| cosa, something, anything. | zutano, } so and so. |
| cada uno, } each one, | nadie, nobody, no one. |
| cada cual, } every one. | quienquiera, whoever. |
| nada, nothing. | uno, one. |

108. Alguien, somebody, is applied only to persons and can not be qualified or limited by an adjective or dependent genitive :—

Alguien llama ; vaya á abrir.	Somebody is knocking ; go open the door.
Es alguien que pide limosna.	It is some one who asks alms.

109. Algo and cosa, or alguna cosa, something, anything, differ but slightly in their use. Algo is used adverbially, and cosa de in the sense of something like, about. When algo is qualified by an adjective, it may be connected with it by means of the preposition de :—

Si quiere algo bueno.	If he desires something good.
¿Sabe V. algo de nuevo?	Do you know anything new ?
Eso es cosa que hay que averiguar.	That is something which has to be investigated.
Mi madre está algo indisposta.	My mother is somewhat indisposed.
Creo que costará cosa de veinte duros.	I think it will cost something like twenty dollars.

110. Cada uno and cada cual, every one, each one, differ only in that the former varies for the feminine, but neither can be used in the plural :—

Cada uno tiene su manera de matar pulgas.	Every one has his own way to (kill fleas) do things.
Cada cual es digno de su salario.	Each one is worthy of his hire.
Cada una de las niñitas dió su blanca.	Each one of the little girls gave her mite.

111. Nada, ninguna cosa, nothing, not anything, have these meanings only when standing alone or before the word they modify. When the verb is accompanied by no, they have a positive meaning. This is true of other Spanish negatives. In fact, their corresponding positive forms, except alguno, can not be used in a negative sentence. Even with alguno the noun must be expressed. The adjective with nada may be preceded by de:—

Contestó que nada sabía más.

He replied that he knew nothing more.

No tiene nada de invidiable una vida sin contrastes.

A life without contrasts has nothing enviable.

¿Qué ha vendido usted? — Nada.
Este pacto no obliga en modo alguno á Rusia.

What have you sold? — Nothing.
This compact does not oblige Russia in any way.

Han llegado noticias nada favorables al gobierno.

News not at all favorable to the government has arrived.

a. Nada, in the sense of anything, is used in sentences where the negation is merely implied. This occurs particularly after sin (que), antes (que), after comparatives, and after certain verbs, such as negar, to deny, rehusar, to refuse, guardarse, to beware, etc., and when a negative answer is expected to a question :—

Salió sin responder nada.

He went out without replying in any way.

Antes que hubo oído nada que yo decía.

Before he had heard anything I was saying.

Es más gustoso que nada que ha sido exhibido.

It is more enjoyable than anything that has been exhibited.

Negarle nada sería inútil.

To deny him anything would be useless.

¿Quién hubiera imaginado nada tan disparatado?

Who could have imagined anything so silly?

b. Nada and en nada, as more emphatic, take the place of the simple negative no, when desirable:—

Nada me gustan sus modales. His manners don't please me at all.

Todo eso en nada altera su fría indiferencia. All that does not change in any way his cool indifference.

112. Fulano (or fulano de tal), zutano and mengano serve to designate persons whose names are either unknown or intentionally suppressed. They generally occur in the order given, according as one, two, or more persons are intended. The forms vary for gender, but have no plural:—

Fulano (de tal) me lo ha dicho.
He oído decir que Don Fulano se casó ayer con la Señorita Zutana.

¿ Piensa V. que yo crea todo lo que me dicen fulano, zuta-no y mengano?

So-and-so told it to me.
I have heard that Mr. So-and-so married Miss So-and-so yesterday.

Do you think that I believe everything that Tom, Dick and Harry tell me?

NOTE.—A fourth form, perengano, -a, is sometimes heard, and in Spanish America parencejo is very common.

113. Nadie, nobody, differs but slightly in its syntax from nada (see 111 and 111, a). It is invariable in form and applicable only to persons. Like alguien, its opposite, it can not be limited by de and a following noun:—

Nadie lo sabe mejor que él.
No encuentro á nadie que pueda hacerlo.

¿ Quién quiere ayudarme?—
Nadie.

No one knows it better than he.
I do not find any one who is able to do it.
Who is willing to aid me?
Nobody.

a. See 111, a for analogous constructions with nada :—

Se fué antes de hablar á nadie.

He went away before speaking to any one.

Me lo dió sin que yo tuviera que pedirlo á nadie.

He gave it to me without my having to ask any one for it.

Vende sus géneros á precios más bajos que nadie.

He sells his goods at lower prices than any one.

Es la casa más bonita que nadie pueda imaginarse.

It is the prettiest house that one can imagine.

¿ Yo rehusar nada á nadie?

I refuse anybody anything?

¿ Quién pudiera amar á nadie más que yo á ella?

Who could love any one more than I do her?

114. Quienquiera, whoever, any one soever, applies to persons only and is rarely used in the plural, quienesquiera, or in the shortened form, quiengquier :—

Quienquiera que lo diga, se equivoca.

Whoever says so is mistaken.

Á quienquiera que vea V., dígale que venga.

Whomsoever you see, tell him to come.

NOTE.—For quién used indefinitely, see 92, 3d.

115. Uno, una, one, is more personal than the corresponding words in other languages (Germ. man, Fr. on), and is consequently not so much used, other expressions taking its place. In the present restricted sense it has no plural :—

Cuando uno no tiene nada que hacer, ¿cómo se puede ser feliz?

When one has nothing to do, how is it possible to be happy?

Y entonces una se acalora y pierde la cabeza.

And then one gets hot and loses her head.

INDEFINITE ADJECTIVES

116. The indefinite adjectives differ syntactically from the pronouns in that, while they may be used as pronouns, they also exercise all the functions of true adjectives, agreeing in gender and number with the nouns they limit.

Ajeno, another's, other people's.

Alguno, some, some one.

Ambos, both.

Cada, each, every.

Cierto, a certain, certain.

Cuanto, as much, as many.

Mismo, same, self.

Mucho, much, many.

Ninguno, none, no, no one.

Otro, other, another.

Poco, little, few.

Sendos, one each, as many.

Tal, such, such a.

Tamaño, as much, great.

Todo, all, every.

Uno y otro, both.

Único, solo, only, alone.

117. Ajeno is an adjective indicating what belongs to another, foreign to (to = de or á):—

No codiciarás los bienes ajenos.

Á menudo los asuntos ajenos nos interesan más que los nuestros propios.

Ajeno al asunto.

Eso es ajeno de la cuestión que discutimos.

No tendrás dioses ajenos delante de mí.

Por causas ajenas á mi voluntad.

Thou shalt not covet other people's goods.

Often other people's affairs interest us more than our own.

Foreign to the subject.

That is foreign to the question we are discussing.

Thou shalt have none other gods but me.

For reasons foreign to my wish.

118. Alguno, as a pronoun, has the same meaning as alguien (see 108), but unlike alguien may be limited by a following noun preceded by de. As an adjective it means some, a few and, in this sense, may be replaced in the plural by unos or unos cuantos :—

- | | |
|---|--|
| ¿Ha llegado alguno? | Has any one arrived? |
| Algunas de sus palabras no llegaron á mí. | Some of his words did not reach me. |
| ¿Tiene V. algunos lápices? — Sí,
unos cuantos. | Have you any pencils? Yes,
a few. |

See also 111.

119. Ambos, -as; both, have as substitutes los dos, en- trambos, ambos á dos and entrambos á dos :—

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| Apoyó ambos codos en la mesa. | He rested both elbows on the table. |
| Ambas á dos la sacaron del agua. | Between the two they pulled her out of the water. |

120. Cada, each, every, is an adjective of one termination. Like its English equivalents it can be used in the plural only before numbers :—

- | | |
|---|--|
| Cada mes me envía mi padre veinte pesos. | Every month my father sends me twenty dollars. |
| Cada diez años se hace el censo en los Estados Unidos. | Every ten years the census is taken in the United States. |
| Cada oveja con su pareja. | Every Jack has his Jill. |

121. Cierto, -a, a certain, pl. ciertos, -as, certain, has this meaning of indefiniteness only when it precedes the noun. Standing after the noun or after the verb to be, it means sure, reliable. In the former sense it is never preceded by the indefinite article, but the latter may take its place :—

Cierto amigo mío viene á verme ciertos días de cada semana.

Plantó un hombre una viña.

See 37.

122. Cualquiera, pl. cualesquiera, whatever, any soever, has but one termination for gender. It loses its final a when immediately before the noun it limits. The full form may stand after the noun, but only in the singular:—

Cualquier comida es mejor que ninguna.

Un libro cualquiera me bastará.

Cualesquiera de los libros que V. halle, envíemelos.

A certain friend of mine comes to see me certain days each week.

A certain man planted a vine-yard.

Any dinner whatsoever is better than none.

Any book soever will suffice me.

Whichever of the books you may find, send them to me.

123. Cuanto and todo cuanto, as much, many, all that, vary throughout for gender and number. For examples see 28, a, and 96, Note.

124. Mismo, self, same, very, has a superlative mismísimo, the very same. When preceded by the indefinite article, mismo means similar:—

Raras veces en dos idiomas distintos tienen las mismas palabras el mismo significado.

Los mismos amigos del preso admiten su delito.

Cometió otra vez el mismísimo crimen.

Tienen que hacer un mismo deber.

A mí me ha dicho lo mismo.

Rarely in two different languages do the same words have the same meaning.

The very friends of the prisoner admit his guilt.

He committed again the very same crime.

They have a similar duty to perform.

He told me the same thing.

NOTE. — For mismo meaning self, see examples under 53.

125. Mucho, much, many, is rarely modified by muy, very, but has the superlative muchísimo, very much, many.

Mucho ruido y pocas nueces.

Much ado about nothing (lit.
much noise and few nuts).

El despotismo de los pocos sobre los muchos.

The despotism of the few over the many.

Tengo mucho que hacer.

I have much to do.

Me relató muchísimos ejemplos de su caridad.

He related to me a great many instances of her charity.

126. Ninguno, nobody, no one, none, no, like all other Spanish negatives, has a positive meaning, unless it is the second member of a comparison, stands before the verb, or the verb is negated by no or some other word. For an explanation and illustrations of this principle, see 111, 111, a, and 113 :—

No entiende ninguna palabra.

He does not understand a word.

Ningunos de mis amigos han venido.

None of my friends have come.

Un libro cualquiera es mejor que ningún libro.

Any book is better than no book.

El hombre huye el ser esclavo de ninguno y concluye por ser esclavo de sí mismo.

Man shuns becoming a slave of any one and ends by becoming a slave of himself.

Arribó al puerto sin ningún accidente.

She [the ship] arrived at the port without any accident.

See 25.

a. Algún que otro is possibly a little more indefinite than the simple algún :—

Lo haré algún que otro día.

I shall do it some day or other.

Por supuesto vendrán algunas que otras.

Of course, some or others (of them) will come.

127. Otro, another, other, differs from the English, in that it does not take the indefinite article uno :—

Comió dos manzanas y se le dió otra.

He ate two apples and another was given him.

Otros tiempos, otras costumbres.

Other times, other manners.

No vino el primer día, el otro sí.

He did not come the first day, the other (day) he did.

a. Los, las, lo demás may take the place of los otros, etc., in the sense of the rest, the remainder :—

Los demás carecen de todo valor.

The rest are lacking in value of any kind.

Déme V. lo demás.

Give me the remainder of it.

NOTE.—The article may be omitted, and demás is then equivalent to otros :—

Guérin y demás corifeos del anti-semitismo.

Guérin and other leaders of anti-semitism.

b. Otro tanto, just as much, as much again, pl. otros tantos, just as many, as many more :—

Eso no le basta ; necesitará otro tanto.

That is not enough for him ; he will need as much more.

Compraremos otros tantos mañana.

We shall buy as many more to-morrow.

128. Poco, little, few, has a superlative poquísimo, a very little, few, but may also be modified by muy, very :—

Lo poco que recibo me satisface.

The little that I receive satisfies me.

Muchos son llamados, mas pocos escogidos.

Many are called, but few are chosen.

Hay muy poca diferencia.

There is very little difference.

Las poquísimas veces que lo he visto.

The very few times I have seen him.

Déle V. un poco de pan y carne. Give him a little bread and meat.

Canta un poco; canta poco. She sings a little; she sings but little.

129. Sendos, -as, one each, as many, is used only in the plural:—

Entraron cinco jóvenes llevando del brazo á sendas jóvenes. There came in five young men each having on his arm a young lady.

130. Tal, pl. tales, such a, such:—

Tal cosa jamás me hubiera ocurrido. Such a thing never would have occurred to me.

Tales son sus pretensiones que las rechazo todas. Such are his claims that I reject them all.

No son tales como se me han prometido. They are not such as were promised me.

Tal me parece difícil. Such a thing seems to me difficult.

a. Tal, when preceded by the definite article, may be variously rendered by this, the said, in question, frequently with an added idea of satire or contempt:—

Sólo sabía de la tal carta por los periódicos. He only knew of the so-called letter by the newspapers.

Y el tal Sancho quería ser gobernador de una isla. And the said Sancho wished to be governor of an island.

NOTE.—Tal alone sometimes conveys the same meaning:—

Repuso ella furiosa que no era tal mujer. Furious she replied that she was not that kind of a woman.

Salió á luz la parte que tomó tal espía en el asunto. The part which this rascally spy took in the affair came to light.

b. Tal, when preceded by the indefinite article, means one, a certain:—

Se prendió fuego á la casa de un tal Martin. Fire broke out in the house of one Martin.

c. Tal, joined to its correlative cual, sometimes expresses a comparison, but at other times no such idea is implied:—

El éxito de la empresa ha sido tal cual deseaba.	The success of the undertaking has been such as he desired.
Tal cual vez no viene.	Sometimes he does not come.
Tal cual carga de pan.	A few loads of bread.
Tal para cual.	A Roland for an Oliver (Tit for tat).

131. Tamaño, as great, so great:—

Tamaña resultaría la empresa de hacer frente á las fuerzas de Francia.	The attempt to face the forces of France would be just as great.
--	--

132. Todo, -a, -os, -as, may, for the most part, be treated under two general headings:—

1st. It stands alone unlimited by such words as the definite article or the demonstrative or possessive adjectives, whenever the idea is an indefinite or general concept:—

Todo buen ciudadano lo siente.	Every good citizen regrets it.
En todo caso es muy improbable.	In any case it is very improbable.
Hay intrigas de todo género.	There are all kinds of intrigues.
Todo libro que instruye es buen libro.	Every instructive book is a good book.
Todos piensan como yo.	All think as I do.
Géneros de todas clases y á todos precios.	Goods of all kinds and at all prices.
El león comió todo un carnero.	The lion ate a whole sheep.

2d. Todo is followed by a word limiting its application to a specific concept :—

Quedé en Europa todo el año.	I remained in Europe the whole year.
Pasó conmigo toda la semana.	He passed with me the whole week.
Hé aquí todos mis libros.	Here are all my books.
Salgo á paseo todos los días.	I go out to walk every day.
Da una lección de música todos los viernes.	She takes a music lesson every Friday.
Todo el mundo.	Everybody.

NOTE.— In the plural, whole or entire is never expressed by todo, but by entero. In the singular either may be used :—

Pasa horas enteras asomada á la ventana.	She passes whole hours looking out of the window.
El día entero or todo el día.	The entire day.

a. The neuter todo, except as an adverb, can not stand alone in a sentence, but requires an appositive (generally lo) always to be expressed :—

Me lo ha dicho todo.	He has told me all.
Todo lo que digo es verdad.	All I say is true.

133. Uno, -a, and otro, -a, with their plurals, are used as distributives in various combinations :—

Uno y otro lo hacen.	Both of them do so.
Ni uno ni otro lo dicen.	Neither of them says so.
El uno dice que sí, el otro que no.	The one says yes, the other no.
Uno ú otro ; unos ú otros.	Either of the two ; either of the two sets.

134. Único, solo. The general distinction is that único refers to individuals, where there are no more of their kind, while solo means alone, solitary, without company :—

Mi hijo único está solo en la casa.

Vivir honrado y morir lamentado, estos son sus únicos deseos.

Es el único de su especie.

My only son is alone in the house.

To live honored and to die lamented, these are his only desires.

It is the only one of its kind.

VI

VERBS

135. The Spanish language has all the moods and tenses of the English and some which English does not have. This comes chiefly from the fact that we have almost wholly abandoned the use of the subjunctive. The multiplicity of forms of the Spanish conjugation may seem a little discouraging to the learner at first, but he will soon find that they are very easily acquired, when once he has mastered certain mnemonic rules for the derivation of the various moods and tenses. These will be given when we come to the conjugation of the regular verbs.

a. The English meanings of the Spanish moods and tenses can be given only approximately in the paradigms. This is especially true of the subjunctive, owing, as has already been said, to the almost total lack of this mood in our language. The particular form of the English verb to be used, in translating any given Spanish verb, will depend on the context of the latter and its syntactical relations. Canto, for instance, means I sing, I do sing, I am singing; Cantaba, I sang, I was singing, I did sing, or I used to sing; No creo que venga, I don't think he will come; Es posible que venga, It is possible he may come; No es posible que venga, It is not possible that he will come, etc. The translation given in the paradigms, therefore, must be considered as only one of several that the verb might have according to its connection.

b. As the pronouns yo, I, tú, thou, él, he, ella, she, noso- tros, -as, we, vosotros, -as, you, ellos, m., they, ellas, f., they, are usually omitted, except where emphasis or clearness requires them to be expressed, they are only given in the present tenses. They can be easily supplied with the other tenses when needed. On the other hand, usted (V.), you and pl. ustedes (VV.), you, being so commonly used will be given.

c. There are two verbs to have, haber and tener, and two verbs to be, ser and estar. Their differences will be explained later.

NOTE.—The imperative of haber is : he tú, haya él, V., hayamos, habed, hayan ellos, VV., but it hardly can be said to be in use. See also 150, NOTE.

¹ Of the first person singular of the imperative of Spanish verbs it should be stated that it occurs very seldom, and being the same as the first person of the subjunctive, it need not be given as a special form. It is used in general statements not addressed to any one as a command, as:—

Ande yo caliente y ríase la gente.

Let me be (go) warm, and people may laugh.

Conserve yo la vida y muera mi enemigo.

Let me preserve my life and let my enemy die.

NOTE.—Verbs are made negative by placing no, or some other negative, before them (see 237), and interrogative by inverting the order of the subject and predicate as in English:—

Creo que no vendrá.	I believe he will not come.
¿ Ha llegado mi hermano?	Has my brother arrived?
Nunca lo aceptaré yo.	I will never accept it.
No se le ocurre jamás.	It never occurs to him.

USES OF haber, tener, ser, estar

137. The principal office of haber is that of an auxiliary to form the compound tenses of other verbs; as illustrated above. The participle in such compounds never changes its form. Other uses are:—

a. As an independent verb, followed by de and an infinitive, to express futurity, duty, obligation:—

He de escribir una carta.	I have to write a letter.
Hemos de salir esta mañana.	We are to go out this morning.
Habría de ser muy docto.	He must have been very learned.
Habrá de cantar.	He will have to sing.

b. The third person singular throughout all moods and tenses is used as an impersonal verb,

i. In expressions of time and some others:—

Sí, le ví no ha mucho tiempo.	Yes, I saw him not long ago.
¿Cuánto ha que vino aquí?	How long ago is it since he came here?
Ha lugar de creerlo.	There is reason for believing so.
Ha menester más brazos.	More hands are needed.

2. With que and an infinitive, to imply a general idea of necessity or obligation. In this and the following impersonal uses, y (there) is added to the present indicative, making hay:—

Eso es lo que hay que notar.

That is what has to be noted.

Habrá que tener presente.

It will be necessary to keep in mind.

3. In the sense of there is, there are:—

Hay cientos de hombres en la calle. There are hundreds of men in the street.

Habrá bastante tiempo.

There would be time enough.

4. In speaking of distances:—

¿Cuánto hay de aquí á Boston? How far is it from here to Boston?

Hay más de treinta millas.

It is more than thirty miles.

c. While haber is no longer used with the general meaning of to hold, to possess, there are certain relics of its former use:—

Consejo habido, anunciamos nuestra política. A council having been held, we announced our policy.

Nuestro pobre amigo (¡ que Dios haya !) Our poor friend (whom may God have !)

Allá se las haya. Let him look to that.

d. In the exclamations hé aquí (here is, are), hé allí (there is, are), hé ahí (there is, are), the grammars usually treat hé as part of haber. Diez, however, derives it from vide (= ve = fe = he). This would seem to be probable from the analogous French words, voici, voilà:—

Hé aquí mi libro ; tómelo. Here is my book ; take it.

Héme aquí ; héle ahí. Here I am ; there he is.

Hélos allí que vienen. There they are, coming.

138. Tener, to hold, to possess, to have, has the following uses:—

1. In its primary meaning:—

Tengo una pluma en la mano.	I hold a pen in my hand.
V. tendrá mañana cuanto quiera.	You will have to-morrow as much as you will want.
No tuvo éxito alguno.	He did not have any success.

2. Idiomatically with certain nouns, where we should use the verb to be and the adjective:—

Tener hambre, to have hunger, hence, to be hungry.

" sed,	" thirst,	" "	" thirsty.
" miedo,	" fear,	" "	" afraid.
" sueño,	" sleep,	" "	" sleepy.
" frío,	" cold,	" "	" cold.
" calor,	" heat,	" "	" warm.
" vergüenza,	" shame,	" "	" ashamed.
" razón,	" reason,	" "	" right.

No tener razón, not to have reason, hence, to be wrong.

3. With que and an infinitive to express duty or obligation:—

Tengo que estudiar mi lección.	I have to study my lesson.
Tuvo que volver á casa.	He had to return home.

NOTE.—Que, however, in such connections, frequently means something, anything:—

¿Tiene V. qué comer?—No, no	Have you anything to eat?
tengo (nada) qué comer.	—No, I have nothing to eat.

4. As an auxiliary to form the compound tenses of transitive verbs, especially in cases where we should put the participle after the object. Unlike haber, the participle agrees with the object in gender and number:—

Tengo escritas dos cartas.
Tiene cumplido su deber.

I have two letters written.
He has done his duty.

But—

He escrito dos cartas.

I have written two letters.

NOTE.—Llevar, to carry, and dejar, to leave (and some others), are also used as auxiliaries, the past participle, as in the case of tener, agreeing with the object:—

Lleva acabada su tarea. He has finished his task.

Dejaron dicho que vendrían esta mañana. They left word they would come this morning.

139. Ser predicates in the subject what is permanent, characteristic, essential, while estar, from the Latin stare (to stand), indicates position, state, condition, what is transitory, changeable, etc. A few sentences will help to make the distinction clear:—

La casa está en la colina.

The house is on the hill.

La casa es alta.

The house is high.

El hierro está caliente.

The iron is hot.

El hierro es duro.

Iron is hard.

La sopa es buena.

The soup is good.

La sopa está fría.

The soup is cold.

Mi hermano es listo.

My brother is clever.

Mi hermano está listo.

My brother is ready.

Juan está malo.

John is (in a bad way) sick.

Juan es malo.

John is wicked, bad.

a. De following estar indicates occupation, para, readiness, and por, futurity:—

El soldado está de servicio.

The soldier is on duty.

Estoy para irme.

I am ready to go.

Está por hacer.

It is yet to be done.

NOTE.—See 146, 147, and 148.

140. It has been seen (135, a) that the Spanish verb may be turned into English by one of several forms, canto meaning: I sing, I do sing, or I am singing. This latter, the progressive form, may be expressed by estar and the gerund:—

Ella está cantando una balada.	She is singing a ballad.
Estuvieron combatiendo toda la noche.	They were fighting the whole night.
Estaré entonces cruzando la mar.	I shall then be crossing the sea.

. a. Venir, to come, and seguir, to follow, to continue, are used somewhat in the same way:—

Todo lo que vengo diciendo es verdad.	All that I have been saying is true.
Hace diez años que viene trabajando en mi casa.	It is now ten years that he has been working in my house.
Sigo aún buscando mi libro.	I am still looking for my book.

See 215, a.

REGULAR VERBS

141. There are three conjugations of regular verbs. The infinitive of the first conjugation ends in -ar, as amar, to love; that of the second, in -er, as temer, to fear; and that of the third, in -ir, as vivir, to live.

When learning a verb, fix in the mind the following parts, which will serve as a mnemonic key to the whole conjugation (see 145-146):—

1. The first person singular of the present indicative.
2. The present infinitive.
3. The first person singular and third person plural of the preterit.
4. The past participle.

ORTHOGRAPHIC CHANGES

143. In the conjugation of some regular, as well as irregular, verbs, it is necessary, before certain terminations, to change the final letters of the stem before adding the personal endings. The Spanish method of spelling requires this, in order to preserve, throughout the conjugation, the consonantal sound which immediately precedes the infinitive ending. All such verbs may be reduced to the following ten classes. Verbs whose infinitives terminate —

- | | |
|--|-----------|
| 1. in car change c to qu | } |
| 2. in gar insert u | |
| 3. in guar change u to ü | |
| 4. in zar " z to c | |
| 5. in cer preceded by a consonant change c to z | before e. |
| 6. in cir " " " " c to z | |
| 7. in ger change g to j | |
| 8. in gir " g to j | |
| 9. in quir " qu to c | |
| 10. in quir drop u | |

These changes can occur only in the first person singular of the present indicative and preterit, in the present subjunctive, and in the imperative.

EXAMPLES

Tocar, touch: Pres. Sub. toque, toques, etc. Pret. toqué, toaste, etc.

Pagar, pay: Pres. Sub. pague, pagues, etc. Pret. pagué, pagaste, etc.

Averiguar, investigate: Pres. Sub. averigüe, averigües, etc. Pret. averigüé, averiguaste, etc.

Forzar, force: Pres. Sub. fuerce, fuerces, etc. Pret. forcé, forzaste, etc.

Vencer, conquer: Pres. Ind. venzo, vences, etc. Pres. Sub. venza, venzas, etc.

Resarcir, compensate: Pres. Ind. resarzo, resarces, etc. Pres. Sub. resarza, resarzas, etc.

Coger, gather: Pres. Ind. cojo, cogen, etc. Pres. Sub. coja, cojas, etc.

Dirigir, direct: Pres. Ind. dirijo, diriges, etc. Pres. Sub. dirija, dirijas, etc.

Delinuir, transgress: Pres. Ind. delinco, delinques, etc. Pres. Sub. delinca, delincas, etc.

Distinguir, distinguish: Pres. Ind. distingo, distingues, etc. Pres. Sub. distinga, distingas, etc.

a. Verbs in -cer and -cir (5 and 6), when these endings are preceded by a vowel, insert z before c, when c comes before a or o:—

Conozco, conocer, conocí, conocido, to know.

Pres. Ind. conozc-o, conozes, conoce, conocemos, conocéis, conocen.

Pres. Sub. conozc-a, conozcas, conozca, conozcamos, conozcáis, conozcan.

Imperat. (conozc-a) conoce, conozca, conozcamos, conoced, conozcan.

Luzco, lucir, lucí, lucido, to shine, display.

Pres. Ind. lutzc-o, luces, luce, lucimos, lucís, lucen.

Pres. Sub. lutzc-a, luzcas, luzca, luzcamos, luzcáis, luzcan.

Imperat. (lutzc-a), luce, luzca, luzcamos, lucid, luzcan.

Except decir, -ducir, and hacer and their compounds, all of which are provided for elsewhere, the verbs of the above class are regular in their other tenses.

Except also mecer, to rock, empecer, to injure, cocer, to boil, to bake, and escocer, to smart, which follow class 5, above.

b. There is a considerable number of verbs in iar and uar, which receive the tonic accent on the i and u before all one-syllable endings. This accent must then be marked: e.g. guío, I guide, continúa, he continues, telegrafian, they telegraph, etc. But as there are many exceptions, these verbs have to be learned by practice.

c. When preceded by j, ll, ñ, the diphthongs ie and io, of verb-endings, lose the i:—

Decir, to say: pret. 3d. pl dijeron (not dijieron).

Imp. Sub. 1. dijera, 2. dijese, fut. sub. dijere.

Bullir, to boil: gerund bullendo (not bulliendo).

Pret. bulló, bulleron (not bullió, bullieron).

Imp. Sub. 1. bullera, 2. bullese, fut. sub. bullere.

Bruñir, to burnish; gerund bruñendo (not bruñiendo).

Pret. bruñó, bruñeron (not bruñió, bruñieron).

Imp. Sub. 1. bruñera, 2. bruñese, fut. sub. bruñere.

d. It is a principle of the Spanish vowel-system that i, at the beginning of a word and followed by a vowel, or in the middle of a word between two vowels, unless in this case it bears the syllabic accent, is changed to y as in year, i.e. is consonantized. It will be particularly helpful to remember this in conjugating Spanish verbs:—

Ir, to go: gerund yendo (not iendo).

Leer, to read: gerund leyendo (not leiendo).

Pret. leyó, leyeron (not leió, leieron).

Imp. Sub. 1. leyera, 2. leyese, fut. sub. leyere.

Huir, to flee: gerund huyendo (not huiendo).

Pret. huyó, huyeron (not huió, huieron).

Imp. Sub. 1. huyera, 2. huyese, fut. sub. huyere.

MEMORY-AIDS TO LEARNING THE CONJUGATIONS

144. A comparison of the second and third conjugations shows that the terminations of the third are the same as those of the second, except in the first and second persons plural of the present indicative and in the second person plural of the imperative. These have been printed in heavy type to attract attention.

145. The following synopsis will show that it is possible, by a small effort of memory, to grasp the whole machinery of the Spanish verb-system. This scheme, once thoroughly mastered, will greatly aid in learning both the regular and irregular verbs, as the exceptions are confined to certain irregular verbs of such frequent use that they are soon acquired. The parts in parenthesis are to be dropped, leaving the stem, which is to be added to the various endings that follow.

FORMATION OF TENSES

a. The present indicative, first person sing. forms:—

The pres. subj. { am-(o) — am-e, es, e, emos, éis, en.
 tem-(o) — tem-a, as, a, amos, áis, an.
 viv-(o) — viv-a, as, a, amos, áis, an.

Six exceptions.

b. The infinitive forms:—

1. Gerund { am-(ar) — am-ando.
 tem-(er) — tem-iendo.
 viv-(ir) — viv-iendo.

Twenty-three exceptions.

2. P. Part. { am-(ar) — am-ado.
 tem-(er) — tem-ido.
 viv-(ir) — viv-ido.

About a dozen exceptions.

3. Imp. Ind. { am-(ar) — am-aba, abas, aba, ábamos, abais, aban.
 tem-(er) — tem-ía, ías, ía, íamos, íais, ían.
 viv-(ir) — viv-ía, ías, ía, íamos, íais, ían.

Only three exceptions: ser, era, ver, veía, ir, iba.

4. Fut. { amar-é, ás, á, emos, éis, án.
temer-é, ás, á, emos, éis, án.
vivir-é, ás, á, emos, éis, án.

5. Cond. { amar-ía, ías, ía, íamos, íais, ían.
temer-ía, ías, ía, íamos, íais, ían.
vivir-ía, ías, ía, íamos, íais, ían.

Twelve exceptions for the future and conditional.

Observe that the endings for all three conjugations are the same.*

6. Imperative 2d sing. and pl. { am-(ar) — am-a, am-ad.
tem-(er) — tem-e, tem-ed.
viv-(ir) — viv-e, viv-id.

Twelve exceptions for the 2d sing. The other parts of the imperative are identical with the corresponding persons of the present subjunctive.

c. The preterit third person plural forms the imperfect subjunctive, first and second forms, and the future subjunctive:—

(amé)

ama-(ron) { ama-ra, ras, ra, amá-ramos, ama-rais, ran.
ama-se, ses, se, amá-semos, ama-seis, sen.
ama-re, res, re, amá-remos, ama-reis, ren.

* This comes from the fact that the future and conditional are, strictly speaking, compound tenses, being formed from the infinitive and the present and imperfect indicative of haber: he, has, ha, etc., and habia, habias, habia, etc., contracted to hía, hias, hia, etc., the h being finally dropped when the two words were run together. In the older books the parts will be found separated:—

Contarle he de dónde la risa procedió.

— Lazarillo de Tormes.

Responderles hía yo, etc.

— Don Quijote.

I shall tell you from whence the laugh proceeded.

I would reply to them, etc.

(temí)		temie-ra, ras, ra, temié-ramos, temie-rais, ran.
temie-(ron)	{	temie-se, ses, se, temié-semos, temie-seis, sen.
		temie-re, res, re, temié-remos, temie-reis, ren.
(vivi)		vivie-ra, ras, ra, vivié-ramos, vivie-rais, ran.
vivie-(ron)	{	vivie-se, ses, se, vivié-semos, vivie-seis, sen.
		vivie-re, res, re, vivié-remos, vivie-reis, ren.

Note that the terminations of these three tenses in all three conjugations are the same throughout. The third person plural is taken as a stem, because it is the only form which furnishes no exceptions either for regular or irregular verbs.

d. The past participle, with the simple tenses of haber, forms all the compound tenses:—

Perf.	he	{
Plup.	había
P. Ant.	hube
F. Perf.	habré
Con. Perf.	habría
Perf. Sub.	haya
1. Plup. Sub.	hubiera
2. Plup. Sub.	hubiese
F. Perf. Sub.	hubiere
		amado, temido, vivido.

NOTE.—While haber is the usual auxiliary for both transitive and intransitive verbs, ser is occasionally found with some verbs of motion:—

“Mi amado era ya ido, ya había pasado.”

My beloved was already gone, had already passed.

“Diez y seis días eran pasados cuando volví á Madrid por última vez.”

Sixteen days had passed when I returned to Madrid for the last time.

“Son venidos á tan extremo infuntunio que han perdido ya la defensa que aun á los animales brutos es otorgado.”

They have come to such extreme misery that they have already lost the shelter which is accorded even to beasts.

PASSIVE VOICE

146. Active transitive verbs, as in English, admit of a passive voice, which is formed by means of the verb ser, in all its moods and tenses, and the past participle of the verb to be conjugated. This past participle, but not the past participle of ser, agrees in gender and number with the subject. As ser has already been conjugated and is supposed to be known by this time, it is not deemed necessary to give the full conjugation of all the tenses.

PASSIVE CONSTRUCTIONS

147. While the passive is a well-recognized principle of Spanish grammar, its use is extremely restricted as compared with the English passive. As a substitute we may employ the active and say, for instance, Mis padres me aman, My parents love me, instead of Yo soy amado de mis padres, I am loved by my parents. Another and more common substitute is the reflexive verb, which will be treated further on. See 154 and following sections.

By is rendered by por, if the action is an outward, visible one, and preferably by de, although por may be used, when the action of the verb concerns the faculties of the mind and heart, as, to love, hate, fear, esteem, honor, etc.:—

El perro es conducido por el boy. The dog is led by the boy.
muchacho.

El discípulo ha sido castigado The pupil has been punished por el maestro. by the teacher.

El mundo fué hecho por Dios. The world was made by God.

Ella era amada de todos por su She was loved by all for her bondad. goodness.

V. es estimado de (por) todo el You are esteemed by every-mundo. body.

148. When andar, ir, to go, and quedar, to remain, are substituted for ser, they not infrequently imply a continuous, permanent, or definite action, while estar (see 139) expresses a state, condition, etc.:—

Ande yo caliente, y riase la gente. Let me be (go) warm, and people may laugh.

Todo va envuelto con cuidado. Everything is (goes) carefully wrapped up.

Ahora quedo satisfecho. Now I am satisfied.
Quedóse concluido el asunto. The affair was definitely settled.

Está agitada el agua.	The water is agitated.
Mi hermana está casada en Nueva York.	My sister is married (and lives) in New York.

NOTE — A few other verbs are similarly constructed, such as : continuar, to continue, hallarse (encontrarse), to find oneself, verse, to see oneself, sentirse, to feel.

REFLEXIVE VERBS

149. Generally speaking, a reflexive verb may be said to be one whose action is turned or reflected back upon a pronoun which represents the same person or thing as the subject. This pronoun may be either the direct or indirect object; but the verb need not necessarily be transitive to admit of the reflexive form. In fact, this species of expression is so very common in Spanish, that almost any verb, whatever its nature, may be conjugated reflexively. Aside from the addition of the reflexive pronouns, the conjugation differs in no way from other verbs, and the conjugation of a model verb, through all moods and tenses, will not be requisite. The reflexive nature of the verb will not always appear in the English rendering. For instance : Me alabo, I praise myself, Se lisonjea, He flatters himself; but Me marcho, I am going (away), Nos levantamos, We rise.

a. Note the suppression, in the imperative, of the s of the first person plural, and the d of the second person plural, when the pronoun is attached to the end of the verb : portémonos for portémosnos, let us behave ourselves, and portaos for portados, behave yourselves. The only exception is idos from irse, to go away.

REMARK. — The accent has to be marked in verbs of the 3d conjugation : vestíos, dress yourselves.

150.

MODEL VERB

Infinitive : portarse, to behave oneself.

Gerund : portándose, behaving oneself.

Indicative—PRESENT

I behave myself, etc.

me porto te portas
V. se porta se porta nos portamos os portáis
VV. se portan
se portan

Subjunctive—PRESENT

I may behave myself, etc.

me porte
te portes
V. se porte
se porte nos portemos os portéis
VV. se porten
se porten

Imperative*a. Affirmative*

pórtate, behave (thou) pórtese V., behave (you)
pórtense, let him behave portémonos, let us behave

portaos, behave (ye) pórtense VV., behave (you)
pórtense, let them behave

Negative

no te portes, behave (thou) not no se porte V., behave not no se porte, let him not behave no nos portemos, let us not behave no os portéis, behave (ye) not no se porten VV., behave not no se porten, let them not behave

Note that, in the affirmative, the reflexive pronouns follow and are attached to the verb, while, in the negative, they precede ; also that the negative forms of the 2d person singular and plural (familiar address) differ from the affirmative. This is true of the imperative of all verbs, that is, the affirmative forms can not be used with a negative ; but the corresponding persons of the present subjunctive must be substituted therefor.

See 59 to 63 for full explanation of the position of all pronouns.

SYNOPSIS OF OTHER FORMS

b.	Indicative	Subjunctive
Imp. me portaba		Imp. 1. me portara
Pret. me porté		Imp. 2. me portase
Fut. me portaré		Fut. me portare
Cond. me portaría		Perf. me haya portado
Perf. me he portado		Plup. 1. me hubiera portado
Plup. me había portado		Plup. 2. me hubiese portado
P. Ant. me hube portado		Fut. Perf. me hubiere portado
Fut. Perf. me habré portado		Cond. Perf. me habría portado
Inf. haberse portado		Gerund. habiéndose portado

151. Emphasis is secured for the reflexive pronoun by using the corresponding prepositional forms of the pronoun and mismo or propio (see 52 and 53) :—

Me felicito á mí mismo.	I congratulate myself.
V. se engaña á sí mismo.	You deceive yourself.
Ella se figura á sí misma.	She imagines (to herself).
Nos armamos á nosotros mismos.	We arm ourselves.
VV. se lisonjean á sí mismas.	You flatter yourselves.

a. This form of construction is, of course, only possible, where the reflexive verb is, of itself, transitive, and hence capable of case-government. Should this not be so, mismo must go with the subject-pronoun :—

Me voy yo mismo.	I am going away myself.
Marchémonos nosotros mismos.	Let's be off ourselves.
Ella misma se arrepiente.	She herself repents.

RECIPROCAL VERBS

152. Certain reflexive verbs represent two or more persons, or things, as mutually acting upon each other. In such cases, instead of mismos, el uno . . . el otro or uno . . . otro may be used for emphasis, the first of the pair being syntactically nominative, the second, governed by a preposition :—

Nos felicitamos el uno al otro.	We congratulate each other.
VV. se acercan los unos á los otros.	You approach one another.
Se aman unas á otras.	They love one another.
Se chancean los unos con los otros.	They joke with one another.
Se ríen el uno del otro.	They laugh at each other.
El hombre y la mujer se ayudan el uno al otro.	Man and woman are mutually helpful to each other.

OTHER REFLEXIVE CONSTRUCTIONS

153. An occasional reflexive construction occurs, in which the agent is represented by a pronoun in the dative case and the verb is conjugated reflexively in the third person :—

Se le creyó todo perdido.	He (they) thought he had lost everything.
Se me ha olvidado el libro.	I have forgotten the book.
Se les figura que V. no vendrá.	They imagine you will not come.

154. When serving as a substitute for the passive, the reflexive may be employed —

a. To avoid a direct personal construction :—

Se me ha enterado ya.	They have already told me.
No se le imputa tal cosa.	We do not attribute to him any such thing.
Se nos engaña.	They or you are deceiving us.
Se me pidió una limosna.	Some one asked alms of me.
Se me concede más tiempo.	I am granted more time.

b. On signs and in public notices and other general statements :—

Se componen zapatos en seguida.	Shoes mended while you wait.
Aquí se habla español.	Spanish spoken here.
No se regatea en nuestra casa.	You don't have to drive bargains in our house (we have but one price).
En aquella fonda se come bien.	In that hotel they keep a good table.

c. As a true passive in speaking of things and of such actions as animate beings can not perform for themselves :—

Esa novela se escribió por Juan Valera.	That novel was written by Juan Valera.
Eso se cree de todo el mundo.	That is believed by everybody.
La ropa sucia se debe lavar en casa.	Dirty linen ought to be washed at home.
Se venden caballos á precios baratísimos.	Horses sold at very low prices.

NOTE.— But whenever a wrong meaning would ensue, the verb must be conjugated impersonally and the subject represented by a pronoun or noun in the dative, usually by both, when the noun is necessarily expressed :—

Á Juan se le preguntó.	John was asked.
Al caballo se le arrojará al agua.	The horse will be thrown into the water.
Se les mató en el acto.	They were killed at once.
No se les puede creer.	They can not be believed.
But —
Juan se preguntó.	John asked himself.
El caballo se arrojará al agua.	The horse will throw himself into the water.
Se mataron en el acto.	They killed each other at once.
No se pueden creer.	They can not believe each other.

155. There is a certain- use of the reflexive pronoun, which is evidently an echo of the Latin dative of advantage and disadvantage:—

Me lo bebí todo.	I drank it all (to myself).
Se come las uvas con gran sabor.	He eats the grapes with much relish.
Se los tragaron uno á uno.	They swallowed them down one by one.
Me hallé una buena colocación.	I found me a good position.

156. Intransitive verbs used impersonally take the reflexive pronoun to limit their meaning. From this has doubtless come the custom of applying the reflexive to such verbs conjugated personally:—

Se vive bien en esta ciudad.	Living is pleasant in this city.
Por aquí se va á la entrada.	This is the way to the entrance.
No se entra por esta puerta.	No entrance allowed by this door.
Estémonos bajo el toldo.	Let's stand under the awning.
“Érase un hombre á una nariz pegado.”	“There was (once) a man attached to a nose.”
Me quedaré aquí por dos días.	I shall remain here for two days.

157. While the use or omission of the reflexive with some intransitive verbs makes no appreciable difference in meaning, with others it does. Such are:—

Ir, to go.	Irse, to go away.
Marchar, to march.	Marcharse, to go away.
Venir, to come.	Venirse, to come along.
Volar, to fly.	Volarse, to fly away.
Dormir, to sleep.	Dormirse, to go to sleep.
Morir, to die.	Morirse, to be dying.

IMPERSONAL VERBS

158. Strictly defined, an impersonal verb should be one which has no personal agent, but this definition must not be taken too literally. Where not susceptible of a personal construction, these verbs are confined to the infinitive, the gerund, and the third person singular of the various moods and tenses. The most generally impersonal are those which indicate the workings of the laws of nature, but even in their case, Dios, God, and some few other words are, at times, employed as personal subjects. The most common of this class only will be here given:—

Infinitive	Pres. Ind.	Pres. Sub.
Alborear, to dawn.	alborea.	alboree.
Amanecer, to dawn.	amanece.	amanezca.
Anochecer, to become night.	anochece.	anochezca.
Escampar, to stop raining.	escampa.	escampe.
Granizar, to hail.	graniza.	granice.
Helar, to freeze.	hiela.	hiele.
Deshelar, to thaw.	deshiela.	deshiele.
Llover, to rain.	llueve.	llueva.
Lloviznar, to drizzle.	llovizna.	llovizne.
Never, to snow.	nieva.	nieve.
Tronar, to thunder.	truena.	truene.
Relampaguear, to lighten.	relampaguea.	relampaguee.

a. The other tenses of the above are all regular and follow the conjugations indicated by their respective infinitive endings. Amanecer and anoecer are used personally in the sense of to arrive at dawn and to arrive at nightfall:—

Amanecí en Madrid y anochecí en Segovia.	I arrived in Madrid at dawn and in Segovia at nightfall.
Amanecerán mejores días.	Better days will dawn.

b. Hacer, to do, to make (conjugated in 197), is used impersonally in numerous combinations in speaking of the weather and time :—

Hace calor, frío.	It is hot, cold.
Hacía bien, mal tiempo.	It was good, bad weather.
Hizo viento, sol, luna.	It was windy, the sun shone, there was moonlight.
Hará fresco en la sombra.	It will be cool in the shade.
Hace un año, dos meses, ocho días, un siglo.	A year, two months, eight days, a century ago.

See 137, b, for haber used impersonally.

159. The following are used both personally and impersonally but, from their nature, usually in the third person :—

Acaecer,	Constar, to be evident.
Acontecer,	Convenir, to suit, be proper.
Suceder,	Importar, to concern, be important.
Bastar, to suffice.	Parecer, to seem, appear.

160. There are numerous other expressions which occur impersonally. Some of the more important will be seen in the following :—

Más vale tarde que nunca.	It is better late than never.
Más valdría or mejor sería que viniera.	It would be better that he came.
Es preciso, necesario.	It is necessary.
Es verdad, mentira.	It is true, false.
¿Qué hora es? or ¿qué horas son?	What time, what o'clock is it?
Es la una, son las dos, etc.	It is one o'clock, it is two o'clock, etc.
Se dice, diz, dicen.	It is said, they say.

Note, in the last line, the impersonal use of the third person plural: dicen. This construction occurs with other verbs and is exactly analogous to our English indefinite they say, they think, etc.

IRREGULAR VERBS

161. In the broadest sense, an irregular verb is one whose conjugation does not agree in every particular with one of the three model verbs given in 142. So defined, there are over eight hundred irregular verbs in Spanish, and if each one had to be learned individually, it would be a formidable task; but it is found that all but about thirty may be arranged in certain classes, in which the variation from the model will be regular and constant. Many of these variations are mere letter-changes made to conform to the Spanish method of spelling. These have been fully explained in 143, and should now be reviewed and mastered. The rules for the formation of tenses, set forth in 145, should also be learned.

162. In the development of Spanish words from Latin, it is found that ɛ breaks up into ie and ɔ into ue whenever the tonic (syllabic) accent falls on these letters: —

LATIN	SPANISH
Dens (dentis) , tooth.	diente.
Certus , certain.	cierto.
Nego , I deny.	niego.
Fons (fontis) , fountain.	fuente.
Bonus , good.	bueno.
Dormio , I sleep.	duermo.

It is of the highest importance to keep this simple principle in mind when learning Spanish irregular verbs, as the greater number have no other irregularities. It will be seen that the vowel changes under the influence of the tonic accent, but as soon as this accent shifts to another syllable, the original vowel is restored. This vowel-change is indicated by heavy type, which is also used to call attention to the stems from which the derivative tenses are formed (see 145).

NOTE.—As usted and ustedes take always the same form as the third person: usted, él ama, ustedes, ellos aman, only one form for both will be given in conjugating the irregular verbs.

163. All verbs referrible to any one of the following classes have uniformly the same irregularities that appear in the model-verb of their respective classes, and no others, where none are specified. As the imperative of the first person singular occurs very seldom, and its existence is even denied by some grammarians, it will not be given in the irregular verbs.

CLASS I

164. Pienso, pensar, pensé, pensado, to think.

Pres. Ind. piens-o, piensas, piensa, pensamos, pensáis, piensan.

Pres. Sub. piens-e, pienses, piense, pensemos, penséis, piensen.

Imperat. piensa, piense, pensemos, pensad, piensen.

REGULAR TENSES

Imperf. pensaba, -abas, -aba, pensábamos, pensabais, pensaban.

Fut. pensar-é, -ás, -á, pensaremos, pensaréis, pensarán.

Cond. pensar-ía, -ías, -ía, pensariámos, pensaríais, pensarían.

Gerund. pensando.

Pret. pensé, pensaste, pensó, pensamos, pensasteis, pensa-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. pensa-ra, -ras, -ra, pensáramos, pensareis, pensarán.

2. Imp. Sub. pensa-se, -ses, -se, pensásemos, pensaseis, pensasen.

Fut. Sub. pensa-re, -res, -re, pensáremos, pensareis, pensaren.

165. Error, to err, miss, falls under Class I, but is also subject to the orthographic law laid down in 143, d. Hence:—

Pres. Ind. yerr-o, yerras, yerra, erramos, erráis, yerran.

Pres. Sub. yerr-e, yerres, yerre, erremos, erréis, yerren.

Imperat. yerra, yerre, erremos, errad, yerren.

Other tenses like pensar above.

166. Entiendo, entender, entendí, entendido, to understand.

Pres. Ind. entiend-o, entiendes, entiende, entendemos, -éis, entienden.

Pres. Sub. entiend-a, -as, -a, entendamos, entendáis, entiendan.

Cond. entender-ía, -ías, -ía, entenderíamos, entenderíais, entenderían.

Gerund. entendiendo.

Pret. entendí, -iste, -ió, entendimos, entendisteis, entendie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. entendie-ra, -ras, -ra, entendiéramos, entendierais, entendieran.

2. Imp. Sub. entendie-se, -ses, -se, entendiésemos, entendieseis, entendiesen.

Fut. Sub. entendie-re, -res, -re, entendiéremos, entendiereis, entendieren.

CLASS II

167. Cuento, contar, conté, contado, to count, relate.

Pres. Ind. cuent-o, cuentas, cuenta, contamos, contáis, cuentan.

Pres. Sub. cuent-e, cuentes, cuente, contemos, contéis, cuenten.

Imperat. cuenta, cuente, contemos, contad, cuenten.

REGULAR TENSES

Imperf. contaba, -abas, -aba, contábamos, contabais, contaban.

Fut. contar-é, -ás, -á, contaremos, contaréis, contarán.

Cond. contar-ía, -ías, -ía, contaríamos, contaríais, contarián.

Gerund. contando.

Pret. cont-é, -aste, -ó, contamos, contasteis, conta-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. conta-ra, -ras, -ra, contáramos, contaraís, contaran.

2. Imp. Sub. conta-se, -ses, -se, contásemos, contaseis, contasen.

Fut. Sub. conta-re, -res, -re, contáremos, contareis, contaren.

a. When g precedes the tonic o in verbs of this class, a diæresis must be placed over the u, when o becomes ue. In all other respects they are conjugated like contar:—

Degüello, degollar, degollé, degollado, to behead.

Pres. Ind. degüell-o, -üellas, -üella, degollamos, -áis, degüellan.

Pres. Sub. degüell-e, -es, -e, degollemos, degolléis, degüellen.

Imperat. degüella, -üelle, degollemos, degollad, degüellen.

168. The u of jugar becomes ue analogously to the o of contar, and ḡ changes to gu before e in accordance with 143, 2. Hence:—

Juego, jugar, jugué, jugado, to play.

Pres. Ind. jueg-o, juegas, juega, jugamos, jugáis, juegan.

Pres. Sub. juegu-e, juegues, juegue, juguemos, juguéis, jueguen.

Imperat. juega, juegue, juguemos, jugad, jueguen.

Pret. jugué, jugaste, jugó, jugamos, -asteis, jugaron.

Other tenses like contar above.

169. Desosar, to bone, and desovar, to spawn, take h before ue.

Pres. Ind. deshues-o, -as, -a, desosamos, -áis, deshuesan.

Pres. Sub. deshues-e, -es, -e, desosemos, -éis, deshuesen.

Imperat. desues-a, -e, desosemos, desosad, deshuesen.

And so desovar. Other tenses regular.

170. Muerdo, morder, mordí, mordido, to bite.Pres. Ind. muerd-o, -es, -e, mordemos, mordéis, muerden.Pres. Sub. muerd-a, -as, -a, mordamos, mordáis, muerdan.Imperat. muerd-e, muerda, mordamos, morded, muerdan.

Sub.* mordie-ra, -ras, -ra, mordiéramos, mordierais, mor-dieran.2. Imp. Sub. mordie-se, -ses, -se, mordiésemos, mordieseis, mor-diesen.Fut. Sub. mordie-re, -res, -re, mordiéremos, mordiereis, mordieren.171. Vuelvo, volver, volví, vuelto, to return.Absuelvo, absolver, absolví, absuelto, to absolve.Disuelvo, disolver, disolví, disuelto, to dissolve.Resuelvo, resolver, resolví, resuelto, to resolve.

All verbs in -olver change their stem-vowels like morder, and have the past participle in -uelto, but are otherwise regular in their class.

172. Tonic o of oler changes to hue. The addition of this h is a device dating from the time when it was necessary to distinguish the initial vowel u from the consonant u (v).Huelo, oler, olí, oledo, to smell.Pres. Ind. huel-o, hueles, huele, olemos, oléis, huelen.Pres. Sub. huel-a, huelas, huela, olamos, oláis, huelan.Imperat. huele, huela, olamos, oled, huelan.

Olia, oleré, olería, olí, oliera, oliese, oliere.

Gerund. oliendo.

CLASS III

173. Verbs of this class belong exclusively to the third conjugation. They not only break up the tonic vowels e and o into ie and ue respectively, but substitute i and u for them in the first and second persons plural of the subjunctive and first person plural of the imperative as well as in third person singular and plural of the preterit and the tenses derived from the latter.

174. Siento, sentir, sentí, sentido, to feel, regret.

Pres. Ind. sient-o, sientes, siente, sentimos, sentís, sienten.

Pres. Sub. sient-a, sientas, sienta, sintamos, sintáis, sientan.

Imperat. siente, sienta, sintamos, sentid, sientan.

Imperf. sentia, -ías, -ía, sentíamos, sentíais, sentían.

Fut. sentir-é, -ás, -á, sentiremos, sentiréis, sentirán.

Cond. sentir-ia, -ías, -ía, sentiríamos, sentiríais, sentirían.

Pret. sentí, -iste, sintió, sentimos, sentisteis, sintie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. sintie-ra, -ras, -ra, sintiéramos, sintierais, sintieran.

2. Imp. Sub. sintie-se, -ses, -se, sintiésemos, sintieseis, sintiesen.

Fut. Sub. sintie-re, -res, -re, sintiéremos, sintiereis, sintieren.

Gerund. sintiendo.

175. *Erguir, to straighten up, to strut with pride, has as a tonic stem either yerg or irg. Elsewhere it follows the conjugation of sentir.*

Yergo, } erguir, ergui, erguido.
Irgo, }
Pres. Ind. yerg-o, yergues, -e, } erguimos, erguís { yerguen.
 irg-o, irgues, -e, } { irguen.

Pres. Sub. yerga, -as, -a, } irgamos, irgáis { yergan.
 irga, -as, -a, } { irgan.

Imperat. yergue, yerga, } irgamos, erguid { yergan.
 irgue, irga, } { irgan.

Pret. erguí, -iste, irguió, erguimos, erguisteis, irguie-ron.

Sub. 1. irguie-ra, 2. irguie-se, Fut. Sub. irguie-re.

Gerund. irguiendo.

176. The present stem-vowel of adquirir, to acquire, and inquirir, to inquire for, changes to ie, when accented, like the e of sentir, but remains intact elsewhere:—

Adquiero, adquirir, adquirí, adquirido.

Inquiero, inquirir, inquirí, inquirido.

Pres. Ind. adquier-o, -es, -e, adquirimos, adquirís, adquieren.

Pres. Sub. adquier-a, -as, -a, adquiramos, adquiráis, adquieran.

Imperat. adquier-e, -a, adquiramos, adquirid, adquieran.

And so inquirir. All other parts regular.

177. Duermo, dormir, dormí, dormido, to sleep.

Pres. Ind. duerm-o, duermes, duerme, dormimos, dormís, duermen.

Pres. Sub. duerm-a, -as, -a, durmamos, durmáis, duerman.

Imperat. duerm-e, duerma, durmamos, dormid, duerman.

Imperf. dormía, -ías, -ía, dormíamos, dormíais, dormían.

Fut. dormir-é, -ás, -á, dormiremos, dormiréis, dormirán.

Cond. dormir-ía, -ías, -ía, dormiríamos, dormiríais, dormirían.

Pret. dormí, -iste, durmió, dormimos, dormisteis, durmie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. durmie-ra, -ras, -ra, durmiéramos, -erais, durmieran.

2. Imp. Sub. durmie-se, -ses, -se, durmiésemos, -eseis, durmiesen.

Fut. Sub. durmie-ré, -res, -re, durmiéremos, -ereis, durmieren.

Gerund. durmiendo.

178. Morir, to die, premorir, to die before another, are conjugated exactly like dormir above, but have the past participles muerto and premuerto.

NOTE.—The past participle muerto is also used with an active signification:—

Fué muerto uno de ellos.

One of them was killed.

El policía ha muerto al ladrón.

The policeman has killed the thief.

179. Pudrir and podrir, to rot, has had a double conjugation based on the two infinitives, but, excepting the past participle podrido, the Spanish Academy recommends that it be conjugated regularly throughout on pudrir.

CLASS IV

180. In the conjugation of verbs of the fourth class the e of the infinitive stem, when accented, becomes i. This change is likewise extended to the unaccented stem-vowel in the third persons singular and plural of the preterit and to the derivative forms of the latter.

181. Pido, pedir, pedí, pedido, to ask for, beg.

Pres. Ind. pid-o, pides, pide, pedimos, pedís, piden.

Pres. Sub. pid-a, pidas, pida, pidamos, pidáis, pidan.

Imperat. pide, pida, pidamos, pedid, pidan.

Imperf. pedía, -ías, -ía, pedíamos, pedíais, pedían.

Fut. pedir-é, -ás, -á, pediremos, pediréis, pedirán.

Cond. pedir-ía, -ías, -ía, pediríamos, pediríais, pedirían.

Pret. pedí, -iste, pidió, pedimos, pedisteis, pidie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. pidie-ra, -ras, -ra, pidiéramos, pidierais, pidieran.

2. Imp. Sub. pidie-se, -ses, -se, pidiésemos, -eseis, pidiesen.

Fut. Sub. pidie-re, -res, -re, pidiéremos, -ereis, pidieren.

Gerund. pidiendo.

182. Verbs of this class terminating in -eir not only change e, when accented, to i, but also lose this i before io and ie of the preterit and its derivatives. The written accent is also necessary to separate certain vowels.

Deslío, desleír, desleí, desleído, to dilute.

Fres. Ind. deslí-o, deslías, deslíe, desleímos, desleís, deslien.

Pres. Sub. deslí-a, -ías, -ía, desliamos, desláis, deslian.

Imperat. deslíe, deslía, desliamos, desleíd, deslian.

Imperf. desleía, desleías, desleía, desleíamos, desleíais, desleían.

Fut. desleir-é, -ás, -á, desleiremos, desleiréis, desleirán.

Cond. desleir-ía, -ías, -ía, desleiríamos, desleiríais, desleirían.

Pret. deslei, desleiste, deslió, desleímos, -ísteis, deslie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. deslie-ra, -ras, -ra, desliéramos, -erais, deslieran.

2. Imp. Sub. deslie-se, -ses, -se, desliésemos, -ieseis, desliesen.

Fut. Sub. deslie-re, -res, -re, desliéremos, -ereis, deslieren.

Gerund. desliendo.

a. Reír is conjugated like desleir, but may retain the i in the preterit stem and its derivatives, and the following i then changes to y, according to rule (143, d):—

Riyó, riyé-ron, riyera, riyese, riyere, riyendo, for rió, etc.

183. The following have two past participles:—

Freír, to fry,	freído and frito.
----------------	-------------------

Refreír, to overfry,	refreído " refrito.
----------------------	---------------------

Sofreír, to underfry,	sofreído " sofrito.
-----------------------	---------------------

CLASS V

184. To the fifth class belong all verbs in -uir (except inmiscirse, to meddle with) and -giíir. Their peculiarity is that, except before i, they retain, in the present stem, the i of the infinitive, and this i, falling between two vowels, is consonantized to y according to the orthographic law stated in 143, d. The diæresis of those in -giíir is dropped as unnecessary before the consonant y.

185. Huyo, huir, huí, huido, to flee, run away.

Pres. Ind. huy-ó, huyes, huye, huimos, huís, huyen.

Pres. Sub. huy-a, -as, -a, huyamos, huyáis, huyan.

Imperat. huye, huya, huyamos, huid, huyan.

Imperf. huía, -ías, -ía, huíamos, huíais, huían.

Fut. huir-é, -ás, -á, huiremos, huiréis, huirán,

Cond. uir-ia, -ias, -ia, uiríamos, uiríais, uirían.

Pret. ui, -iste, uoyó, uimos, uisteis, uoye-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. uoye-ra, -ras, -ra, uoyéramos, -erais, uoyeran.

2. Imp. Sub. uoye-se, -ses, -se, uoyésemos, -eseis, uoyesen.

Fut. Sub. uoye-re, -res, -re, uoyéremos, -ereis, uoyeran.

Gerund. uoyendo.

186. Arguyo, argüir, argüí, argüido, to argue.

Pres. Ind. arguy-o, arguyes, arguye, argúimos, argüís, arguyen.

Pres. Sub. arguy-a, -as, -a, arguyamos, arguyáis, arguyan.

Imperat. arguye, arguya, arguyamos, argüid, arguyan.

Imperf. argúa, -ías, -ía, argúíamos, argúíais, argúfan.

Fut. argüir-é, -ás, -á, argüiremos, argüiréis, argüirán.

Cond. argüir-ia, -ias, -ia, argüiríamos, -íais, argüíran.

Pret. argüí, -iste, arguyó, argúimos, argüisteis, arguye-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. arguye-ra, -ras, -ra, arguyéramos, -erais, arguyeran.

2. Imp. Sub. arguye-se, -ses, -se, arguyésemos, -eseis, arguyesen.

Fut. Sub. arguye-re, -res, -re, arguyéremos, -ereis, arguyeren.

Gerund. arguyendo.

UNCLASSABLE IRREGULAR VERBS

187. A few verbs, while having in some tenses certain irregularities in common, vary in others to such an extent that it becomes impossible to make a logical classification. The best that can be done is to group together those that have similarities of tense-formation in order that these may be easily seen and associated in the mind. As the regular endings have been repeated so often, it is not now deemed necessary to give the conjugation of every verb in full.

188. Ando, andar, anduve, andado, to go, walk.

Pres. Ind. and-o, -as, -a, -amos, -áis, andan.

Pres. Sub. and-e, -es, -e, -emos, -éis, anden.

Imperat. and-a, -e, -emos, andad, anden.

Imperf. and-aba, -abas, -aba, -ábamos, -abais, andaban.

Fut. andaré, Cond. andaría.

Gerund. andando.

Pret. anduve, anduviste, anduvo, -imos, -isteis, anduvie-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. anduvie-ra, -ras, -ra, -éramos, -erais, anduvieran.

2. Imp. Sub. anduvie-se, -ses, -se, -ésemos, -eseis, anduviesen.

Fut. Sub. anduvie-re, -res, -re, -éremos, -ereis, anduvieren.

NOTE.—Andar is to go, to walk, with no definite aim, and hence would be said of animals and things, but is not confined to them. Ir is to go when the aim or limit is named :—

El barco, mi reloj, el caballo, la The ship, my watch, the horse, máquina anda bien. the engine goes well.

But —

Yo voy á casa, á palacio, á la I am going home, to the palace, Pret. dije, dijiste, dijo, dijimos, dijisteis, dije-ron.

Imp. Sub. 1. dijera, 2. dijese, Fut. Sub. dijere.

NOTE.—An antiquated form diz for dice still occurs, in familiar style, in the sense of dicese, it is said, or dicen, they say : Diz que habrá guerra, It is said (they say) there will be war.

196. Like decir are conjugated all its compounds with a few variations. Among these are :—

1st. That they all have the imperative second person singular -dice instead of -di.

2d. That bendecir, to bless, and maldecir, to curse, have, besides bendicho and maldicho, the older participles bendito and maldito; although the latter are only used as adjectives.

3d. That these two, while occasionally occurring with the contracted future of decir, now regularly have the future stem -decir :—

Fut. bendeciré, bendecirás, etc., Cond. bendecir-ía, -ías, etc.

Fut. maldeciré, maldecirás, etc., Cond. maldecir-ía, -ías, etc.

197. Hago, hacer, hice, hecho, to do, make.

Gerund. haciendo.

Hicimos vela or nos hicimos á la vela para San Juan.	We set sail for San Juan.
Hago por acabarlo.	I am trying to finish it.

198. All the compounds of hacer are conjugated like it. Some of them appear with the older form -facer, but this does not cause them to vary from those in -hacer. Satisfacer, to satisfy, alone has the two imperatives satisfaz and satisface tú. The Academy condemns the regular forms satisfaciera, satisfaciese, and satisfaciere, which are sometimes found.

199. Salgo, salir, salí, salido, to go or come out, depart.

Pres. Ind. salg-o, sales, sale, salimos, salís, salen.

Pret. vi, viste, vió, vimos, visteis, vie-ron.

Imp. Sub. 1. viera, 2. viese, Fut. Sub. viere.

Gerund. viendo.

NOTE. — Occasionally in poetry are found the old forms of the imperfect: via, vias, vía, viamos, viás, vian, and the populace still use the old preterits yo vide for vi and él vido for vió.

206. The compounds of ver are inflected like the simple verb. The infinitive was formerly veer, and this form appears in some of the compounds. In that case the conjugation is regular like any other verb in -eer, as leer, creer, poseer, in whose conjugation unaccented i between two vowels becomes y. See 143, d.

Proveo, proveer, proveí, proveído or provisto, to provide.

Pres. Ind. proveo, provees, provee, etc. Imperf. proveía, etc.

Pres. Sub. provea, Imperat. provee, —, —, proveed, —.

Imp. Sub. 1. proveyera, 2. proveyese, Fut. Sub. proveyere.

Gerund. proveyendo.

Idioms with ver.

Eso está de ver.

That is worth seeing.

Eso está por ver.

That remains to be seen.

Á ver or vamos á ver.

Let's see.

Ya se ve.

It is evident, to be sure.

No te verás en ese espejo.

You will not see yourself in that glass, i.e. will not succeed in that way.

Hágamelo ver.

Show it to me.

Yo le haré ver las estrellas.

I will make him see stars.

207. Ducir, to lead, as an independent verb, is no longer in use, but it has several compounds which are conjugated in the present stem according to 143, a. In the preterit the stem changes to duj.

Induzco, inducir, induje, inducido, to induce.

Gerund. induciendo.

Pres. Ind. induzc-o, induces, induce, -imos, -ís, inducen.

Pres. Sub. induzc-a, -as, -a, induzcamos, -áis, induzcan.

Imperat. induce, induzca, -amos, inducid, induzcan.

Imperf. inducía, -ías, -ía, inducíamos, -íais, inducían.

Fut. induciré, Cond. induciría.

Pret. induje, -iste, indujo, -imos, -isteis, induje-ron.

Imp. Sub. 1. indujera, 2. indujese, Fut. Sub. indujere.

NOTE.—For loss of i in preterit stem see 143, c.

208. Placer, to please, is of infrequent use and is confined to the third person, chiefly singular, i.e. as an impersonal verb. Its place is usually taken by other verbs, as agradar, to please, gustar, to suit, please, querer, to wish, etc.

Place, placer, plugo (plació), placido, to please.

Gerund. placiendo.

Pres. Ind. place.

1. Imp. Sub. pluguiera (placiéra).

Pres. Sub. plazca (plegue).

2. Imp. Sub. pluguiese (placiése).

Imperat. plegue (plega).

Fut. Sub. pluguiere (placiere).

Imperf. placía.

Fut. Ind. placerá.

Pret. plugo (plació).

Cond. placería.

NOTE.—Desplacer, to displease, is found in about the same forms, and an occasional plural form of both verbs occurs. The Academy is of opinion that there is no special reason why both should not be conjugated in full like other verbs in -cer, but that as an impersonal the forms above are preferable.

Complacer, to oblige, may be conjugated regularly in full, inserting z before c when this letter comes before a or o:—

Pres. Ind. complazco, complaces, complace, etc.

Pres. Sub. complazca, complazcas, etc.

See 143, a.

209. The following verbs are grouped together, because they perform many of the functions of the English modal auxiliaries. Deber is regular, but is given for convenience.

Puedo, poder, pude, podido, to be able, may, can.

Sé, saber, supe, sabido, to know, can.

Quiero, querer, quise, querido, to wish, will, like.

Debo, deber, debí, debido, to owe, ought, must.

Gerunds: pudiendo, sabiendo, queriendo, debiendo.

210. Poder expresses physical or moral ability, possibility, liability, authority, permission, etc. It is constructed with a dependent infinitive and is variously equivalent to our may, can, might, could; but as these may have different shades of meaning, it is best, when there is any doubt, to resolve them into the equivalent forms of the verb to be able. The following examples will show some of the many uses of poder:—

No puede alcanzarlo.

He can not (is not able to) reach it.

No pueden menos de sentirlo.

They can not help regretting it.

Yo no puedo verle.

I can not bear to look at him,
i.e. I detest him.

Mamá, ¿puedo salir á jugar?

Mama, may I go out to play?

Podemos hacer lo que nos guste.

We can (have the authority to) do whatever we please.

¡Cuidado! puede V. caer al agua.

Look out! you may fall into the water.

Me dijo que podía venir.

He told me he could (was able to) come.

Estaba desalentado; no podía (pudo) más.

He was out of breath; he could (do) no more.

Se consoló como mejor pudo.

He consoled himself as best he could.

Hasta ahora no he podido encontrarlo.

Up to the present I have not been able to find it.

Yo había dicho todo lo que había podido.

I had said all that I could (had been able to) say.

Yo podré hacerlo mañana.

I can (shall be able to) do it to-morrow.

Me aseguró que no podría venir.

He assured me he could not (would not be able to) come.

Se hubiera podido escapar de la cárcel.

He might have escaped from the prison.

Puede haberlo olvidado.
Podría haberlo perdido.
Puede ser, podrá ser.
Eso no se puede.

He may have forgotten it.
He might have lost it.
It may be so.
That can not be (done).

211. Saber expresses mental ability — to know how, as knowledge is power. Hence it may take the place of poder, whenever this idea is present. Its use, however, as an auxiliary is not very extensive, and a few examples will suffice :—

Tiene ya doce años y no sabe todavía escribir.	He is already twelve years old and he can not write yet.
Era muy rico pero no sabía guardar su dinero.	He was very rich, but he did not know how to (could not) keep his money.
Si se me acomete, yo sabré defenderme.	If I am attacked, I shall be able to defend myself.

a. As an independent verb saber means to have such knowledge as comes from the exercise of the mental faculties — subjective knowledge. Hence :—

Yo sé la música, la geografía, la lengua castellana, mi lección, que mi hermano está en Boston, etc.	I know (understand) music, geography, the Spanish language, my lesson, that my brother is in Boston, etc.
---	---

b. Conocer (see 143, a), on the other hand, is to know persons and things by external observation — objective knowledge. Hence :—

Yo conozco al capitán, el libro, el cañino, la casa del maestro, la cortesía, la buena crianza, etc.	I know the captain, the book, the road, the teacher's house, politeness, good breeding, etc.
---	--

212. Querer, with a dependent infinitive, is used instead of the future and conditional forms of the verb, whenever will and would mean willingness, wish, inclination :—

¿Quién quiere prestarme cinco duros?	Who will (is willing to) lend me five dollars?
Le pregunté si quería ir al teatro.	I asked him whether he would (wished to) go to the theater.
No quiso contestar.	He would not (was not willing to) answer.
Dijo que no quería venir.	He said he would not (would not be willing to) come.
Dudo que quiera aceptarlo.	I doubt whether he will (will be willing to) accept it.
Quisiera ir con usted.	I should like to go with you.

a. Querer, when not employed as an auxiliary, means to love, wish, desire, etc. :—

Quiero á mis amigos.	I love my friends.
¿Qué más quiere?	What more does he desire?
¿Qué quiere decir eso?	What does that mean?
Como usted quisiere.	As you will, wish.

213. Deber is constructed through all its moods and tenses with a dependent infinitive, and thus has, in English, various equivalents, the most common of which are should, must, ought; but these, where they are defective in mood and tense forms, have to be supplemented by other verbs which have full inflections, such as to have to, to be obliged, compelled, etc. A careful study of a few examples will enable the student to gain some insight into this rather complex subject :—

Los juramentos ó no deben hacerse ó deben cumplirse.	Oaths either ought not to be made or ought to be kept.
--	--

Él debe ir á la ciudad hoy por la mañana.	He has to go to the city this morning.
Esta escena debía quedar como un secreto entre la muerte y yo.	This scene was to remain as a secret between death and myself.
El general opinó que la campaña debía proseguirse.	The general thought that the campaign ought to go on.
Yo tampoco debí someterme á tal debilidad.	Nor was I to subject myself to such weakness.
Debió de recibir alguna mala nueva.	He must have received some bad news.
Hemos debido hacer frente á un nuevo peligro.	We have been compelled to face a new danger.
No debe de haber llegado todavía.	He can not have arrived yet.
Él había debido venir á caballo á causa del mal estado del camino.	He had been obliged to come on horseback because of the bad condition of the road.
Debían de haber atacado la fortaleza antes de la salida del sol.	They must have attacked the fort before sunrise.
Si usted quiere ir de caza conmigo deberá estar aquí á las cuatro en punto.	If you wish to go hunting with me, you will have to be here at four o'clock sharp.
Usted no debería aceptarlo.	You should not (ought not to) accept it.
El congreso debiera reunirse cuanto antes.	Congress should (ought to) meet as soon as possible.

NOTE.—The preposition de is used as a connective between deber and the infinitive, when it is desired to express a doubt, a supposition, or an inference. The Academy condemns the use of de, when no such idea is present, very properly maintaining that there is a wide difference between Juan debe estar agradecido, John ought to be grateful, and Juan debe de estar agradecido, John must be grateful. Good writers, however, do not always observe the distinction.

a. Deber, in its primary meaning of to owe, takes the direct object:—

Me debe 500 pesos con interés. He owes me five hundred dollars with interest.

Es una obligación que debo á la amistad. It is an obligation which I owe to friendship.

214. Voy, ir, fuí, ido, to go (with a definite limit).

Gerund. yendo.

Pres. Ind. voy, vas, va, vamos, váis van.

Pres. Sub. vay-a, vaya-s, vaya, vayamos, vayaís, vayan.

Imperat. ve, vaya, vamos, id, vayan.

Imperf. iba, ibas, iba, íbamos, ibais, iban.

Fut. ir-é, irás, irá, irémos, iréis, irán.

Cond. ir-ía, irías, iría, iríamos, iríais, irían.

Pret. fuí, fuiste, fué, fuimos, fuisteis, fue-ron.

1. Imp. Sub. fue-ra, -ras, -ra, fuéramos, fuerais, fueran.

2. Imp. Sub. fue-se, -ses, -se, fuésemos, fueseis, fuesen.

Fut. Sub. fue-re, -res, -re, fuéremos, fuereis, fueren.

See 188, Note.

215. Ir á, with a dependent infinitive, is used to express intention or an immediate future:—

Él va á oír misa. He is going to hear mass.

Yo voy á partir para Europa esta tarde. I am going to start for Europe this afternoon.

a. Other idioms with ir.

Eso es lo que voy diciendo. That is just what I am saying.

Á despecho de todo iba pidiendo limosna. In spite of everything he went on asking alms.

Ella no va á medias. She does not do things by halves.

Ya se ve que V. no va sobre seguro. ^{It is evident that you are not} on safe ground.

Ha ido en busca de su amigo.	He has gone in search of his friend.
Vamos á pie, si no hallamos coche.	Let's walk, if we do not find a carriage.
Vaya V. con Dios.	Farewell (God be with you).
Mucho va de Pedro á Pedro.	There is a great difference between men and men.
Por donde fueres, haz como vieres.	If you go to Rome, do as the Romans.

216. Acabar, to complete, finish, when followed by de and an infinitive, means to have just done the action expressed by the infinitive, i.e. it expresses an immediate past:—

Acabo de escribir mi tema.	I have just finished writing my composition.
Acabábamos de comprar la casa.	We had just bought the house.
Acabó de llegar.	He had just arrived.

Note that acabar de, with a negative, may have a different meaning:—

No acabo de maravillarme.	I can not help wondering.

218. Raer, to erase, is, for the most part, superseded by other words. When it occurs, it follows the conjugation of caer (192), but in addition has 1st per. sing. pres. ind. rayo and the present subjunctive: raya, rayas, raya, etc.

219. Roer, to gnaw, has:—

Pres. Ind. roo, roigo, and royo, roes, roe, etc., regular.

Pres. Sub. ro-a, roig-a, and roy-a, -as, -a, etc.

Imperf. roía, roías, roía, etc.

a. Corroer, to corrode, has:—

Pres. Ind. —, —, corroe, —, —, corroen.

Pres. Sub. —, —, corroa, —, —, corroan.

220. The following three verbs occur sporadically in the third persons only:— .

a. Aplacer, to please.

Pres. Ind. —, —, aplaſce, —, —, aplacen.

Imperf. —, —, aplacía, —, —, aplacian.

Note the proverb: Todo lo nuevo aplaſce, all novelty is pleasing.

b. Atañer, to appertain.

Pres. Ind. —, —, atañe, —, —, atañen.

c. Concernir, to concern, pp. concerned.

Pres. Ind. concierne, conciernen, Pres. Sub. concierna, -an.

Imperf. concernía, concernían.

Fut. concernirá, -án, Cond. concerniría, -ían.

Pret. concernió, concernie-ron.

Imp. Sub. 1. concerniera, 2. concerniese, Fut. Sub. concerniere.

Gerund. concerniendo.

221. Soler, to be accustomed, has the present and imperfect indicative and an occasional compound with the past participle solido : —

Pres. Ind. suelo, sueles, suele, solemos, soléis, suelen.

Imperf. solía, solías, solía, solíamos, solíais, solían.

REMARK. — There are other verbs which, though having all their forms, are of infrequent use except in the third persons, but they present no peculiarities which require presentation here.

IRREGULAR PAST PARTICIPLES

222. Four verbs and their compounds have no other irregularities than their past participles : — abrir, open, pp. abierto.

escribir, write, pp. escrito.

cubrir, cover, pp. cubierto.

imprimir, print, impress, pp.
impreso.

a. Two compounds of escribir have two participles : — inscribir, inscribe, pp. inscripto, inscrito.

proscribir, proscribe, pp. proscripto, proscrito.

223. The following have two participles, but are otherwise regular : — oprimir, oppress, pp. oprimido, opreso.

suprimir, suppress, pp. suprimido, supreso.

prender, catch, pp. prendido, preso.

romper, break, pp. rompido, roto.

NOTE.—The regular participles of oprimir and suprimir are preferred, while preso and roto are more frequently used than the regular participles.

224. The grammars usually give a long list of verbs said to have two past participles, one regular and another derived from the Latin; but as the latter are listed in the dictionaries as adjectives or substantives and are only used as such, there seems to be no good reason why a grammar should be encumbered with them. They are, therefore, omitted here.

225. Quite a number of past participles, properly belonging to the dictionaries, have, notwithstanding their passive form, an active meaning. A few examples will suffice:—

agradecer, to thank, pp. agradecido, grateful.

atreverse, to dare, pp. atrevido, daring.

entender, to understand, pp. entendido, intelligent.

fingir, to feign, pp. fingido, dissembling.

OTHER VERBAL IDIOMS

226. Become and its synonym get are variously rendered in Spanish —

1. By ponerse :—

Al oír la noticia se puso muy triste. On hearing the news he became very sad.

LIST OF IRREGULAR VERBS

229. The figures refer to the paragraphs of the grammar and mean that the verbs after which they are placed are conjugated like the ones in the paragraphs indicated.

This list, while not complete, contains all the important verbs,—more, in fact, than the student will ever need to learn. The definitions have been given in the hope of adding some interest, as well as value, to an otherwise dull catalogue of meaningless words. The to of the English infinitive has been omitted as unnecessary.

ADVERBS

230. Adverbs serve to limit or otherwise modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs. They stand before adjectives and adverbs, but as a rule after verbs:—

Muy malo ; bastante bien.	Very bad ; quite well.
El actor trabaja muy bien.	The actor acts very well.
Mi hijo ha estudiado siempre su lección.	My son has always studied his lesson.

Note that, in passive constructions, the adverb stands before the past participle:—

La carta está bien escrita.	The letter is well written.
Está rica y elegantemente vestida.	She is richly and elegantly dressed.
Es muy amado de sus amigos	He is much loved by his friends.

231. Adverbs may be classified as simple or primitive, derivative, and compound.

232. To the first class belong such adverbs as are expressed by a single word:—

Bien, well, mal, badly, peor, worse, temprano, early, claro, clearly, derecho, straight, sólo, only, etc.

233. The so-called derivative adverb is, strictly speaking, a compound of an adjective and mente (manner), and was originally written as two words. To-day, however, it appears as one word, mente bearing the primary tonic accent. The adjective, however, retains its own accent.

a. Adjectives of one termination are added to mente without change:—

Prudentemente, útilmente. Prudently, usefully.

b. The feminine form of adjectives in o is used, because mente is feminine:—

Sabiamente, dichosamente. Wisely, happily.

c. Other adjectives of two terminations do not usually form adverbs with mente, but with de una manera or de un modo:—

De una manera encantadora. Charmingly, in a charming manner.

De un modo holgazán. Idly, in an idle way.

Note, however, traidoramente, treacherously.

234. For euphony, when two or more derivative adverbs follow each other immediately, mente is used with the last adjective only:—

Juan Valera escribe clara, concisa Juan Valera writes clearly, concisely, and elegantly.
y elegantemente.

235. Compound adverbs are simply adverbial phrases formed of two or more words. Some now appear as single words, but their composition is evident:—

Acaso (á + caso), perhaps .	Aprisa (á + prisa), quickly .
Ahora (á + hora), now .	Despacio(de + espacio), slowly .
Apenas (á + penas), scarcely .	Anteayer (ante + ayer), the day before yesterday .
Anoche (á + noche), last night .

a. But most adverbial phrases are written in separate words. Sometimes the article is used, at other times omitted; now the noun is in the singular, now in the plural:—

Á la moda, in style.	En lo sucesivo, in the future.
Á la española, in Spanish style.	Por lo más, at most.
Á la vista, at, in sight.	Por lo menos, at least.
En el acto, instantly.	Por lo pronto, for the present.
De balde, gratis.	De día, by day, de noche, by night.
De buena gana, willingly.	Por consiguiente, consequently.
En seguida, at once.	Por supuesto, of course.
Con orgullo, proudly.
Á gatas, on all fours.	Á solas, alone, in private.
Á sabiendas, knowingly.	De rodillas, on one's knees.
Á ciegas, blindly.	De espaldas, backwards.
Á más andar, at full speed.	Cuanto antes, as soon as possible.
Á más tardar, at latest.	De vez en cuando, from time to time.
Á todo correr, with all speed.	De cuando en cuando, from time to time.
Á más no poder, with might and main.
Poco á poco, little by little.

236. It is convenient to arrange adverbs into groups according to their meaning. Hence we have —

a. Adverbs of place :—

¿ Dónde? where? ¿ Adónde ? whither?
¿ De dónde ? whence? Aquí, here (near me).
Acá, here (towards me).
Arriba, encima, up, above. Abajo, down, below.
Afuera, fuera, outside, without.

Allí, there (distant from both).
Allá, there (in that direction).
De aquí, hence, from here.
De allí, thence, from there.
Atrás, detrás, behind, backward.
En todas partes, } everywhere.
Por todas partes, } everywhere.

Adentro, inside, within.
 Cerca, near, lejos, far.
 Adelante, delante, forward.
 Aquí mismo, in this very place.
 Ahí, there (near or towards you).

En alguna parte, somewhere.
 En otra parte, elsewhere.
 En ninguna parte, nowhere.
 Allí mismo, in that very place.

NOTE.—Donde, where (i.e. without the written accent) is frequently used as a relative (which), referring to things, and may be governed by a preposition:—

La ciudad (en) donde vive.
 El lugar de donde viene.
 El camino por donde venimos está en muy mal estado.

The city in which he lives.
 The village from which he comes.
 The road by which we came is in a very bad condition.

b. Adverbs of time:—

¿Cuándo? when? cuando, when.
 ¿Cuánto tiempo? how long?
 ¿Cuántas veces? how often?
 Hoy, to-day; hoy mismo, this very day.
 Ayer, yesterday; ayer mismo, only yesterday.
 Anteayer, day before yesterday.
 Anoche, last night.
 Anteanoche, night before last.
 En otro tiempo, antes, formerly.
 Después, since; entonces, then.
 Desde entonces, since then.
 Por fin, al fin, at length, at last.
 Ahora, now, at present.
 Ahora mismo, at this very time.
 Hasta ahora, as yet.
 El otro día, the other day.
 Al momento, luego, at once.

Mañana por la mañana, to-morrow morning.
 Mañana por la tarde, to-morrow afternoon.
 Mañana por la noche, to-morrow night.
 Pasado mañana, day after to-morrow.
 Á menudo, often; ya, already.
 Raras veces, seldom.
 Tarde, late; temprano, early.
 Todavía, aun, still, yet.
 Jamás, alguna vez, ever.
 En mi vida (before a verb), never.
 Jamás, nunca, never, ever.
 Nunca jamás, never.
 Siempre, always.
 Siempre que, whenever.

Otra vez, again; á veces, at times. Para siempre, forever.
 Mañana, to-morrow. Por siempre jamás, forever and ever.
 Mañana mismo, to-morrow surely.

Recién, recently (before participles) : La recién casada, the bride.

NOTE.—Some adverbs of place and time are sometimes placed after certain nouns, forming therewith adverbial phrases :—

Puertas afuera, outdoors .	Camino adelante, onward .
Tierra adentro, inland .	Siglos atrás, centuries ago .
Río arriba, upstream .	Años después, years afterwards .
Ciudad abajo, down town .	Meses antes, months before .

c. Adverbs of quantity and degree :—

¿Cómo? how? como, about, as .	Más, more ; por lo más, at most .
¿Cuánto? how much?
Mucho, much ; tanto, so much .	Sólo, solemately, only .
Demasiado, sobrado, too, too much .	Siquier(a), even, at least .
Poco, little ; casi, almost .	Algo, somewhat; muy, very, very much .
Bastante, harto, enough, quite .	Poco más ó menos, about .
Menos, less ; por lo menos, at least .

NOTE.—Muy never stands alone and rarely modifies mucho. Instead of muy mucho, we say muchísimo, very much. Muy precedes a few nouns, but its chief office is to modify the positive degree of adjectives and adverbs; while mucho modifies the comparative degree. When it would stand alone, the former is replaced by mucho :—

Es mucho, muchísimo mejor éste.	This one is much, very much better.
Muy señor mío y amigo.	My dear sir and friend.
Mucho más agradable.	Much more agreeable.
¿Está V. muy malo? Sí, mucho.	Are you very sick? Yes, very.

Es muy hombre de mundo.

He is very much a man of the world.

Deben reflexionar muy mucho lo que dicen.

They ought to consider very thoroughly what they say.

d. Adverbs of manner :—

Bien, well; mal, badly.

Alto, en alta voz, aloud.

Así, so; tan, so.

Mejor, better; peor, worse.

Bajo, en voz baja, low, in a low tone.

Lo mejor posible, as well as possible.

And many adverbs in mente.

e. Adverbs of affirmation and negation :—

Sí, yes; no, no, not.

Ni aun ; ni siquiera, not even.

Que sí, so; que no, not.

Ni . . . tampoco ; tampoco, nor

Sí tal ; sí que, of course.

. . . either.

Cierto, por cierto, certainly.

Sin duda, undoubtedly; nada, by no means.

Acaso ; tal vez ; quizá, } perhaps.
quizás ; puede ser, }

De ningún modo, by no means.

Ya ya, quite so, very true.

No . . . del todo, not wholly.

Ni . . . ni, neither . . . nor.

Claro ; vaya, of course.

Ya no, no more; ya que, now that, since.

Justo, just so; hasta, even.

Jamás, never.

237. Position of Negatives.—All negatives as such stand before the word to be negatived, or alone, the verb being understood. Any of them, however, except no, may follow the verb, when the sentence will be affirmative, unless no is used. The following examples will make clear the usage:—

¿Qué sabe V. de nuevo?—Nada.

What do you know new?
Nothing.

Nada sabemos en absoluto.

We know absolutely nothing.

Jamás lo hubiera hecho yo.

I would never have done it.

¿Ha estado V. alguna vez en París?—Nunca (jamás).

Have you ever been in Paris?
—Never.

Yo no creo nunca lo que él me dice.— Ni yo tampoco.	I never believe what he tells me.— Nor do I either.
En no lejano porvenir.	In the not distant future.
En mi vida he oído mentira más gorda.	Never in my life have I heard a bigger lie.
¿ Tiene V. mi lápiz y mi papel? — Ni el uno ni el otro.	Have you my pencil and paper? — Neither the one nor the other.
Ni una vez siquiera vino á mi casa.	Not even a single time did he come to my house.
Si se me paga siquiera la mitad, estoy contento.	If I am paid even the half, I shall be content.
Me abandonó sin decirme jamás por qué.	He abandoned me without ever telling me why.
Ella está más bonita que nunca.	She is prettier than ever.
Creo que sí ; creo que no.	I think so ; I think not.
Eso sí que no.	Not that by any means.

NOTE.— No may be used redundantly in comparative sentences, the general effect, if any, being to render the contrast more vivid :—

Mejor es el trabajo que no la ociosidad. Better is work than idleness.

COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

238. Certain adverbs, chiefly the derivatives and a few others, are compared like adjectives, the invariable lo (when used) taking, in the superlative, the place of the gender forms of the article used with adjectives.

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
Lejos, far ,	más lejos,	lo más lejos.
Á menudo, often ,	menos á menudo,	lo menos á menudo.
Sabiamente, wisely ,	más sabiamente,	lo más sabiamente.
Ricamente, richly ,	menos ricamente,	lo menos ricamente.

a. Irregular comparisons:—

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
Bien, well ,	mejor, better ,	lo mejor, (the) best .
Mal, badly ,	peor, worse ,	lo peor, (the) worst .
Muy, } very ,	más, more ,	lo más, (the) most .
Mucho, } much ,
Poco, little ,	menos, less ,	lo menos, (the) least .

NOTE.—Más bien, rather, is not used as a comparative.

239. Than is expressed by que and de, the latter, however, only being used before numbers in positive sentences:—

Ella toca menos á menudo que antes.	She plays less often than formerly.
Llegó más tarde que el maestro.	He arrived later than the teacher.
No vino más que dos ó tres veces.	He did not come more than two or three times.
Me lo solicitó más de diez veces.	He asked me for it more than ten times.

240. Lo is omitted where the superlative is not limited or defined in some way:—

Á la larga los que más estudian, más aprenden.	In the long run those who study (the) most, learn (the) most.
Donde menos se piensa, salta la liebre.	Where least expected, the hare starts up.

But —

Escribimos lo menos posible.	We write the least possible.
Se quedó lo más lejos que pudo de la escena.	He remained the farthest from the scene that he could.

Prometíome volvería á los tres cuartos de hora lo más tarde.	He promised me he would return in three quarters of an hour at the latest.
Una vez por lo menos.	Once at least.
Daré diez pesos á lo más.	I will give ten dollars at most.
Deseo acabarla lo antes posible.	I desire to finish it as soon as possible.

241. The absolute superlative is expressed either by modifying the positive by some other adverb (as muy, bien, etc.), or resort is had to the ísimo forms, where they exist. The former method, however, is generally preferred to the latter:—

Cerca, near ,	{ muy cerca, cerquísimo,	}	very near.
Lejos, far ,	{ muy lejos, lejísimo,	}	very far.
Mal, badly ,	{ muy mal, malísimo,	}	very badly.

CONJUNCTIONS AND INTERJECTIONS

CONJUNCTIONS

267. The distinction between pure conjunctions and conjunctive adverbs can not always be strictly drawn. Their classification is unimportant:—

mas, pero, sino,	but.	que, that, for, whether, and.
empero (rare),	}	á que, that, until, I'll bet that.
ni, nor.		de que, that, because.
ó, ú(before o or ho), or.		y, é(before i or hi), and.
ó sea, or, that is.		si, if, whether, suppose, why.

a. Mas, pero (empero), are the usual connectives between adversative statements:—

Eso lo dice Mariana, mas no That is what Mariana says, but conviene con él Lafuente. Lafuente does not agree with him.

No le he visto hoy, pero creo I have not seen him to-day, que vendrá. but I think he will come.

b. Sino, if the same verb is expressed or implied in both clauses, is used by way of contrast after a negative statement. When it is used in the same clause with the negative, it translates our but in the sense of only:—

Yo no vivo aquí sino en Carta- I do not live here, but in Cargena. tagena.

No una vez sino tres veces me Not once, but three times, he lo solicitó. begged it of me.

No tengo sino tres pesos en mi cartera. I have but three dollars in my pocketbook.

No llega el vapor sino pasado mañana. The steamer arrives only the day after to-morrow.

c. Ó becomes ú before words beginning with o or ho:—

Vendré hoy ó mañana. I shall come to-day or to-morrow.

Siete ú ocho ; diez ú once ; mujer ú hombre. Seven or eight ; ten or eleven ; woman or man.

d. Que is the common connective between principal and subordinate clauses, but it likewise has other uses, some of which are purely idiomatic and arbitrary. It may be omitted in certain cases, but is not nearly so often omitted as the English that:—

Pienso que lo hará tarde ó temprano. I think he will do it sooner or later.

Permítame le diga que no está á mi gusto. Allow me to tell you that it is not satisfactory to me.

Al mismo tiempo cayó enferma su madre ; que rara vez una desgracia viene sola. At the same time his mother fell sick ; for rarely does a misfortune come alone.

Que quiera ó no, lo haré. Whether he will or not, I shall do it.

Justicia pide, que no gracia. Justice he asks, and not pardon.
¡ Socorro ! ¡ que me matan ! Help ! they are killing me !

NOTE.—In some instances a preceding clause may be supplied :—

¡ Que pase ! (i.e. quiero que—). Let him come in (i.e. I wish that) he come in.

¡ Que se van todos ! (i.e. creo que—). (I believe) they are all going away.

e. Á que is used after such verbs as invitar, instar, exhortar, esperar, aguardar, etc. :—

Invita á los franceses á que inviertan sus capitales.	He invites the French to invest their capital.
El Globo insta al gobierno á que tome posesión de la bahía.	The Globe urges the government to take possession of the bay.
Le exhortamos á que no pierda las esperanzas.	We exhort him not to lose hope.
Aguardaré á que venga.	I will wait until he comes.
Á que no vendrá.	I'll bet he will not come.

f. De que, in general, is employed after words which, in other constructions, would be followed by de :—

No hay duda de que el proyecto llegará á ser ley.	There is no doubt (of the fact) that the bill will become a law.
Estoy seguro de que él lo aceptará.	I am sure (of the fact that) he will accept it.

g. Y becomes é before i or hi, but not before hie or at the beginning of an interrogative sentence :—

Fernando é Isabel ; padres é hijos.	Ferdinand and Isabella; fathers and sons.
Tigres y hienas ; nieve y hielo.	Tigers and hyenas; snow and ice.
¿ Y interés al cinco por ciento ?	And interest at five per cent ?

h. Si commonly expresses a condition, but it has other uses which may be seen in the following :—

Dudo si traerá su escopeta.	I doubt whether he will bring his gun.
¿ Si será verdad lo que se me ha dicho ?	Suppose what has been told me shall turn out to be true ?
Si no salió en toda la noche.	Why, he did not go out during the whole night.

268. Besides the conjunctions already given, there are numerous conjunctive phrases. Those in heavy type are followed by the subjunctive under conditions to be hereafter explained:—

á fin de que, in order that.	en caso que, in case that.
á medida que, according as.	en tanto que, while, in case that.
á menos que, } unless.	en vez de que, instead of.
á no ser que, } unless.	entre tanto que, while.
ahora que, now that.	excepto que, except that.
antes que, before.	hasta que, until.
aunque, } although.	mientras (que), while. bien que, } although.	no obstante que, notwithstanding.
como, when, as.	ing.
como quiera que, however.	para que, in order that.
con motivo que, so that.	porque, because, in order that. con tal que, provided that.	por si, in case that.
cuando, when.	pues que, } since.
cuanto más que, the more since.	puesto que, } since.
dado que, in case.	sea que, whether, while.
dado caso que, supposing that.	según que, according as.
de manera que, } so that.	siempre que, whenever.
de modo que, } so that.	sin que, without.
de suerte que, } since.	supuesto que, supposing, since.
desde que, since.	tanto que, so that.
después que, after.	ya que, since.

269. Certain conjunctions, which occur in pairs, are called correlatives:—

Apenas — cuando.	Scarcely — when.
Así — como ; ni — ni (237).	Both — and ; neither — nor.
No bien — cuando.	Scarcely — when.
No sólo — sino (que).	Not only — but.

No solamente — sino (que). Not only — but.

Ó — ó ; ora — ora.

Either — or ; now — now.

Sea — sea ; ya — ya.

Whether — or ; now — now.

NOTE.— Where que follows sino, as above, a verb will be expressed, which need not be the same as that of the first clause (267, b) :—

Te suplico que no rompas esta carta, sino que la guardes. I beg you not to tear up this letter, but to keep it.

INTERJECTIONS

270. Conversational Spanish is profuse in interjections. Their exact shade of meaning depends, to some extent, on the circumstances which call them forth. The English translations assigned to them must be regarded as merely approximative. The pure interjections are :—

¡ ah ! ¡ oh !	oh ! ah ! alas !	¡ huy ! (pain) oh me !
¡ ay ! ¡ guay !		¡ ja ! ¡ ja ! ¡ ja ! (laughter).
¡ bah ! pshaw !		¡ ojalá ! God grant !
¡ ca ! or ¡ quiá !	nonsense !	¡ ox ! shoo !
¡ caramba !	the deuce !	¡ puf ! ugh ! pah !
¡ cáspita !	zounds !	¡ sus ! courage ! come on !
¡ ea !	come !	¡ tate ! beware !
¡ eh ! eh !	say !	¡ uf ! (weariness), oh !
¡ hola ! (ola)	oh ! hello !	¡ zape ! scat ! goodness !

271. Besides the pure interjections, various parts of speech are used as such. Among the more common are :—

¡ al asesino !	murder !	¡ cuidado ! take care !
¡ al ladrón !	stop thief !	¡ de veras ! indeed ! truly !
¡ á lincharle !	lynch him !	¡ fuego ! fire !
¡ anda !	pshaw ! nonsense !	¡ otra ! ¡ otra ! ¡ otra vez ! en-core !
¡ á quemarle vivo !	burn him alive !	¡ toma ! indeed ! really !

- | | |
|---|--|
| ¡ basta ! enough ! | ¡ socorro ! help ! help ! |
| ¡ bravo ! bravo ! good for you ! | ¡ vamos ! come ! well ! |
| ¡ calle ! shut up ! nonsense ! | ¡ vaya ! indeed ! of course ! |
| ¡ cómo ! how ! why ! | ¡ voto va ! thunderation ! |
| ¡ corriente ! all right ! | ¡ ya ya ! yes, yes, of course ! |

NOTE.—Hombre, man, and mujer, woman, often occur as interjections, particularly to add emphasis or to protest against a statement.

272. The names of holy personages and evil spirits are freely used as exclamations, Spaniards not feeling the same aversion to their use as we do. In translating into English, they may be rendered by dear me ! heavens ! gracious me ! or any other equivalent appropriate to the context:—

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|---|
| ¡ cielos ! heavens ! | ¡ ave María ! hail Mary ! |
| ¡ ay Dios mío ! oh, my God ! | ¡ ave María purísima ! hail Mary most pure ! |
| ¡ Dios ! God ! | ¡ Virgen Santa ! Holy Virgin ! |
| ¡ Dios mío ! my God ! | ¡ Jesús ! or, Jesus, María, José ! |
| ¡ por Dios ! for God's sake ! | ¡ demonio ! } the deuce ! |
| ¡ señor ! lord ! sir ! | ¡ diablo ! } the devil ! |
| ¡ pardiez ! by George ! | ¡ diantre ! } |
| ¡ válgame Dios ! God help me ! | |

273. Adjectives and ay and guay are connected by de with a following noun or pronoun:—

- | | |
|---|---|
| ¡ triste de mí ! poor me ! | ¡ ay de tí ! alas for thee ! |
| ¡ pobre de mi amigo ! my poor friend ! | ¡ guay de la víctima ! woe to the victim ! |

274. Finally qué and qué — tan introduce many exclamatory phrases:—

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|---|
| ¡ qué lástima ! what a pity ! | ¡ qué hombre ! what a man ! |
| ¡ qué bonita ! how pretty ! | ¡ qué niña tan hermosa ! what a pretty child ! |

SYNTAX

THE DEFINITE ARTICLE

275. The English and Spanish definite articles coincide in many of their uses. In general we shall note only such cases as differ from English usage. The Spanish article is used —

a. With the names of certain countries, provinces, mountains, and cities, and with others when they are limited by some qualifying word or are not preceded by a preposition :—

el Brasil, el Canadá.	la América del Sur.
el Perú, la Coruña.	la Carolina del Norte.
la Habana, el Vesuvio.	la Gran Bretaña.
el Helicón.	Castilla la Nueva or la Vieja.

Pío nono, Papa que fué de Roma.	Pius IX, the late Pope of Rome.
Su Santidad, León trece.	His Holiness, Leo XIII.

d. While the definite article is usually expressed before each noun of a series, it may be omitted before all but the first, especially when they are of similar meaning or are connected by ó :—

Ella tiene toda la inocencia, sencillez y blandura de una niñita.	She has all the innocence, simplicity, and gentleness of a little girl.
Á causa de la ignorancia ó torpeza de su amigo.	Because of the ignorance or dullness of his friend.

e. Sometimes the use or omission of the definite article gives a different meaning to the sentence :—

hacer la cama, to make the bed.	hacer cama, to be sick in bed.
dar el alma, to expire.	dar alma, to encourage.
día del juicio, judgment day.	día de juicio, the day set for trial.
tomar el hábito, to become a nun or monk.	tomar hábito, to adopt the custom.

f. Finally, the definite article is omitted in many cases which do not admit of classification. This occurs particularly after certain prepositions and in certain expressions fixed by usage. A few examples only can be cited:—

En Filipinas.	In the Philippines.
Bajo mando de.	Under the command of.
En nombre del rey.	In the name of the King.
En dicha mañana.	On the morning in question.

De parte del presidente.	By order of the president.
Á última hora de la sesión.	At the last hour of the session.

THE NEUTER ARTICLE

277. Lo is freely used to form nouns expressing abstract and other ideas. From its nature it can not have a plural, and can not be omitted like other articles. It is joined —

a. To adjectives and participles:—

Lo bueno ; lo útil ; lo mío.	The good ; the useful ; mine, what is mine.
Hice todo lo posible.	I did all I could (my best).
La puse al corriente de lo ocurrido.	I informed her of what had happened.

Lo de ayer ; lo de siempre.

The affair of yesterday; the same old story.

Lo de Filipinas.

The Philippine question.

NOTE.—See 89, 1st to 4th, for other uses of lo.

THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE

278. While the Spanish indefinite article agrees in many of its uses with the English, it differs in many others. Among these differences is its omission—

a. Before nouns in predicate relations. These nouns may be qualified by adjectives or other adjuncts:—

Es abogado ; es médico.

He is a lawyer ; he is a doctor.

Es español ; es española.

He is a Spaniard ; she is Spanish.

Es excelente compositor.

He is an excellent composer..

Nos parece modelo de ingratitud.

He appears to us a model of ingratitude.

Quiere meterse á hermana de caridad.

She wishes to become a sister of charity.

NOTE.—The above usage is not constant, as the article is expressed, whenever it is desired to define more sharply the individual :—

El es un hombre de importancia.

He is a man of mark.

Es un estadista de primer orden.

He is a statesman of the first order.

Es un viejo de muy pequeña estatura.

He is an old man of very small stature.

Lo atribuyo á falta de fuerza física. I attribute it to a lack of physical strength.

Le ha dado habitación en el palacio. He has given him a room in the palace.

NOUNS AND PRONOUNS

279. We have seen (13) that it is convenient to treat nouns as having a declension, although they only vary to express number. A brief treatment of the cases will suffice.

280. The nominative has the same uses as the English nominative.

281. The genitive is formed by the preposition de, of, and is the equivalent of the English possessive case or of a word preceded by of (occasionally to):—

El caballo de mi amigo.	My friend's horse.
Una taza de te; una copa de agua.	A cup of tea; a glass of water.
Una cadena de oro.	A gold chain.
Los manzanos del huerto.	The apple trees of the orchard.
El camino de la viña.	The way to the vineyard.

a. The genitive occurs also after certain quasi-intransitive and reflexive verbs:—

Los soldados carecen de todo.	The soldiers lack everything.
Tiró de un revólver.	He drew a revolver.
Voy á cambiar de traje.	I am going to change my clothing.
No dudo de lo que dice usted.	I don't doubt what you say.
Él no entiende de poesía.	He does not know anything about poetry.
Goza de buena reputación.	He enjoys a good reputation.
Debjera usar de sus privilegios y no abusar de ellos.	He ought to use his privileges and not abuse them.
Necesitamos de mucho dinero.	We need much money.
El barco varió de rumbo.	The vessel changed her course.
No se acuerda de lo ocurrido.	He does not remember what occurred.
No me fio de sus promesas.	I don't trust his promises.
Se burló de él y no de mí.	He made fun of him and not of me.
Nos alegramos de su éxito.	We rejoice at his success.
Se ríe de todo el mundo.	He laughs at everybody.

Se compadece del pobre perro.	He takes pity on the poor dog.
Sírvase V. de sus talentos.	Make use of your talents.
Se ha enamorado de la joven.	He has fallen in love with the young girl.
Se apoderó del palacio.	He took possession of the palace.

282. The dative, expressed by á when a noun or pronoun follows, is the case of the indirect object and occurs mostly after verbs whose equivalent, in English, takes to (sometimes of or from) as a complement: —

El general hablaba al soldado.	The general was speaking to the soldier.
Á mí me lo dijo y no á él.	He told it to me and not to him.
Dará un terrón de azucar á la muchachita.	He will give a lump of sugar to the little girl.
Devolvió el libro al maestro.	He returned the book to the teacher.
Lo mandaré á casa por usted.	I will send it home for you.
Anoche fuí á la ópera.	Last night I went to the opera.
El salteador quitó al viajero su reloj y su capa.	The footpad took from the traveler his watch and cloak.
Le agradezco á V. su bondad.	I thank you for your kindness.
Le ganó todo su dinero.	He won from him all his money.
Me pidió una limosna.	He asked alms of me.
Beso á usted la mano.	I kiss your hand.
Ella tomó el brazo á su hermano.	She took her brother's arm.
Sobrevivirá á toda su familia.	He will outlive all his family.

a. The dative occurs also after some nouns: —

El amor á la patria.	The love of country.
Su afición á la música.	His love for music.
El miedo á la muerte.	The fear of death.

283. The accusative has two forms, the personal, formed by the preposition á, and the simple accusative. They both stand as the object of a transitive verb. The personal is used—

a. When the object is a common noun referring to living beings or to things personified :—

La madre quiere á sus hijas, y las hijas la quieren á ella.	The mother loves her daughters, and the daughters love her.
El cazador vapula al perro.	The hunter flogs the dog.
El buen ciudadano ama á su patria.	The good citizen loves his country.

b. When the object is a proper name not preceded by the article :—

Mandé á José al correo. Ayer vi á Juan y á Carlos.	I sent Joseph to the post office. Yesterday I saw John and Charles.
Con eso picó á Rocinante y partió á galope. Dejaré á España mañana.	With that he spurred Rosinante and started off at a gallop. I shall leave Spain to-morrow.

c. With pronouns and pronominal adjectives, when used, by way of contrast or emphasis, to define more nearly other pronouns :—

Le aseguro á usted que no. No me lo envió á mí sino á él.	I assure you it is not so. He did not send it to me, but to him.
Se admirán el uno al otro. Nos aborrecen á todos.	They admire each other. They hate us all.
¿Á quién vió V.? ¿á él ó á ella?	Whom did you see? him or her?

d. With most pronouns and pronominal adjectives designating persons :—

De los dos hombres prefiero á éste.	Of the two men I prefer this one.
No encontré á nadie en el parque.	I did not meet (find) any one in the park.
No quiere á ninguno de ellos.	He does not like any one of them.
No sé á quién busca.	I don't know whom he is looking for.
Consuela á cada uno por turno.	He consoles each one in turn.
Vino el diluvio y destruyó á todos.	The flood came and destroyed all.

e. When two objects, whether persons or things, stand in a factitive relation to each other, the true accusative takes á. One of them may be an adjective :—

Hizo al agua vino.	He made the water wine.
Llama á su capricho amor.	She calls her caprice love.
El rey designó capitán al teniente.	The king appointed the lieutenant captain.
Su éxito hace vano al soldado.	His success makes the soldier vain.

f. When two or more nouns, the names of things, are in the same sentence, á must precede the object, provided the subject is also the name of a thing ; otherwise the subject and object might be confounded :—

El adjetivo precede al nombre.	The adjective precedes the noun.
Al verbo se antepone el pronombre.	The pronoun is placed before the verb.
Sigue el día á la noche.	The day follows the night.

284. The simple accusative, i.e. without á, occurs —

a. When the object is a thing or insignificant animal, the subject generally a person :—

Ella está dando lección de música. She is taking a music lesson.
sica.

Escribe una carta á su padre. He writes a letter to his *father.

Habla español muy al pelo. He speaks Spanish very glibly.

El cazador mata la liebre. The hunter kills the hare.

b. When the object, though designating a person, is not preceded by a determining word, as the article, demonstrative, etc. :—

No conozco hombre más torpe, I don't know a duller man nor ni mujeres más amables. more amiable women.

c. When the object is preceded by a numeral (except un, una). Usage is not constant :—

Envío 50 hombres en su ayuda. He sent 50 men to his assistance.

Ví seis amigos míos en el teatro. I saw six friends of mine in the theater.

Nadie puede servir á dos señores. No one can serve two masters.

d. When the object stands in immediate relation with a dative, unless the former be a proper name without the article :—

Envié el criado á la plaza. I sent the servant to market.

Paris arrebató á Menelao su mujer Elena. Paris carried off from Menelaos his wife Helen.

But —

Pascual entrega á María á su rival. Pascual delivers up Mary to his rival.

e. When the object is a proper name preceded by the article:—

Pizarro conquistó el Perú.

Prefiero el Dante al Tasso.

Vamos á visitar los Alpes.

Ponce de León descubrió la Florida en 1512.

Pizarro conquered Peru.

I prefer Dante to Tasso.

We are going to visit the Alps.

Ponce de Leon discovered Florida in 1512.

f. When the object represents a general idea:—

La antigua Grecia produjo grandes oradores.

Es la práctica la que hace los maestros.

Toda buena mujer ama los buenos niños.

Ancient Greece produced great orators.

Practice is what makes masters (makes perfect).

Every good woman loves good children.

g. For the sake of euphony, but not before a proper name:—

Él mira aquél hombre.

Vió aquella mujer.

Halló á Anita en la escuela.

He looks at that man.

He saw that woman.

He found Anita in the school.

NOTE.—This rule is not constant.

285. After a few verbs the use or omission of á gives a different turn to the thought:—

WITHOUT

Tenemos un novel autor.

We have a new author.

Quiere amigos que le amen.

He wants friends to love him.

Los romanos robaron las sabinas en tiempo de Rómulo.

The Romans stole the Sabine women in the time of Romulus.

WITH

El caballerizo tiene al caballo.

The groom holds the horse.

Quiere muchísimo á sus amigos.

He loves his friends very much.

Los romanos robaron á los sabinos sus hijas.

The Romans robbed the Sabines of their daughters.

Dejo el criado en la casa. I leave the servant in the house.	Dejo al criado hacerlo. I have the servant do it.
Perdió ayer su padre. He lost his father yesterday.	Ha perdido á su hijo. He has spoiled his son.

NOTE.—What has been said covers pretty well the general use of the two forms of the accusative ; but the subject is confessedly a difficult one, at least for the foreigner, and the student must not be surprised if he find, even in the best authors, violations of some of the above rules. The degree of individuality which the speaker wishes to assign to the object frequently determines the use or omission of á. Hence it may appear, at times, a little arbitrary.

THE ADJECTIVE

286. Adjectives agree in gender and number with the nouns or pronouns they qualify :—

El es un hombre honrado.	He is an honest man.
Ella es una mujer bonita.	She is a pretty woman.
Falsas esperanzas y vanos temores.	False hopes and vain fears.
Ella es aplicada y buena.	She is diligent and good.
¿Cuántos años tiene usted?	How old are you?
Es usted injusta, señora.	You are unjust, madam.

287. When two or more nouns or pronouns are in the singular and of different genders, the adjective is put in the masculine plural :—

El médico y su hermana son ricos.	The doctor and his sister are rich.
La casa y el jardín son magníficos.	The house and garden are magnificent.
Él y ella son generosos.	He and she are generous.

NOTE.—Where the nouns are of similar meaning, the adjective may agree with the nearest:—

Tiene una energía y un celo indomable. He has an indomitable energy and zeal.

288. Adjectives qualifying singular nouns of the same gender are put in the plural and in the gender of their nouns:—

El blanco y el negro son colores opuestos. White and black are opposite colors.

La yegua y la vaca son pardas. The mare and the cow are gray.

289. Sometimes a plural noun may be qualified distributively by several adjectives in the singular:—

Las edades pretéritas, griega, latina, ó bárbara. The past ages, Grecian, Roman, or Barbarian.

Los siglos décimoctavo y decimonono. The eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

290. Two or more nouns referring to animate beings take the masculine adjective, if they are of different genders:—

Tanto los padres como las madres son caritativos. Both the fathers and the mothers are charitable.

Los caballos, las vacas y las ovejas son gananciosos. The horses, the cows, and the sheep are profitable.

NOTE.—But if the nouns represent things or ideas, the adjective generally agrees in gender with the nearest noun:—

Vanas son mis esperanzas y temores. Vain are my hopes and fears.

Tiene buenos melocotones y manzanas. He has (some) good peaches and apples.

¡Tenga V. las orejas y los ojos abiertos!	Keep your ears and eyes open.
La igualdad de nuestro linaje y riquezas.	The equality of our lineage and riches.
Las ideas y educación americanas.	American ideas and education.

291. When a title grammatically feminine is applied to men, the adjective, unless it is part of the title, is put in the masculine :—

Su Majestad (el rey) está satisfecho.	His Majesty (the king) is satisfied.
Su Santidad (el Papa) es muy caritativo.	His Holiness (the Pope) is very charitable.

But —

Su Majestad (la reina) es bonita.	Her Majesty (the queen) is pretty.
Su graciosa Majestad.	Her gracious Majesty.
Su Alteza serenísima.	His most serene Highness.

292. When adjectives express dimension they are sometimes treated as nouns and connected with numbers by means of de :—

Tiene una sala de 80 pies de largo, 60 de ancho y 30 de alto.	It has a hall 80 feet long, 60 wide, and 30 high.
---	---

NOTE.— But dimension may be otherwise expressed :—

Tiene la torre 100 pies de altura.	The tower is a hundred feet high.
La calle es de 40 pies en ancho.	The street is 40 feet wide.
La goleta tiene una manga de 30 pies.	The schooner has a beam of 30 feet.

293. The complements of adjectives, i.e. the prepositions which connect them with other words, form a subject which does not admit of concise and orderly treatment. The preposition to be used in each case has to be learned by practice. The following examples will show a few of the differences between the two languages :—

Atento con sus mayores.	Respectful to one's superiors.
Una espada bota de punta.	A sword blunt at the point.
Escaso de medios.	Limited in means.
Falto de juicio.	Lacking in sense.
Generoso para con sus parientes.	Generous towards one's relatives.
Impropio para su edad.	Unbecoming to his age.
Ingrato á los beneficios.	Ungrateful for benefits.
Ingrato con los amigos.	Ungrateful to friends.
Humano con los presos.	Humane towards the prisoners.
Penetrado de dolor.	Penetrated with grief.
Sed bueno conmigo.	Be kind to me.
Sordo de un oído.	Deaf in one ear.
Aficionado á la música.	Fond of music.
Alegre con la noticia.	Joyful at the news.

THE VERB

294. Sentence structure. — Spanish being more highly inflected than English, its words have a greater freedom of position in the sentence. This is doubtless a relic of Latin syntax, which secured fine rhetorical effects by varying the logical order of the words. In Spanish such variations often depend merely on the choice of the speaker who arranges his words according to his own ideas of harmony and rhythm. The following sentence, arranged in three ways, will serve as an illustration :—

Logical order. — Tres grandes artistas líricos estaban encargados (encharged) de las principales partes de la obra (piece).

1. Rhetorical order. — Estaban encargados de las principales partes de la obra tres grandes artistas líricos.

2. Rhetorical order. — De las principales partes de la obra estaban encargados tres grandes artistas líricos.

295. Agreement. — In a general way the Spanish rules for the agreement of subject and predicate are the same as those of English. There is some diversity, however, which may be noted under the following headings :—

a. A noun of multitude, not modified by a plural adjunct, has the verb in the singular, when the idea of unity is uppermost in the speaker's mind :—

El ejército atacó la ciudad.	The army attacked the city.
Toda la gente aplaudió.	All the people applauded.
La multitud quedó atónita.	The multitude was astonished.
La mayor parte del público rió á mandíbula batiente.	The greater part of the public laughed uproariously.

NOTE. — But the verb may be put in the plural when the idea of plurality is prominent :—

Multitud de gente acudieron á la ciudad.	A crowd of people hurried to the city.
La mitad del regimiento resultaron muertos.	Half of the regiment were killed.

b. When a noun of multitude is limited by a plural adjunct, the verb can be singular or plural, but plural only when it is logically applicable to the individuals of the adjunct :—

Un batallón de soldados defienden (or defiende) el castillo.	A battalion of soldiers defend the castle.
--	--

Un enjambre de abejas con su maestra salieron (or salió) de la colmena. A swarm of bees with their queen came out of the hive.

NOTE.—But if the verb stands before the subject or is not logically applicable to the adjunct, the verb in the former case is usually singular, in the latter it must be :—

Sale de la trinchera un destacamento de trabajadores. A detachment of laborers come out of the intrenchment.

El precio de las manzanas está subido. The price of apples is high.

296. Two or more singular subjects require a plural verb, when they are considered as distinct agencies, and especially if the verb follows :—

El jinete y el caballo cayeron. The rider and horse fell.

El sol y la luna alumbran la tierra. The sun and moon give light to the earth.

El monólogo del barítono y el dúo con la tiple conmovieron mucho al público. The solo of the baritone and the duet with the soprano created great enthusiasm in the audience.

a. But if the verb precedes, or the nouns are taken as forming one idea, the verb may, and generally will, be in the singular :—

Cuando el maestro empuñó la batuta, reinaba en el teatro un silencio profundo y una emoción intensa.

El subir y bajar la escalera me cansa.

Su sabiduría y elocuencia nos convenció.

When the maestro seized his baton, there reigned in the theater a profound silence and intense expectancy.

Going up and coming down the stairs tires me.

His learning and eloquence convinced us.

NOTE. — When the ideas are distinct, each noun will usually be preceded by some determining word : —

El nacer y el morir son los dos extremos de la vida.	Birth and death are the two extremes of life.
La salida y la puesta del sol marcan el principio y el fin del día.	The rising and setting of the sun mark the beginning and end of day.
Su voz y su pronunciación son encantadoras.	Her voice and her pronunciation are charming.

297. When ni stands between two or more subjects, the verb will be singular or plural, according as it logically refers to one or all of them : —

Ni él ni su hijo irá de cónsul á Cartagena.	Neither he nor his son will go as consul to Cartagena.
Ni el uno ni el otro se casó con ella.	Neither the one nor the other married her.
Ni el Ala derecha ni el centro pudieron hacer frente al enemigo.	Neither the right wing nor the center could withstand the enemy.

a. Where o serves as a connective between subjects, as it implies an alternative, the verb will usually be singular : —

Su amigo o él me ha engañado .	His friend or he has deceived me.
Ó el amo o el criado compró el barómetro.	Either the master or the servant bought the barometer.

298. When subject and predicate nouns differ in number, the copula will generally be plural : —

Panal de miel son hablas suaves.	Pleasant words are (as) honey-comb.
---	-------------------------------------

Su único recurso son los tribunales de los Estados Unidos.

Mas su salida son caminos de muerte.

His only recourse is the United States courts.

But the end thereof are the ways of death.

299. When the subject of a verb is a relative preceded immediately by a personal pronoun as its antecedent, it will be in the person and number of this antecedent:—

Yo, que lo digo, lo probaré.

Se lo dijo á él quien no es su amigo.

Nosotros, que ya no somos jóvenes.

I, who say so, will prove it.

He said it to him who is not his friend.

We who are no longer young.

300. When el, los, la, las, are predicates after some part of the verb to be (ser) in the first or second person, the verb of the relative clause may be either in the same person or in the third person:—

Y respondió Dios á Moisés: Yo SOY EL QUE SOY. And God said unto Moses: I AM THAT I AM.

He sido la que se lo dije (or dijó).

¿Sois los que me lo pedís? Is it you who ask it of me?

NOTE.—When quien stands in the same relation, both verbs may or may not be in the same person:—

Soy yo quien lo dije.

Nosotros somos quienes lo sostenemos.

Soy yo quien va á contártelo.

It is I who said so.

We are the ones (it is we) who maintain it.

I am the one who is going to tell it to you.

THE TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE

PRESENT

301. The present tense, besides discharging the usual functions of the verb in the present time, is likewise used,

a. For the perfect in certain idiomatic expressions, and at times in familiar epistolary style :—

Cuánto tiempo lleva V. en este país ? How long have you been in this country ?

Hace diez años que vivo aquí. I have been living here ten years.

Vengo de visitar á mi tío. I have just come from visiting my uncle.

Recibo su interesante carta de ayer. I have received your interesting letter of yesterday.

b. For the preterit in lively narrative :—

Viene á mi casa ; pregunta por mí, y cuando se le informa que no puede verme, se va maldiciéndome. He came to my house ; asked for me, and when he was informed that he could not see me, he went away cursing me.

c. For the future :—

El lunes qué viene parto para Europa. This coming Monday I shall start for Europe.

De hoy en ocho días se casa mi hija. To-day week my daughter will be married.

IMPERFECT

302. The imperfect, if studied in all its phases, presents some difficulty for the English-speaking person ; but its general use may be easily acquired. It is employed —

a. To express habitual or repeated action in past time, sometimes rendered in English by used to; also state or condition :—

Cuando vivía en Washington, iba When I lived in Washington, I á las escuelas municipales. used to go to the public schools.

Venía á verme muy á menudo. He used to come to see me very often.

Estaba malo y no podía salir. He was sick and could not go out.

NOTE.—Customary action is also expressed by the verb soler (221) :—

Yo solía ir á la pesca con mi I used to go fishing with my padre, cuando yo era mucha- father, when I was a boy. cho.

b. To indicate that one action was taking place, when another supervened :—

Yo salía á paseo, cuando encon- I was going out for a walk, when tré á mi tía. I met my aunt.

Llegó la carta mientras yo comía. The letter arrived while I was dining.

NOTE.—Continuous action of this kind may also be expressed by the progressive form of the verb (140) :—

Estaba yo leyendo, cuando vino I was reading when he came to á mi cuarto. my room.

c. When simultaneous actions are to be expressed :—

Mientras yo escribía (estaba es- While I was writing, he was cribiendo), él leía (estaba le- reading.
yendo).

Amenazaba lluvia, y llevaba un It threatened rain, and he was paraguas. carrying an umbrella.

d. In descriptive narrative :—

Ya era noche, y la oscuridad, con cada momento, íbase poniendo más profunda. Cuanto más buscábamos, más nos perdíamos.

It was already night, and the darkness, with each moment, was getting more profound. The more we tried to find our way, the more bewildered we became.

e. When the action took place at a time specified in the sentence :—

Se hizo á la vela y al día siguiente arribaba á Cádiz.

He set sail and on the following day he arrived at Cadiz.

Había gigantes en la tierra en aquellos días.

There were giants on the earth in those days.

Estaba muy bien el verano pasado.

He was very well last summer.

f. To indicate what was possible in the past :—

Ayer se fiaba de mi firma. Yo tomaba un pedacito de papel, escribía en él mi nombre, y valía cien mil pesos.

Yesterday people had faith in my signature. I could take a scrap of paper, write my name on it, and it was worth a hundred thousand dollars.

g. With the force of the pluperfect :—

Ya había tres años que vivía en Sevilla.

It had already been three years that I had been living in Seville.

Tenían defensores, pero eran todos muertos.

They had had defenders, but they were all dead.

h. As a substitute for the conditional :—

Si yo anduviera en vapor, no llegaba antes de la noche.

If I went by steamer, I should not arrive before night.

Á no ser por el temporal, mañana se concluía la obra.

But for the storm, the work would be finished to-morrow.

i. Note also:—

Ha comprado lo que quería comprar.	He has bought what he wished to buy.
Ni por sueño, decía mi primo.	Not by any means, said my cousin.
Como decíamos ayer.	As we were saying yesterday.
Sócrates era filósofo griego.	Socrates was a Greek philosopher.
Castelar era elocuentísimo.	Castelar was very eloquent.
No faltaba más.	That capped the climax.

REMARK.—The examples given will suffice to show fairly well the varied uses of the imperfect. The student should bear in mind that it is a past tense which always implies some idea of extension or incompleteness in time, hence expresses habit, state or condition, repetition, duration not fixed by any specified limits, and the like.

THE PRETERIT

303. The preterit states what took place at some point or period of past time separated from the present. The interval may be a minute or centuries and must always be expressed or implied. When repetition or duration is mentioned, the limits must be specified:—

¿Cuándo llegó? Llegó hoy, esta mañana, hace algunos minutos.	When did he arrive? He arrived to-day, this morning, a few minutes ago.
Vino á este país hace diez años.	He came to this country ten years ago.
Ya se acabó mi juvenil locura.	My youthful folly is already over.
Dios creó los cielos y la tierra.	God created the heavens and the earth.
Cuando estuvo en Madrid, iba á menudo al teatro.	When he was in Madrid, he went often to the theater.

Lo hice no sólo una vez sino cien veces. I did it not only once but a hundred times.

Vivió en Europa veinte años. He lived in Europe twenty years.

REMARK.—In place of the preterit, some writers of the present day, in imitation of the older writers, use the first form of the imperfect subjunctive (which was the old pluperfect) :—

El impostor quiere pasar por libertador de aquél á quien asesinara. Alarcón. The impostor wishes to pass himself off as the liberator of him whom he assassinated.

No ambicionara Luzbel á estar más lejos de Dios. Lucifer never desired to be farther from God.

THE PERFECT

304. The perfect has but three well-recognized uses :—

1st. To express what has occurred in the past without reference to any special point or period of time :—

¿Ha leído V. los poemas de Bécquer? Have you read the poems of Bécquer?

Sí, los leí muchos años ha. Yes, I read them many years ago.

2d. Where the action of the verb, having begun in the past, comes up to and continues in the present :—

Hemos vivido en esta casa quince años. We have lived in this house fifteen years. (We are still living here.)

3d. Where an action is begun and finished in a period of time still present :—

Ella ha escrito muchas cartas hoy. She has written many letters today.

Este invierno ha habido mucha lluvia y nieve. This winter there has been much rain and snow.

NOTE.—In the newspapers and writers of their style, the perfect is frequently used for the preterit, especially in periods of time not very remote from the present. It is a construction not recognized by the Spanish Academy:—

El señor Silvela ha contestado Mr. Silvela replied yesterday ayer mañana á aquella asociación. morning to that association.

El entierro se verificó el día 31. The burial took place on the El cadáver ha sido conducido 31st. The corpse was carried en una carroza tirada por ocho in a coach drawn by eight caballos. horses.

THE PLUPERFECT

305. The pluperfect expresses the action of the verb—

a. As having been completed in the past before some point of time expressed or implied, or before some other action usually represented by the preterit:—

Me dijo que ya lo había hecho. He told me that he had already done it.

Habían atacado la ciudad antes They had attacked the city de la puesta del sol. before sunset.

Había acabado su tarea cuando He had finished his task when yo llegué. I arrived.

b. As having customarily taken place before some other action expressed by the imperfect or preterit:—

Luego que habíamos dado nues- After we had recited our lessons, tras lecciones, íbamos á pasear. we used to go walking.

No bien había vuelto á casa que No sooner had he returned alguien venía á verle. home than some one used to come to see him.

Yo no había esperado largo rato I had not been waiting a long while, when the train passed.
cuando pasó el tren.

REMARK.—The first form of the imperfect subjunctive (etymologically the Latin pluperfect) is not infrequently used with the force of the pluperfect:—

Y se llevó lo que al entrar dejara sobre la mesa. Alarcón. And he carried away what on entering he had left on the table.

PAST ANTERIOR

306. The past anterior is another form of the pluperfect and expresses the action as completed immediately before some other past action always expressed by the preterit. The past anterior is always preceded by some time word such as:—

apenas, hardly.

cuando, when.

en cuanto á,

después que, } after.

así que, } as soon as.

luego que, }

tan pronto como,

Apenas hubo comido su cena cuando murió.

Scarcely had he eaten his supper when he died.

Así que hubo tomado la palabra, reinó un silencio profundo.

As soon as he had taken the floor (word), a profound silence reigned.

FUTURE

307. The future, besides expressing future time, has certain idiomatic uses:—

¿Qué hará él ahora?

What can he be doing now?

¿Qué horas serán?

About what time can it be?

No habrá hombre más arrogante.

There can not be a more arrogant man.

Ella tendrá unos quince años.

She is some fifteen years old, I should think.

FUTURE PERFECT

308. The future perfect implies, by its name, that the action will be finished in the future before some point of time or some other action :—

Habrá acabado su tarea antes de cansarse. He will have finished his task before getting tired.

Habrá salido del puerto á las ocho. She will have gone out of the port at eight o'clock.

Lo habremos hecho cuando llegue el tren. We shall have done it when the train arrives.

a. Idiomatically as in 307 :—

¿Quién lo habrá hecho? Who can have done it?

Ya habrá acabado su tarea. He must surely have finished his task by this time.

CONDITIONAL

309. The conditional is used —

a. To express a future regarded from the standpoint of the past :—

Me dijo que vendría esta mañana. He told me he would come this morning.

b. To express a conclusion dependent on a condition stated or implied :—

Si estuviera (or estuviese) V. If you were sick, you would not malo, no podría venir. be able to come.

Por eso no lo haría yo. For that (reason) I would not do it.

c. Idiomatically after the manner of the future:—

Sería á eso de las cuatro.	It must have been about four o'clock.
Que sería hermosa sin duda.	Who was pretty, of course.
Tendría unos veinte años.	She must have been some twenty years old.

CONDITIONAL PERFECT

310. The conditional perfect bears very nearly the same relation to the conditional as the future perfect does to the future (307-8):—

a.

Me aseguró que habría acabado su tarea antes del verano.	He assured me that he would have finished his task before summer.
---	---

b.

Si yo hubiera (hubiese) estado malo, no habría podido venir. Por eso no lo habría hecho .	If I had been sick, I should not have been able to come. For that (reason) I would not have done it.
--	---

c.

Algún enemigo le habría acechado .	Some enemy must have waylaid him.
---	-----------------------------------

IMPERATIVE MOOD

311. The imperative and subjunctive overlap each other in some respects, both as to form and use. Whether the forms of the latter be regarded as imperative or subjunctive, it matters not, since their force is imperative:—

Ama á tus padres.	Love thy parents.
Vaya usted con Dios.	God be with you.
Que no entre aqui.	Let him not come in here.

Loado sea Dios.	God be praised.
Él te bendiga como yo te bendigo.	May he bless you as I bless you.
Sobre mí caiga la ley.	Let the law fall upon me.
Vivamos como es debido.	Let us live as is fitting.
Haced lo que queráis.	Do whatever you will.
Tengan VV. la bondad de escuchar-me.	Have the goodness to listen to me.
Pídanse catálogos.	Let catalogues be asked for (ask for catalogues).
¡Plegue á Dios que llegue sano y salvo !	God grant that he may arrive safe and sound.

a. When the second persons singular and plural are negated, the corresponding forms of the subjunctive are used :—

No vayas más adelante.	Don't go any further.
No temáis que yo lo impida.	Have no fear that I will hinder it.

THE TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE

312. The principles underlying the use of the subjunctive are those of uncertainty, doubt, expectation, requirement, and mental or moral emotions. It appears mostly in dependent clauses and is usually introduced by some conjunction, generally que. The character of the principal clause usually decides whether the verb of the dependent clause will be indicative or subjunctive, but sometimes the determining factor may be in the dependent clause itself. In both indicative and subjunctive constructions, the infinitive in the one language will often translate the personal verb of the dependent clause of the other; but practice only will teach when this can be done. A thorough treatment of the subjunctive would require a volume. What is here given is intended merely as a general guide to the student.

THE PRESENT

313. The subjunctive occurs, then, after words expressing —

a. Command, request, demand, etc. :—

Mando que se traiga el preso. I order the prisoner to be brought in.

Dígale que venga en seguida. Tell him to come at once.

Ruega (suplica) que yo me vaya. He entreats me to go away.

Le pido á V. que lo haga. I beg you to do it.

Exigimos que se le trate con justicia. We demand that he be treated justly.

b. Permission, approval, disposition, preference :—

Permítame V. le diga que no es verdad. Allow me to tell you it is not true.

Aprueba que yo pase la noche aquí. He approves of my passing the night here.

Dispondrá que todos sean convidados. He will arrange it so that all will be invited.

Prefiere que partamos esta tarde. He prefers that we start this afternoon.

Note, in the first example, the omission of que before diga (see 267, d).

c. Wish, joy, regret, grief, surprise, hope, fear, etc. :—

Quiero (deseo) que no consienta en ello. I wish (desire) him not to consent to it.

Me alegro que nos marchemos mañana. I rejoice that we shall go away to-morrow.

Sentimos que V. no pueda venir. We are sorry that you can not come.

Se pone triste de que me ausente. He grieves because I absent myself.

- Extraño que sea ofendido. I am surprised that he is offended.
- Espero con ansia que resulte bien. I anxiously hope that it will turn out well.
- Tememos que llueva antes de la caída de la noche. We fear that it will rain before nightfall.

d. Doubt, denial, and after questions :—

- Dudo que nieve esta noche. I doubt whether it will snow to-night.
- No creemos que sea posible. We do not believe it is possible.
- ¿Piensa V. que tengamos bastante dinero? Do you think we have enough money?

e. After impersonal verbs and most impersonal expressions, but not after such as imply certainty :—

- Es necesario (preciso, menester) que esperemos dos horas. It is necessary that we wait two hours.
- Es lástima que no pueda venir. It is a pity he can not come.
- Es bueno (bien) que lo hagamos. It is right that we do it.
- Es justo (injusto) que lo paguemos. It is just (not just) that we should pay it.
- Es tiempo que nos levantemos. It is time that we get up.
- Es posible que no lo sepa. It is possible that he may not know it.
- Conviene que lo olvidemos. It is proper that we forget it.
- Basta que no lo niegue. It is enough that he does not deny it.
- Es de desear que se quede aquí. It is desirable that he remain here.
- Importa mucho que lleguemos á tiempo. It is very important that we arrive in time.
- Puede (ser) que no sea así. It may be that it is not so.

314. Que is sometimes used with the subjunctive to express an alternative, the use of the subjunctive being determined by the thought rather than by the principal clause :—

No lo hago, que le guste ó no. I shall not do it, whether he like it or not.

Que se vaya ó se quede, todo es uno. Whether he goes or stays, it is all one.

315. The subjunctive is used after relative pronouns—

a. When the antecedent clause involves an idea of doubt, negation, uncertainty :—

Dudo que haya hombre que le iguale. I doubt whether there is a man who equals him.

No hay mal que por bien no venga. There is no evil which may not come for good (It is an ill wind, etc.).

¿Se puede encontrar mujer que sea más encantadora? Is it possible to find a woman who is more enchanting?

¿Quién habrá que no recuerde aquel día? Who can there be who does not remember that day?

b. When uncertainty, doubt, contingency, are implied in the relative clause :—

Busco un criado que no se emborrache. I seek a servant who will not get drunk.

Pese á quien pese, no puedo volver atrás. Grieve whom it may grieve, I can not turn back.

Vaya V. á un retiro donde esté tranquilo. Go into a retreat where you will be quiet.

El día en que esa ley se quebrante se derrumbará el coloso. The day on which that law is broken, the colossus will fall.

De quienquiera que V. hable, no le calumnie. Of whomsoever you speak, don't slander him.

316. Turn to 268. It will be seen that the words in boldface type express purpose, proviso, denial, supposition, exception, concession, etc. The subjunctive, therefore, will be used after these conjunctions and a few others, whenever the thought of the subordinate clause implies contingency or uncertainty of some kind, or where there is an idea of causation in the principal clause:—

Á fin de que no tenga que que- jarse.	In order that he may have no reason to complain.
Á menos que no llueva hoy, iré al campo.	Unless it rains to-day, I shall go to the country.
Yo estaré de vuelta antes que llegue .	I shall be back before he arrives.
Con tal que lo acabe hoy:	Provided he finishes it to-day.
Cuando venga , dígale lo que he dicho.	When he comes, tell him what I have said.
Dado que no lo admita , ¿que haremos?	In case he does not admit it, what shall we do?
Esperaré hasta que sepa la lec- ción.	I shall wait until he knows the lesson.
No será mientras yo viva .	It will not be while I live.
Me esconderé para que no me importunen.	I shall hide in order that they may not importune me.
Por rico que sea , no está con- tento.	Rich as he is, he is not con- tent.
Lo hará sin que nadie le ayude .	He will do it without any one helping him.
Note also:—
Acaso no sepa que estamos aquí.	Perhaps he may not know we are here.
Quizás no oiga lo que V. dice.	Perhaps he may not hear what you say.
¡Ojalá que él viva un día más!	Oh that he may live a day longer!

THE FUTURE AND FUTURE PERFECT

317. The future and future perfect subjunctive occur only in clauses expressing future contingency, and their use is determined only by the thought of their own clauses, which are introduced by a conjunction or a relative:—

Sea cuál fuere el valor de usted, Be whatever may be your valor, él tiene más. he has more.

Viva V. si pudiere, y muera, si no Live, if you can, and die, if you pudiere más. can do no better (more).

Mande V. lo que gustare. Command whatever you please.

Aunque lo hubiere hecho, no le Even though he shall have done ayudará. it, it will not help him.

NOTE.—It should be observed that the above tenses are now little used, as, in most instances, their places may be taken by the present or perfect subjunctive:—

Mientras yo viviere or viva. While I (shall) live.

Cuando hubiere or haya venido. When he shall have come.

OTHER TENSES

318. The rules given for the use of the present subjunctive apply equally to the imperfect, perfect, and pluperfect. Hence, examples need not be given.

a. The sequence of tenses is about the same in Spanish as in English, the thought to be expressed determining in each case what tense shall follow any other.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

319. Conditional clauses are of two kinds: 1st, those which, in the mind of the speaker, are assumed as realized; 2d, those which are conceived as contingent or uncertain. The former require the indicative, the latter the subjunctive:—

Si viene á verme, vamos or iremos á caza.	If he comes to see me, we go or shall go hunting.
Si venía á verme, íbamos al campo.	If he came to see me, we used to go to the country.
Si vino á verme aquel día, no lo supe.	If he came to see me that day, I did not know it.
Si había venido á mi casa, fué porque quería verme.	If he had come to my house, it was because he wished to see me.

Si viniere á verme hoy, iremos de caza.	If he shall come to see me to- day, we shall go hunting.
Si viniera or viniese á verme, irí- amos or fuéramos al teatro.	If he should come to see me, we should go to the theater.
Si hubiera or hubiese venido á verme, habríamos or hubiéra- mos ido á pasear.	If he had come to see me, we should have gone to take a walk.

a. The last two examples show that the first and second forms of the subjunctive (imperfect and pluperfect) are interchangeable in the protasis, and the conditional and first form in the apodosis.

Note also that neither the present nor perfect subjunctive can be used after si, if.

EXCLAMATORY SENTENCES

320. The subjunctive occurs in exclamations with the force of an optative:—

¡ Si sólo viniese una vez !	If he would but come once !
¡ Pluguiera á Dios que no saliese así !	Would to God it did not turn out thus !
¡ Quién supiera escribir !	I wish I knew how to write !
¡ Quisiera el cielo que así fuese !	Heaven grant that it were so !

THE INFINITIVE

321. The Spanish infinitive is the equivalent of the English infinitive, the present participle and the verbal noun in -ing. In the latter sense it is usually preceded by el:—

Comer demasiado es peligroso.	To eat too much is dangerous.
En tomar y dar es fácil errar.	In taking and giving it is easy to err.
La vista se deleita con el variar de las nubes.	The sight is delighted by the changing of the clouds.
El leer buenos libros es provechoso.	The reading of good books is profitable.
El dulce cantar de las aves.	The sweet singing of the birds.
El amar una madre á sus hijos es natural.	A mother's loving her children is natural.

322. The Spanish uses the infinitive after the prepositions which, in English, take the present participle:—

Comió antes de salir.	He dined before going out.
Habló sin saber lo que decía.	He spoke without knowing what he was saying.
Después de escribir la carta.	After writing the letter.
Empezó por confesar la verdad.	He began by confessing the truth.
No tardaré en poner por obra esa idea.	I shall not delay in putting into execution that idea.
Preguntaré hasta saberlo.	I shall ask until I know it.
Á pesar de decírselo yo, el rey.	In spite of me, the king, telling him so.
Las Novedades se complace en hacer pública tan halagüeña noticia.	The News takes pleasure in making public such a flattering piece of news.

323. Other uses of the infinitive are —

a. In general questions :—

¿Cómo pintar mi deleite al ver tan linda criatura? How describe my delight at seeing such a pretty creature?

b. In questions expressing surprise, indignation, etc. :—

¿Él aceptar tal oferta? ¡Jamás! He accept such an offer? Never!

c. With á and the article in temporal clauses :—

Al entrar en la calle se detuvo. When entering the street he stopped.

Al ponerse el sol, desapareció. At the setting of the sun it disappeared.

d. With á and de to form conditional clauses :—

Á saber yo el delito, no le hubiera perdonado. If I had known the crime, I should not have pardoned him.

De haberlo hecho él, habría abusado de la hospitalidad de su amigo. If he had done it, he would have committed an offense against the hospitality of his friend.

e. As a general or impersonal imperative :—

¡Obedecer! ¡No alborotar! Obey! Don't raise a disturbance!

Con que, no faltar. Therefore, don't fail.

Dirigirse por escrito á X. Y. Address in writing X. Y.

324. The use or omission of the preposition, which is the equivalent of the to of the English infinitive, is not easy to fix by rules, but some help may be given. It is determined somewhat by the inherent nature of the noun, adjective, or verb on which the Spanish infinitive depends. The subject may be treated under the following headings :—

a. De is used before a dependent infinitive —

i. After most nouns and a few adjectives : —

Tengo ganas de ir á patinar.	I have a desire to go skating.
Tenga V. la bondad de escuchar mi charme.	Have the goodness to listen to me.
Tiene intención de casarse.	He intends to get married.
Yo no soy capaz de hacerlo.	I am not capable of doing it.
Seguro de llevarse el primer premio.	Sure of carrying off the first prize.
Temeroso de salir engañado.	Afraid of being deceived.

2. When an infinitive, depending on an adjective or the verb to be (ser), may logically be turned into a passive : —

Reviste una importancia difícil de exagerar.	It assumes an importance difficult to be exaggerated.
Nada es más fácil de remediar.	Nothing is more easy to be remedied.
Una declaración imposible de comprender.	A declaration impossible to be understood.
Eran de ver los saraos que había entonces en los palacios.	The entertainments which were then given in the palaces were worth being seen.
No es de extrañar que sea así.	It is not to be wondered at that it is so.
Es de esperar que no vendrá.	It is to be hoped that he will not come.

b. After a few nouns and adjectives á is used : —

Desde largo tiempo era su ambición á venir á Nueva York.	For a long time his ambition had been to come to New York.
Hasta que se establece su derecho á desembarcar.	Until his right to land is established.
Se hallaba proxima á desfallecer.	She was ready to faint.

c. An infinitive usually takes no preposition when it depends on a noun or adjective standing in a predicate relation:—

Gran parte es de la fortuna venir un hombre en una edad ú otra.

It is largely a matter of chance whether a man is born in one age or another.

Cosa es clara y conocida ser la historia luz de la verdad.

It is a clear and well-known fact that history is the light of truth.

Mejor fuera no hablar de ello.

It would be better not to speak of it.

Acaso no sea posible volver á verle.

Perhaps it is not possible that we shall see him again.

Yo creo de mi deber aprovechar
esta ocasión.

I think it is my duty to take advantage of this occasion.

Creemos del caso dar opinión sobre lo que en otra sección tomamos del Herald.

We think it is pertinent to give our opinion on what we have elsewhere copied from the Herald.

La visita que tuvieron VV. á bien hacerme.

The visit which you were kind enough to make me.

325. An infinitive depending on a verb takes either de, á, or no preposition. Except after verbs of motion, when á is used, por or para will appear as the equivalent of the English to, meaning in order to. A list of the more common verbs of the first three categories is here given. Verbs marked with a star (*) are irregular.

Those followed by de are:—

abstenerse,* abstain.

cesar, cease, stop.

acordarse,* remember.

 jurar, swear.
 lisonjearse, flatter oneself.
 ocuparse, busy oneself.

 tratar, try.

326. Verbs requiring á usually have an inherent meaning of motion or tendency towards. Such are:—

acertar,* happen, succeed.
 alcanzar, succeed, reach.
 aprender, learn, teach.
 aspirar, aspire.
 atreverse, venture, dare.
 comenzar,* begin.
 condenar, condemn.
 convidar, invite.
 dar,* give.
 decidirse, decide.
 detenerse,* stop, desist.
 echar, begin.
 empezar,* begin.
 enseñar, teach.
 esforzarse,* endeavor.
 enviar, send.

 habituar, accustom.
 inducir,* induce.
 invitar, invite.
 ir,* go.
 negarse,* refuse.
 obligar, oblige.
 ponerse,* begin.
 principiar, begin.
 resignarse, resign oneself.
 resistirse, resist.
 salir,* go out.
 volver,* return (227).

327. Finally, certain verbs govern the infinitive directly without a connecting preposition. The more common of these are:—

aconsejar, advise.
 bastar, suffice.
 conviene,* it is proper.
 deber, ought, must, be.
 declarar, declare.

decir,* say.
 dejar, let, allow.
 desear, wish.
 determinar, determine.
 dignarse, condescend.
 esperar, hope, expect.
 gustar, please, like.

hacer,* make, do, cause.	preferir,* prefer. impedir,* prevent.	pretender, claim, try. intentar, attempt.	procurar, try.
lograr, succeed.	prohibir, forbid. mandar, order.	prometer, promise.
más vale,* it is better.	querer,* wish, be willing.
merecer, deserve, merit.	resolver,* resolve.
necesitar, need, want.	saber,* know how, can.
ofrecer, offer.	sentir,* regret.
osar, dare, venture.	servirse,* please, help oneself.
parecer, seem, appear.	soler,* be accustomed.
pensar,* think, intend.	temer, fear. poder,* be able, can.

a. Verbs indicating the functions of sight and hearing take preferably the infinitive without a preposition but may take the gerund:—

Le oigo hablar or hablando con mi amigo. I hear him talk or talking with my friend.

Le veo dibujar or dibujando. I see him sketch or sketching.

b. For para before an infinitive, see 247, a and b, and for por see 246, e.

THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE

328. The present participle as such has now but few forms in use. Such other forms as exist are used as nouns or adjectives. The following and a few others (all from intransitive verbs) occur with an undoubted participial force:—

consistente, consisting.	pendiente, pending, hanging. dependiente, depending.	perteneciente, belonging.
existente, existing.	procedente, proceeding, coming.
obediente, obeying.	referente, referring.

Examples:—

- Una carga consistente en minerales, cueros, y café. A cargo consisting of minerals, leather, and coffee.
- Efectos pertenecientes á la Cruz Roja. Effects belonging to the Red Cross.
- Una cruz de brillantes pendiente de su cuello. A cross of brilliants hanging from her neck.

THE GERUND

329. The present participle being no longer in general use as such, its functions are discharged by the gerund, which has but one form, and differs but little, in its use, from our present participle. We need only to note the principal differences, which are—

a. To indicate a completed action:—

Llegando mi amigo, partimos á cazar. My friend having arrived, we started out hunting.

b. To express cause, manner, means, time:—

Gana su pan cotidiano vendiendo periódicos. He earns his daily bread by selling newspapers.

Los males vienen corriendo. Misfortunes come rapidly.

Ella se salió con la suya lisonjeándole. She carried her point by flattering him.

Murió siendo muy joven. He died when he was very young.

No quería avanzar, estando ausente el general. He did not wish to advance while the general was absent.

c. Absolutely in place of a finite verb:—

Les consulté si creían que podía continuar el combate, contestando que no. I consulted them as to whether they thought I could continue the fight, and they answered no.

d. The gerund occurs with en to express an action completed before that of the personal verb; but as the same idea can be rendered without en, this preposition is rarely used:—

¿Qué no hará (en) llegando á What will he not do after ser tu marido? becoming your husband?

e. The compound forms are of quite frequent use, but as they are constructed in the same way as the simple, a single example will suffice:—

El senador habiendo concluido The senator having concluded su discurso se sentó. his speech sat down.

NOTE.—For the use of the gerund with estar and verbs of motion, see 140 and 140, a.

THE PAST PARTICIPLE

330. The past participle used as such or as an adjective varies for gender and number:—

El proyecto de ley votado por el The bill having been passed by Senado fué rechazado por la the Senate was rejected by Cámara. the House.

Su hija amada murió. His beloved daughter died.

See also 138, 4, and 145, d.

331. Special cases of its use are —

a. In absolute constructions:—

Pasado el momento de peligro, The moment of danger having renovamos nuestros esfuerzos. passed, we renewed our efforts.

*b. After después de, antes de, luego de :—*

Después de acabada la tarea, After having finished the task fuimos á casa. we went home.

Antes de concluido su discurso Before having concluded his se desmayó. speech, he fainted.

Luego de contádomelo no quiso As soon as he had related it to hablar más. me, he would not speak any more.

*c. After para and por :—*

No es una proposición para It is not a proposition to be rechazada. rejected.

Entonces se dió por vencido. Then he gave up as conquered.

FORMS OF ADDRESS (TRATAMIENTOS)

332.

a. Señor García, Mr. Garcia.

Señor Carlos García, Mr. Charles Garcia.

Señor Don C. García, Mr. Charles Garcia.

Don Carlos (no equivalent in English).

b. Señora García, Mrs. Garcia.

Señora Josefa García, Mrs. Josephine Garcia.

Señora Doña J. García, Mrs. Josephine Garcia.

Doña Josefa (no English equivalent).

c. Señorita García, Miss Garcia.

Señorita María García, Miss Mary Garcia.

Señorita María, Miss Mary.

d. The above are the forms of address when speaking to people. When speaking about them, señor, señora, and señorita must be preceded by the definitive article:—

El señor, la señora y la señorita Mr., Mrs., and Miss Garcia.
García.

e. Caballero and señor are our sir, the latter (señor) being a little more distant and formal and consequently always used in addressing deliberative bodies. For instance, in the Cortes, a speaker would address his auditors as señores; but, if speaking to an audience of ladies and gentlemen, he would say: Señoras, señoritas y caballeros. After sí, yes, and no, no, señor is always used: Sí, señor; no, señor.

f. Señor is used before all titles in formal address:—

Buenos días, señor capitán.	Good morning, Captain.
¿Está el señor profesor?	Is the professor at home?

g. El señor y la señora (or los señores) are used by servants in speaking of the master and mistress of the house.

h. In speaking of a person's relatives, politeness requires us to say: su (your) señor padre, su señora madre, su señorita hermana, etc., instead of su padre, etc.

i. When talking to a man of his wife; we say su (your) señora; while he will mention her as mi señora or mi esposa, or less formally, mi mujer.

j. Don and doña are only used before baptismal names, which are the common forms of address, where we use Mr., Mrs., etc., with the family name.

As in English, men are also addressed familiarly by their family names.

k. Señorito is used by servants in their intercourse with their masters who are young men. It is also quite generally used by the lower orders in addressing men who are not their masters.

l. Spanish family names consist of two parts connected by y. The first is the name of the father, the second, that of the mother: Pascual Cervera y Topete. The second part is frequently dropped.

m. A woman, when she marries, keeps her maiden name but joins it to the family name of her husband by de. For instance, if Josefa Pérez marries a Mr. García, her name becomes Josefa Pérez de García. She is commonly known as Señora Pérez, or Doña Josefa, but not as Señora García.

EPISTOLARY FORMALITIES

334. Spanish letter-headings and forms of address differ but slightly from our own. We need only note the use of nuestro or nuestros, whenever several persons address one or more persons, as if we should say: Our dear sir or our dear sirs; and further that, in certain forms of address, the adjectives, while essential in Spanish, have no equivalents in English, and have either to be omitted in translating or rendered by our simpler forms of address. The following will suffice as examples of the common modes of address:—

a. Formal:—

Muy señor mío, Dear Sir.	Muy señoritas mías, Dear
Muy señores míos, Dear Sirs.	Misses —.
Muy señor nuestro, Dear Sir.	Muy señora mía, Dear Madam.
Muy señores nuestros, Dear Sirs.	Muy señora nuestra, Dear Madam.
Mi distinguido amigo, Esteemed friend.	Muy estimada señora N., Dear Mrs. N.
Muy señorita mía, Dear Miss —.
Muy distinguido señor mío, Dear Sir.
Muy señora mía y de mi mayor consideración, Dear Madam. Reverendo Padre or Respetable señor. (To a priest or clergyman.)

b. Less formal: —

Muy Sr. mío y distinguido amigo, Dear Sir and (distinguished) friend.

Muy señor mío y amigo, Dear Sir and friend.

c. Informal: —

Apreciables amigos míos, My dear friends.

Querido amigo nuestro, Dear friend.

Muy estimados amigos nuestros, Esteemed friends.

Mi respetable amigo, My dear friend.

Estimado amigo mío, My esteemed friend.

Mi bueno y querido amigo, My (good and) dear friend.

d. Familiar: —

Mi querido Juan, My dear John.

Amigo José, Friend Joe.

Queridísima Anita, My dearest Anita.

Mi más querido amigo, My dearest friend.

NOTE.—The above are the usual forms, but there may be others, depending on the will and temperament of the writer.

335. Letters may begin in one of many ways, but the following may be taken as specimens in formal and informal correspondence. For abbreviations see 333:—

Aunque no tengo el honor de conocer á V., me tomo la libertad de dirigirle estas líneas para . . .

EXERCISES

REMARKS.—The grammar references and Spanish exercises should be thoroughly learned before an attempt is made to write the English exercises, as many words, expressions, and explanations are there given which could not be so clearly stated in the vocabulary, and hence are not therein repeated, unless they occur in other exercises, in which case they are again properly provided for.

In the English exercises, translate all words in parentheses (), and leave out all those in brackets [].

The small figures to the right of several English words indicate the order in which their Spanish equivalents are to be placed.

The figures in heavy type in parentheses refer to sections of the grammar, and should always be looked up before the sentences are translated.

Words connected by a dash (—) will be found in the vocabulary under the first word.

ESCIENAS SOCIALES

I

(Don Benito (Benedict) encuentra á su amigo, don Diego (James) en la calle.)

DON B. ¡Hola, don Diego! ¿Qué tal (sigue V.)?

DON D. Muy bien, para servir á V. Y ese cuerpo ¿cómo está?

DON B. No mal, gracias. ¿Cómo se hallan (están) en su casa?

DON D. Tal cual; sólo que mi mujer está un poco indisposta desde ayer. Tiene un resfriado y le duele la cabeza.

DON B. Lo siento mucho. Quizás sea trancazo. Se me ha dicho que desde algunos días se han declarado unos cuantos casos en la ciudad.

DON D. Es posible que sea trancazo lo que tiene mi esposa, pero pienso que no. Los síntomas no lo indican.

Por lo menos espero que no lo sea, porque es una terrible enfermedad, y parece que se va poniendo más peligroso y mortífero cada año.

DON B. Sí; sobretodo para los ancianos. Usted sabe que mi pobre padre (q. e. g. e.) murió de él el invierno pasado. La humedad de nuestro clima no permite esperar su pronta extirpación, una vez que echa raíces aquí.

DON D. Tiene V. razón, visto que los médicos son absolutamente impotentes para curarlo. La última vez que tuve el trancazo, probé todos los remedios que me sugirieron mi médico y mis amigos, resultando que yo fuí durante meses enteros una especie de botica andante, siendo el hazmerreír de todo mi vecindario. Y lo gracioso del caso es que no hallé alivio alguno antes de la llegada del verano. — ¡Ah! hé ahí que viene un caballero que conozco, el señor Martínez. — Buenos días, señor Martínez, (ofreciéndole la mano) ¿cómo lo pasa V. esta mañana?

EL SEÑOR M. Excelentemente bien, para servir á usted. ¿Y usted?

DON D. Yo no podría mejorar de salud, gracias. (Volviéndose á don B.) Este caballero es un amigo mío. Permitáme se lo presente. — Señor Martínez, tengo el honor de presentar á usted mi amigo, el señor don Benito Pérez y Sellés, de quien V. ha oído hablar sin duda.

DON B. Caballero, celebro muchísimo la ocasión de conocer á usted.

EL SEÑOR M. Y yo tengo mucho gusto en conocer á usted, caballero. Puedo decir que le conozco indirectamente, por decirlo así, siendo su señor padre corresponsal de nuestra casa de banca.

DON B. Ah! ¿V. es banquero?

EL SEÑOR M. Sí señor; tenemos un banco de depósitos en esta ciudad y sucursales en otras ciudades. Yo soy el gobernador. Si V. tiene operaciones bancarias que ajustar, seremos muy felices en servir á usted.

DON B. Le agradezco á V. infinito. Aprovecharé su buena oferta, si tuviere ocasión de hacerlo.

EL SEÑOR M. (mirando su reloj). Son las nueve y media ; tengo que marcharme. Pues, caballeros, ¡qué ustedes lo pasen bien ! Me llevo la esperanza, don Benito, de que volveremos á reanudar nuestro conocimiento. Reconózcame V. por su servidor. ¡Adiós, caballeros !

DON B. y DON D. ¡Vaya V. con Dios, caballero !

DON D. Es un perfecto caballero y muy hombre de mundo. Hice su conocimiento hace dos años, cuando estábamos veraneando mi mujer y yo en las montañas.— Eso me hace pensar en que se aproxima el verano. ¿Adónde va V. á veranear este año ?

DON B. No sabemos todavía. Todo lo dejo á la discreción de mi mujer, opinando que es, si no la sola, á lo menos, la mejor filosofía para un hombre á quien gusta la paz y tranquilidad. Los maridos nos lisonjeamos de que gobernamos en nuestro reíncito, la casa ; pero nada y nada. No somos sino tenientes gobernadores. La mujer se sale siempre con la suya. Por consiguiente, cuando llega el verano, yo digo á mi media naranja : “¿Adónde quieres tú ir á veranear ?” — Si opta por las montañas, no me opongo ; si prefiere ir á orillas de la mar, la digo : ; corriente ! Como nuestro primer padre, Adán, me cómo el fruto que se me ofrece.

DON D. Por supuesto piensa su señora que V. es un marido modelo. — Se me ocurre el cuento del filósofo francés á quien se vino á decir que un incendio se había declarado en su casa y respondió : “Eso no me importa ; vaya á decírselo á mi mujer. Yo no me mezclo jamás en los asuntos de familia.”

DON B. ¡Ja! ¡ja! ¡ja! Eso es impagable. Aquel hombre había alcanzado el verdadero nirvana de los indios. Aun Sócrates, con toda su abnegación de sí mismo, no llevó su filosofía tan lejos; porque volvía á casa de vez en cuando sólo por el placer de hacerse reprender por su cara mitad. — Pues ¿por qué está V. tan meditabundo?

DON D. Estoy pensando en lo que V. me ha referido. Dudo que esa filosofía sea la mejor, sobretodo cuando recuerdo lo que ha dicho otro filósofo, á saber, que la mujer es como la dinamita, porque jamás se sabe lo que hará, conocidas las circunstancias.

DON B. Dispénsemelo V., amigo mío. Temo que V. no me haya comprendido. — Cuando yo dije que concedía á mi mujer una licencia completa, hablaba sólo de los asuntos domésticos. Casa afuera yo mantengo mi autoridad y derechos. Nunca permito á mi mujer que se meta en mis negocios. Eso sería volver el mundo patas arriba. (Dan las diez en la torre de la iglesia de Nuestra Señora.) ¡Diablo mil veces! ¡Cuánto tiempo hemos estado charlando! ¡Qué habladóres somos los hombres! Me voy con la música á otra parte!¹ Salí á hacer compras para mi mujer, y estoy seguro de que me reñirá cuando vuelva á casa. ¡Abur! — V. vendrá al Círculo esta noche ¿verdad?

DON D. Sí que vendré, y acabaremos el partido de billar que comenzamos ayer y no acabamos.

DON B. Eso sí, lo haremos. Hasta la vista. Póngame á los pies de su señora. (Sale).

DON D. (Solo). ¡Qué gurumino es aquel hombre! Á que en casa no dice esta boca es mía.² Me hace gracia, cuando habla de su autoridad de casa afuera. Por aquel lado adelanta como el cangrejo.³ (Reparando en una señora que viene por la calle). ¡Caramba! Allí está mi mujer que viene. Voy yo también tomar las de Villa-diego.⁴ (Se va á todo escape).

(Una dama, la señora María Mendoza de Auñón, está haciendo visitas, y su coche pára delante de una casa grande, la de la señora Isabel Díaz de Blanco. Se apea y se acerca al pórtico donde está el chico de la casa con su chucio. El perro se levanta erizándose.)

LA DAMA. Chico, tu perro va á morderme.

EL CHICO. No señora. No muerde sino cuando come.

LA DAMA. ¡Pero si me muestra los dientes!

EL CHICO. Eso no lo niego; y si V. tuviera dientes tan blancos y bellos como los de mi perro, los mostraría también.

LA DAMA. Eres tú un mal muchachito. — ¿Está tu señora madre?

EL CHICO. Sí, señora; está con otra dama; pero dudo que esté para usted. Voy á preguntárselo.

LA DAMA. No; espera. Voy á llamar yo misma. (Empuja el botón y suena el timbre eléctrico. La criada viene á abrir). ¿Está en casa la señora?

LA CRIADA. Sí, señora; tenga V. la bondad de entrar. (Trae la tarjeta á su ama, quien viene á encontrar á la visita, dándole la mano, diciendo):

LA SRA. DÍAZ. Sea usted bienvenida, doña María. Dichosos los ojos que ven á usted. ¿Cómo ha estado V. desde la última vez que tuve el gusto de verla?

LA SRA. MENDOZA. Medianamente, mil gracias. ¿Y cómo se encuentra V., doña Isabel?

LA SRA. D. Oh! en cuanto á mí, yo estoy siempre buenas. Venga que la quiero presentar á mi buena amiga, la señora Oñate.—Señora Oñate, tengo el gusto de presentar á V. la señora doña María Mendoza de Auñón.

LA SRA. O. (Levantándose). Á mí me es muy grato hacer su conocimiento, señora Mendoza.

LA SRA. M. Muchísimas gracias. Me considero muy dichosa en hacer el de usted.

LA SRA. D. Pero, siéntense VV., señoras, y continuemos nuestra plática.—Hablábamos del baile de anoche. No tuvimos el honor de ver á V., doña María.

LA SRA. M. No, no podía venir, porque tenía á mi hermana muy mala.

LA SRA. D. ¿Su señorita hermana estaba mala? ¿Qué tenía?

LA SRA. M. Tenía una tóz y gran calentura, y estaba obligada á hacer cama.

LA SRA. D. Lo siento muchísimo y espero que se halle mejor hoy.

LA SRA. M. Por supuesto. Á no estarlo ella, yo no estaría aquí.—Ustedes hablaban del baile de la ministra, me decía V. ¿Fué tan frecuentado como de costumbre?

LA SRA. O. Que sí, que sí, y aun más, visto que revestía más importancia que de ordinario. Se dió la función especialmente en honor de la segunda hija de los ministros. Fué su primer baile, y era un contento verla, rodeada, como lo estaba, por jóvenes y ancianos, grandes y pequeños, bailando como Terpsícore y sonriendo y ruborizándose como Aurora.

LA SRA. D. Pero V. da en el lirismo, amiga mía.

LA SRA. O. ¡Qué mucho, si me corre en las venas! Mi pobre padre (que la santa gloria haya) era un poeta de los más sublimes. Además, la ocasión hace al ladrón, como se dice. ¿Quién pudiera menos de entusiasmarse hablando de aquella divina criatura, hermosa como un ángel de la gloria.

LA SRA. D. Dale con Juana.—Naturalmente yo no quiero decir que la chiquilla no sea todo lo que V. dice; sólo que lo expresaría de otra manera.

LA SRA. M. ¿Y esa Juliana estuvo en el baile?

LA SRA. O. Por sabido, con su narigón y ojos de bitoque. ¡Jesús, que coqueta! ¡Y cuántas locuras cometió anoche!

LA SRA. M. ¡Válgame Dios! Parece mentira que á su edad no tenga todavía la muela del juicio.

LA SRA. D. Sí, sí, la tiene, pero es postiza. (Todas ríen á carcajadas).

LA SRA. M. Pero chanzas aparte, señoras; ¿no han echado VV. de ver que todos sus dientes superiores son artificiales?

LA SRA. D. Cabal! Se ríe por nada, como ustedes saben, pero jamás abre la boca, temerosa de perder su dentadura postiza, que no la viene bien.

LA SRA. O. Eso puedo yo afirmar con certidumbre y al mismo tiempo relatar á ustedes un incidente que de seguro las hará reír.—Estábamos yo y nuestra amiga en una reunión de media docena de personas algunas semanas há. Alguien contó un chiste de lo más ridículo. Á la pobre de Juliana se la olvidaron los dientes, y rió á mandíbula batiente. Cayeron en la alfombra en donde jugaba un gatito, que pensando eran un ratón se los asió y fué al patio á todo correr. Siendo de noche, cuando, según el refrán, todos los gatos son pardos, tuvo el criado mucho que hacer antes de que pudiera devolver á la pobrecita sus preciosos dientes. Entre tanto ella estaba entre la espada y la pared;⁵ porque, aunque tiene malas pulgas, como es sabido, no podía ni quejarse ni mostrarnos los dientes, no teniéndolos, ni en fin abrir una boca, que, aun con su dentadura de á cien reales, con perdón sea dicho, deja mucho de ser encantadora.

LA SRA. M. El cuentecito es divertido; pero baste de Juliana y volvamos al baile. ¿Qué traje lucía la señora Aguilar de Cerón?

LA SRA. D. Oh! el de siempre por supuesto. No tiene otro que el que compró hace dos años. Sólo que el viejo trapo ha sido reformado por segunda vez este invierno, queriendo imitar los de última moda.

LA SRA. O. No puede hacer otra cosa, como que su marido es cesante desde dos años y medio, y no hay perro ni gato que no sepa que está, como la manga de un chaleco, completamente á seco. Y cuando uno no tiene monises, su mujer no puede pintar la mona.

LA SRA. M. Ni el águila tampoco, si ustedes quieren excusar el juego de palabra. Cerón es inimitable como callejero. Se le encuentra en todas partes buscando influencia política, según dice. Azotar las calles puede ser agradable para quien ama la ociosidad, pero no hace cocer el puchero.

LA SRA. D. ¡Oh que no! En estos días de Dios se necesita mucho dinero para proveer á los gastos ordinarios y extraordinarios que exige nuestra vida de alta presión.

LA SRA. M. Es verdad; y no comprendo que la señora Aguilar se hubiese divertido tanto anoche. Dicen que bailó, sonrió y chanceó como la que más.

LA SRA. O. ¿Por qué no? Diz que la invitación es señal de que su marido será rehabilitado dentro de poco.

LA SRA. M. ¡Á que no! Eso es imposible. El ministro actual tiene tantos amigos á quienes lo debe todo, que no puede pensar en dar un puesto á uno á quien no debe nada.

LA SRA O. No le hace. El arma formidable que más garantiza el triunfo en las lides políticas, dice mi esposo, es la osadía, y al señor Cerón no le falta aquella arma. . . . (Entra el señor Blanco).

EL SR. B. Á los pies de ustedes, señoras.

LA SRA. O. Beso á V. la mano, caballero.

LA SRA. M. ¿Qué tal sigue V., don José? ¿V. vuelve de su despacho?

EL SR. B. No, señora. Hoy es día festivo. Yo estaba en la habitación vecina.

LA SRA. O. Entonces, V. nos acechaba. Quien escucha su mal oye.⁶

EL SR. B. Dispénseme V., señora; yo no oí mi mal, sino el de mis amigos. ¿Pluguiera á Dios que no fuese así! (Todas se miran desconcertadas, y don José, como si hablara para sí, sigue diciendo): Es una gran lástima que las malas lenguas no sean postizas como los dientes de nuestros amigos. En ese caso podría suceder que cayeran al suelo al reír los hombres, y minino, á no ser por el veneno que contienen, pudiera comérselas.

LA SRA. D. No te pasas de cortés hoy, amigo mío.

EL SR. B. ¿Y por qué no, gloria mía? — Yo hablaba de los hombres. No hay malas lenguas mujeriles. Ustedes las mujeres son todas ángeles. (Aparte). Sólo que en la mujer no se sabe donde el ángel finaliza y el diablo principia.

LA CRIADA. (Entra y dice á su ama): Señora, la merienda está servida. (Sale).

LA SRA. D. (Á las sras. M. y O.). Dispénsennos. ¿Ustedes gustan, verdad?

LAS SRAS. M. y O. (Levantándose). Muchas gracias. Estábamos para marcharnos. ¡Que aproveche á VV.! Y trate V., doña Isabel, de corrigir á ese mal hombre.

EL SR. B. Digan VV. más bien : á ese mal salvaje.

LA SRA. D. Oh, mi marido no es malo. Perro que ladra no muerde jamás.— Pues ¡vayan VV. con Dios!

LAS SRAS. M. y O. ¡Y queden VV. con Dios! Eso no lo decimos con lenguas postizas, señor don Satírico Blanco. (Salen).

EL SR. B. ¡Dios mío! ¡Qué mujeres tan comadreñas! Y yo no comprendo, querida, que tú puedas consentir en tijerear con aquellas atolondradas.

LA SRA. D. Oh! la mujer que no chismeá no vive. Además, quien con los lobos anda, á aullar se enseña.⁷ Mejor sería no estar en el mundo que no saber lo que sucede en él. La vida mujeril es tan estrecha, tan vacía que moriríamos las mujeres, si no pudiésemos poner la lengua en nuestros amigos. En cambio, nos pagan en la misma moneda, y así somos tales para cuales.

EL SR. B. (Aparte). Hay un fondo de verdad en lo que dice. (Alto). ¡Qué parlera eres tú!

LA SRA. D. Yo no hago sino imitar el ejemplo de las que conmigo frecuentan la alta sociedad. Dime con quién andas, y te diré quién eres.⁸ En todas partes cuecen habas.⁹ ¿Cómo puedes esperar que tu mujer sea distinta de las con quienes se acompaña? Y además, yo confieso que el charlar de vez en cuando con mis amigas es para mí un pasatiempo sumamente grato, sea lo que fuere el sujeto de la conversación.— ¡Ea José! tú oíste lo que dijo la Mendoza acerca de su ausencia del baile ¿verdad?— Pretendió que su hermana estaba enferma; pero nada de eso. La verdadera causa era de que no recibió invitación.

EL SR. B. ¿Y por qué no la recibió, vista su posición social?

LA SRA. D. Voy á decirte lo que me contó la señora Oñate.

EL SR. B. Ahora no. Tengo un hambre de todos los diablos, y si no cómo en el instante (haciéndola caricias), habrá aquí repugnantes escenas de canibalismo. Vamos á merendar, y tú me lo contarás comiendo. (Empuja las puertas corredizas y se ve el comedor.)

III.

389. DICHOS, PEPE (JOE) Y EL PERRO.

(Padre y madre se sientan en la mesa. Pepe entra con el perro.)

PEPE. (Tirando una silla hacia la mesa.) ¡Ven acá, Toto!

LA SRA. D. ¿Qué vas á hacer, chiquillo?

PEPE. Voy á ponerlo en la silla, para que coma á mi lado.

LA SRA. D. ¡Á que no! Eso no lo permito nunca jamás.

PEPE. Pues, si mi Toto no puede comer conmigo, yo no como tampoco.

LA SRA. D. Que sí que tú comes, pero no con el chuco.

PEPE. Yo no como un bocado, si no con Toto. (Yéndose furioso con el perro.)

EL SR. B. Tú vas á hacer enfermo al chico. Sabes que es enfermizo y que no ha comido desde esta mañana. Vuelve, Pepe, con tu chuco. Váis á sentaros á mi lado y no al de esa mala mamá.

LA SRA. D. Y tú vas á echar á perderle, y yo seré la que tendrá que sufrir la consecuencia.

EL SR. B. Y con justicia. Le cogí ayer un cigarro en la boca y me dijo que tú se lo habías comprado, cuando fuisteis á pasear.

LA SRA. D. ¿Tú dijiste al papá que te compré el cigarrillo? ¿No te dije que no debieras decírselo? ¡Es muy malo chismear!

PEPE. Papá me dice que no debo jamás mentir, y no lo hago.

LA SRA. D. La verdad es que era una flaqueza de mi parte. El chico me atormentaba, diciendo que quería aprender á fumar como sus compañeros, y cedí á sus ruegos.

EL SR. B. ¡Á otro perro con ese hueso!¹⁰ El caso es que tú no ejerces la debida autoridad en la casa.

LA SRA. D. Á no ser por mí, no tendríamos casa alguna. Á principios de nuestro matrimonio, tú empezaste á soltar la perra, y si no fuera por mis esfuerzos sobrehumanos, tú hubieses gastado toda nuestra fortuna, y ahora no tendríamos una perra chica. ¿No es verdad, mi señor?

EL SR. B. Acabemos, señora, de una vez, esta deliciosa escena de familia, y prestemos atención á aquel chocolate humeante.—Ven, Pepe; siéntate con Toto.

LA SRA. D. ¿Tú consientes en que acerque el perro á la mesa?

EL SR. B. ¡Sí! ¡que lo ponga en donde quiera! Yo soy de la opinión de Rousseau, á saber, que el perro es la más sublime expresión de la perfección humana. No hay cuadrúpedo más noble, ni bípedos que le igualen. Á la vez que es muy fiel, es también el más imprudente de los seres, visto que no se informa jamás de si su dueño tiene razón ó no; no se inquieta de si éste sube ó baja la escalera de la vida; no pregunta si es rico ó pobre, tonto ó sabio, pecador ó santo. Es él su dueño y compañero. Eso le basta; y venga lo que viniere, la dicha ó la desdicha, buen renombre ó malo, honra ó vergüenza, se arrima á su amo para alegrarle, guardarle, y, si es necesario, sacrificarle su propia vida.—¿En dónde encontrarás un hombre siempre agraciado, siempre cariñoso, jamás egoísta, olvidando las injurias y recordando sólo los beneficios? No le busques; sería inútil. Pero toma al primer perro que viniere, y desde el momento en que te adopta, tú hallarás en él todas esas cualidades. Te amará sin reserva. Su mayor felicidad la encontrará estando contigo; y, si tú fueses reducido á pedir el pan cotidiano, no sólo te ayudará, sino que no te abandonará ni siquiera para seguir un rey á su palacio. — Además, el perro no chisfea como nuestros llamados amigos; no divulga nuestros secretos de familia como los criados (mirando á la criada); no se obstina como los malos muchachitos (sonriendo á Pepe); no hace preguntas indiscretas como las mujeres (fijando los ojos en su mujer); nunca regatea sobre su salario como los hombres; y al fin y al fallo, está siempre listo para triscar y regocijarnos. — Toda familia debiera tener un buen perro y tratarle como un príncipe.

PEPE. (Dando palmadas). ¡Bueno por papá! ¡Un aplauso á mi papá! Y mirad á Toto. Escucha como si entendiera todo lo que decía.

LA SRA. D. ¿Qué nos cuentas tú? ¡El perro comprender todo ese chapurrado con que acaba de inundarnos tu papá! Temo que salgas malo como ese tu padre.

EL SR. B. Que sí mé entiende el chicho; ¿verdad, Toto? (El perro colea). ¿No ves que dice que sí con la cola? ¡Vamos! ¿Puedes decirme por qué el perro menea la cola?

LA SRA. D. Dispensa. Yo no me entusiasmo por tus tonterías.

EL SR. B. La respuesta es sencilla, como vas á ver. Es porque el perro es más fuerte que la cola. Si no lo fuera, la cola menearía al perro. La cola es la lengua del perro, y sabe gobernar esta lengua mejor que gobiernan su lengua ciertas mujeres (con intención) que conozco.

LA SRA. D. Puesto que das en los enigmas, ¿quieres tú decirme qué diferencia hay entre un espejo y un hombre?

EL SR. B. Nada de más fácil. El espejo refleja las vanidades de la mujer y el hombre no lo hace.

LA SRA. D. Nada de eso. La diferencia es de que el espejo es siempre pulido y que el hombre no lo es.

EL SR. B. Y dime por tu turno qué diferencia hay de un espejo á una mujer.

LA SRA. D. Te lo digo sin vacilar. Es de que el espejo refleja todo lo feo moral y físico del hombre y que la mujer pasa por encima de ello á ojos cerrados.

EL SR. B. Eso sí que no, sino que el espejo refleja sin hablar y que la mujer habla sin reflejar.

LA SRA. D. Lo que prueba la corrección de mi respuesta. Pero prescindamos de comparaciones que, según el barbero de Don Quijote, son odiosas y mal recibidas, y hablemos de algo más divertido.—Te prometí decirte lo que me contó doña Anita acerca de la señora Mendoza.—Dicen que ella y ese pollo de la Embajada francesa se dan citas en el parque, y que la ministra acertando á pasar en coche por la glorieta, no há muchos días, vió á los dos paseándose de bracete y cuchicheándose como dos novios, y que por eso no la envió invitación.—¿No es una vergüenza?

EL SR. B. ¿Y lo sabe su marido?

LA SRA. D. Sí; la aplanchadora me dijo que ella estaba en la cocina, cuando estalló el furor de Auñón. Habló de romper la crisma al joven, afirmando que derramaría la última gota de su propia sangre antes de sufrir tal ultraje. Pero es sabido que los que hablan de sacrificar su última gota de sangre, están siempre escasos de la primera.

EL SR. B. Verdad. Pero no extraño de que su esposa se haya conducido de esa manera. Auñón es graduado de la Universidad y estudiioso, lo cual equivale á decir:

Bachiller en artes y burro en todas partes.¹¹ Está siempre lleno de sus libros. No sale jamás con su mujer, y apenas la habla en casa. Una mujer, que tiene tanta beldad y atractivos como ella, necesita diversiones. Cuando no las halla en casa, las busca afuera; y no faltan aventureros que la tienten. El hombre es fuego, la mujer es estopa; viene el diablo y los sopla.

LA SRA D. ¡Cuán indulgente eres tú para con otras mujeres! ¿Qué harías, si yo me portase de la misma manera?

EL SR. B. Te mataría á sangre fría y pegaría un tiro al miserable que osara violar de tal modo la santidad de mi casa.

LA SRA. D. (Chanceando). Veremos. Al freír será el reír.¹² (Todos se levantan de la mesa).

EL SR. B. No hablemos ligeramente de cosas serias. (Enciende un puro y se pone el sombrero).

LA SRA. D. ¿Tú sales? ¿Adónde vas?

EL SR. B. Tengo que poner un telegrama á mi corredor.

LA SRA. D. ¿Por qué no telefonas por un mandadero? El servicio se paga mensualmente, y menester es usarlo.

EL SR. B. No; prefiero salir á estirar las piernas.

LA SRA. D. Confiesa que quieres ir á aquel horrible Círculo en donde pasas tanto tiempo, dejando á solas tu pobre mujercita.

EL SR. B. Es posible que vaya al Club, pero te prometo estar de vuelta dentro de hora y media.

LA SRA. D. Pues, como que quieres de todos modos salir, haz el favor de pasar por la tienda del mercader de vinos y decirle que envíe una caja de vino de pasto, que no tenemos más en la bodega.

PEPE. Papá ¿puedo ir contigo?

EL SR. B. No; quédate en casa para estudiar tus lecciones.

PEPE. (Haciendo pucheros). Estoy seguro de que mamá va á reñirme, cuando esté á solas con ella.

EL SR. B. El gato escaldado del agua fría huye.¹³ — Pues, pon tu gorro. Temo, según dice la mamá, que salgas malo como tu malhadado padre.

PEPE. (Saltando de gozo). ¡Victoria! ¡Ven acá, Toto! ¡Salta! (El perro salta por encima de una silla y con la cola arroja al suelo una preciosa jícara, haciéndola añicos).

LA SRA. D. ¡Qué animalucho! — ¡La última del juego de tacitas que me dió mi santa madre (que en gloria esté)! (Á su esposo). ¿Quién ahora echa á perder al chico? — Y la próxima vez que pronuncies tu discurso kilométrico sobre las perfecciones de ese bruto, ¡no olvides esta su hazaña!

EL SR. B. Siento en el alma que haya hecho pedazos tu jícara. Pero ¡á lo hecho pecho!¹⁴ Te compraré otro juego más bonito. (Sale con Pepe y el perro).

IV.

LA SRA. DÍAZ: EN SEGUIDA LA LAVANDERA.

LA SRA. D. (Sola). ¡Dulce Jesús de mi alma! ¿Qué haremos de aquel chico? Es voluntarioso cual una mula y no hay bribonada que no aprenda en las calles. Mi marido tiene mucho de calavera, y Pepe le sale más y más cada día. Es bien el caso de decir: de tal padre tal hijo. — Con todo nos ama á ambos con delirio mi José, y no hay nada que no quisiera hacer por nosotros. Verdaderamente yo creo que si aquel chico tuviera el capricho de poseer la luna como juguete, y es capaz de ello, trataría su padre de ir á descolgársela. ¡Qué padre! ¡qué muchachito!

LA CRIADA. (Entrando). Señora; es la lavandera que viene por la ropa.

LA SRA. D. ¡ Bien ! ¡ que pase ! — Ya puedes levantar la mesa.

LA LAVANDERA. (Entrando). ¡ Buenos días, señora ! He venido por el lavado. No he podido venir ayer por la enfermedad de mi niño que tiene el sarampión y está muy malo.

LA SRA. D. Lo siento mucho, y espero que esté mejor hoy. Afortunadamente mi hijo lo tuvo el año pasado. — Aquí tiene V. la lista. Todas las piezas están marcadas con nuestras iniciales, para que no se confundan con la ropa de otros. — Á propósito, mi esposo se quejó la semana pasada de que las pecheras de las camisas y los puños y cuellos no quedaban bastante tiesos. Usted debiera usar más almidón.

LA LAVANDERA. Dispense V., señora; creo que no es mía la falta sino de la aplanchadora.* — Rocía demasiado la ropa y la deja mojada durante horas; de manera es que se disipa el almidón, y los cuellos y puños no quedan bastante duros.

LA SRA. D. Puede ser. Hablaré á la aplanchadora. — Pues, trate de traerlo todo el viernes á más tardar.

LA LAVANDERA. Sí, señora; yo haré cuánto se pueda, aunque tal vez, á causa de mi chica, no lo traiga antes del sábado. — ¡ Buenas tardes, señora ! (Sale. Se oye un ruido estrepitoso).

LA SRA. D. (Volviéndose hacia la mesa). ¿ Qué es eso, Juana ?

LA CRIADA. La ensaladera que se me escapó de la mano y cayó al suelo.

LA SRA. D. (Con ironía). ¿ Y por qué no bajas á recogerla antes de que se quiebre ?

* In Spain, washing and ironing are distinct trades and are not usually done by one and the same person.

LA CRIADA. (Con inocencia). Ya está hecha pedacitos, señora.

LA SRA. D. ¡Hecha pedacitos aquella ensaladera que me costó un ojo! — Ya voy á decirte, Juana, que no estoy contenta de tí. Desde que recibes las atenciones de aquel joven, no tienes la mente en nada. No cumples con tus deberes como antes, y vas por la casa sembrando la ruina y el destrozo detrás de tí. — ¿Para cuándo es la boda?

LA CRIADA. Dentro de poco, espero.

LA SRA. D. Y yo también. ¡Ojalá que fuese hoy! Porque si tú continúas rompiendo las cosas, como vienes haciéndolo desde algunas semanas, no habrá en la casa más que quebrar.

LA CRIADA. Tanto va el cántaro á la fuente que al fin se quiebra.¹⁵

LA SRA. D. Es una impertinencia que profieres, Juana, y no me gusta nada. Te advierto que desde hoy te busques otra plaza ó te despediré al fin del mes.

LA CRIADA. No se lo dije para gustar á usted, señora, sino á mí misma.

LA SRA. D. (Con enojo, dejando el comedor y avanzando en la sala). ¡Dios mío! ¿En dónde van á parar esas ideas democráticas que debemos á los americanos. — Hace muchos años que los criados vienen dándose aires de principio. Se visten á la última moda, y usan del don y doña entre sí; de manera que en los paseos públicos es casi imposible distinguirlos de entre sus amos. — (Va á sentarse en el taburete del piano y toca una de las "CANCIONES SIN PALABRAS" de Ménelssohn. Despues de acabada la pieza, dice): ¡Qué compositor tan fino era aquel hombre! Su música no tiene la volubilidad de la de Mózart, ni la majestuosa grandeza de la de Beéethoven, pero sí la ternura y riqueza de armonía que concuerda perfectamente con la índole española. (Ejecuta unas gamas en las teclas del piano, entonándolas al mismo tiempo con la voz. Se levanta). Hoy no puedo tocar ni cantar; estoy demasiado agitada. (Sale, corriendo el telón).

391.

V.

(La escena pasa en el CÍRCULO COLÓN.

Al subirse el telón se ven unos doce ó quince caballeros jugando, quiénes al ajedrez, quiénes á los naipes, otros al dominó ó al billar).

EL SR. B. (Entrando con Pepe y el perro). ¡Buenos días, caballeros! No les pregunto cómo lo pasan. Los hombres que se divierten, como VV. lo hacen, ó deben de estar buenos y felices ó rezando por sus pecados. (Él y Pepe se sientan en una mesa, donde hay un pollo puesto á lo Pompadour, fumando un cigarro y acariciando un bigotito de los más delgados). ¡Mozo!

EL MOZO. ¡Ya voy, señor! (Después de breve rato se acerca á la mesa). ¿Qué se le ofrece al señorito?

EL SR. B. Tráigme un rabo de gallo de ginebra y un buen tabaco.—Y tú, Pepe, ¿qué tomas?

PEPE. Lo mismito. (Los caballeros sueltan la carcajada, y Pepe mira desconcertado en torno suyo).

EL SR. B. ¡Cómo! ¡Fuego de Dios! ¡qué guasa! Se me cae la cara de vergüenza. Verdaderamente tú haces adelantos. ¡Ayer un cigarillo, y hoy un rabo de gallo y de ginebra!

EL POLLO. La cabra tira siempre al monte.¹⁶

EL SR. B. No, Pepe, tú tomas una gaseosa que conviene más á tu edad.

PEPE. Pero, papá, la gaseosa no es sino viento endulzado y no tiene nada de sustancioso.

EL SR. B. Pues, escoge entre gaseosa y limonada.

PEPE. No las quiero; son bebidas de niño.

EL SR. B. ¡Caramba y caracoles! — Ven acá, Toto! Te tomamos por juez. Tú escogerás la bebida por tu amo. El cocktail, ¡dos golpes de cola en la alfombra! Gaseosa ó limonada, ¡tres! ¡Ea! (El perro da tres golpes).

PEPE. (Furioso). ¡Fuera de aquí, bruto! No te quiero más. (El perro baja la cola y se esconde debajo de la mesa). Me marcho. ¡Adiós, caballeros!

EL SR. B. ¡Vamos, chiquillo! ¿Te contentarás con una copa de cerveza blanca?

PEPE. ¿Y una cajita de cigarrillos?

EL SR. B. Sí; pero no digas nada á la mamá. (Pepe vuelve á sentarse en la mesa. El mozo trae lo pedido, y el Sr. B. le entrega una propina).

UN CABALLERO. Blanco, tú tienes una verdadera joya en ese chico.

EL POLLO. No dejaría de llevarse el primer premio en una exhibición de bebés.

PEPE. (Poniéndose ceñudo y furioso). Y usted, señor, con su bigote de solterona, se llevaría el primer premio de vanidad en una exhibición de tontos. (Algunos caballeros dejando sus juegos rodean la mesa).

UNO DE ELLOS. (En chanza). Pero, señores, esto es de lo más serio. Este lance debe de servir de base á un duelo de los más formidables. Mas, si cabe, evitémoslo. Es una mala inteligencia, sin duda.

PEPE. (Meneando la cabeza airadamente). Yo no soy un pollito, y no me dejo insultar por el primero que venga. Desde que estoy aquí, ese tipo no cesa de mirarme como si yo tuviera alguna danza de monos en la cara.¹⁷ Al fin me fatiga. (El pollo, viendo las risas supresas de los otros, no sabe que semblante tomar. Al fin cede á los ruegos burlescos del caballero y consiente en pedir perdón á Pepe).

EL POLLO. (Hablando en tono algo cómico). Don Pepe, le pido á V. perdón, y confieso que no tenía la menor intención de ofender la dignidad de un caballero que honro y respeto como el que más. (Se dan las manos, y Pepe bebe su cerveza de un trago. Festivas risas entre los asistentes.)

UN CABALLERO. Alguien ha dicho que los refranes son la sabiduría de las naciones, y podríamos verificar el dicho en este caso, si dijéramos que padre é hijo son lobos de la misma camada.¹⁸ — Blanco no puede contar sus duelos en los dedos de sus manos. Ya recuerdo uno de ellos. — Él y su contrario, que era agregado militar á la legación rusa, habían reñido por una actriz, de la cual éste estaba enamorado, y el amor y la guerra, como es sabido, son una misma cosa. — Fuimos al campo. Yo servía de padrino á Blanco. Se batían á espada y no andaban en chiquitas. El ruso, un loco de atar, se abalanzaba, pensando hender la cabeza á Blanco. Éste paró el golpe, lo que hizo resbalar á su contrincante; y como un rayo la espada de Blanco le atravesaba el corazón.

OTRO CABALLERO. ¡Demonio! ¡que V. tiene interesante hoja de servicio, don José!

EL SR. B. Diga V. más bien: desgraciada; porque yo no ceso de sentir la muerte de aquel hombre que tenía familia. Al regresar nosotros del campo, nos encontraron su mujer y niñita, y era desgarradora la escena que se verificó. — Poco después me casé y renuncié al duelo.

EL CABALLERO. Y bien hizo V., visto que nuestros duelos no son farsas como la mayor parte de los de los franceses. — Hoy mismo leía en el Madrid Cómico un parte divertido de un duelo francés. Los dos combatientes estaban el uno enfrente de un árbol corpulento y el otro cerca de un pozo. Al primer disparo, éste saltó en el pozo, y aquél, detrás del árbol. Después de disipado el humo, los padrinos miraron en torno suyo y, no viendo á nadie, exclamaron: “¡Muy bien, caballeros! La honra está satisfecha. Ustedes se han aniquilado." — Durante la escena algo violenta que acabamos de presenciar, yo no pude menos de recordar esto de los franceses aniquilados, (en tono festivo) sea dicho con perdón, don Pepe.

OTRO CABALLERO. ¡Cuidado, don Enrique! V. no va sobre seguro. Lo atrevido de su discurso me pone carne de gallina. Por lo visto, don Pepe no es hombre de aguantar mofas. Sería capaz de desafiar á todo un regimiento de cazadores, y aquí sólo somos una docena de pisaverdes.

EL POLLO. (Pensando que se hace referencia á él le interrumpe): Hable V. en singular, si gusta, caballero.

PEPE. (Enfadado). Caballeros, VV. dispensen. Yo estoy cansado de sus burlas y tonterías. Ahora no soy capaz de desafiar un regimiento de cazadores, pero un día que otro lo estaré bastante para batirme con todo el género humano; y entonces ¡cuidado!

UN CABALLERO. Blanco, á tu estirpe no le faltarán guerreros que defender su honor.

EL SR. B. ¡Á Dios no plazca que haya de qué! — Pero amigos míos, echemos la plática á otra parte, si os gusta. Temo que excitéis demasiado al chico. — ¿Qué hay de nuevo, don Rufino?

DON RUFINO. Nada que sepa. ¿V. sabe que hoy salió la lista grande?

EL SR. B. Sí; lo sé por mi criada que jugó medio duro; pero no le tocó nada, como sucede casi siempre. ¿No es de extrañar cuánta confianza tienen en la lotería aún personas inteligentes?

DON R. Sí. Todos, quién más, quién menos, confían en que la suerte cambie y esperan poder exclamar en presencia de la simpática lista: ¡Cielos! ¡por fin! Pero ya verá V. como les toca y no les toca á veces.—Por de pronto, hay que desconfiar de la lista que sale momentos después del sorteo.—Por ejemplo, aparece en ella preme-diado el número que V. posee. El júbilo se apodera de su corazón y abraza V. á mujer y niños, prometiéndoles un sinnúmero de pequeñeces y placeres. Amigos descarrila-dos vienen á pedirle prestado dinero, lo que no les rehusa, temeroso de ser considerado por un miserable rico; pero al fin y al cabo resulta que en la imprenta han puesto un 9 en vez de un 6 ó un 5 en vez de un cero.

EL SR. B. ¡Qué decepción!

DON R. Sí, decepción cuando está equivocada la lista; pero cuando no lo es, ¡qué regocijo!—Hace dos años, á mi mamá política, Matilde, la tocó el segundo premio y cobró unos seis mil duros; y era de ver como derrochó aquel dinero. Entre bailes y tertulias, y romerías y yo no sé qué, no le quedaba un maravedí dentro de menos de un año. Cuando yo me burlé de ella sobre su locura, se encogió de hombros y me dió por toda respuesta: “Pero, hombre, yo viví mientras duró.”

EL SR. B. ¡Lo española que debe de ser doña Matilde! Así vivimos los españoles de día en día, dejándolo todo á Dios quien es viejo santo. Viene la desgracia, la son-reímos, esperando que mañana será otro día;¹⁹ y así con-tinuaremos hasta el fin del tiempo.

DON R. ¿Y por qué no? Según mi humilde parecer, este mundo no es sino un juguete del Eterno — una especie de bola de billar que tiró en el principio y se divierte de vez en cuando golpeándola con el taco para darle nuevo ímpetu. Los hombres, unos microbios arrastrándose en la superficie, pensamos que el juego es serio. Pero el Todo-poderoso se ríe de nosotros en su capote, y tiene razón.—Visto lo cual ¿por qué no gozarnos, juvenes dum sumus, como cantábamos en nuestros convites de la Universidad? (Chupa en su pipa). ¡Diantre! Mi cachimba se ha apagado mientras yo peroraba.

EL SR. B. Tiene V., don Rufino, unas ideas estrambóticas sobre nuestras relaciones con esta bola en que habitamos. Cuando un español de su ilustración profiere tales opiniones, no hemos de halagarnos con respecto al porvenir de nuestro país.

DON R. Créame, amigo mío, no tiene porvenir. En los primeros meses de nuestra desgracia,* yo, como otros muchos, tuve momentos de expansión y esperanza y formé castillos en el aire. El gobierno prometió dedicar todos sus esfuerzos á la regeneración del país. Tuvimos confianza en las promesas. Se reunieron las cámaras de Comercio y de Productores para buscar solución á la situación que atravesábamos. En ellas se abominó á los oradores y políticos, y cada asambleísta que se levantó para hablar se convirtió en orador, filósofo, literato y parlanchín igual á los que trató de censurar.—No hay remedio humano —y parece que, á pesar de toda nuestra religión, Dios nos ha abandonado—no hay, repito, remedio humano de conseguir que los españoles hablemos menos y obremos más. Todos estamos educados en la misma escuela y no podemos prescindir de la oratoria. Conozco que el mal no tiene remedio, y por tanto no hago caso de tantos locos que ahora tratan de regenerarnos.—En cuanto á las promesas de los gobernantes, como la gaseosa de nuestro amiguito, Pepe, no son sino viento endulzado. Regalan un momento el paladar, eso sí, pero después de bebidas muchas, no contiene el estómago nada de sustancioso.—Se ha dicho más de una vez que no se puede gobernar sin partidos. Se puede; pero esto nos lo enseña la experiencia, á saber, que los partidos políticos no son sino grandes conspiraciones organizadas por los politicastros en pro de sí mismos y en contra de los demás de sus conciudadanos. Por eso, nuestras elecciones son meras farsas, porque no indican los verdaderos sentimientos de los electores sino el poder del dinero corruptor cuyo reino va extendiéndose en todas partes. Sí, señores, estamos en época en que el becerro de oro y la fuerza bruta están llegando á ser los casi exclusivos objetos de universal adoración. La honra y la virtud se compran y se venden como los valores en la bolsa, y aun la religión está de venta al mayor postor. Una Virgen que no se viste á la última moda ya está anticuada, y tanto más se venera un Cristo cuantos más quilates de oro macizo tenga su cruz y más diamantes su corona. — ¡Santo Dios! ¿Cuándo vendrá el reino de tu hijo? Y hasta que venga ¿qué hemos los desheredados de esperar? ¡Nada! ¡mil veces nada! Sólo que podemos consolarnos teniendo presente que la situación en otros países no se diferencia sino un tantito de la del nuestro, y podemos aplicarle el famoso dicho del satírico francés, de que en la desgracia de nuestros amigos hay algo que no nos desagrada. — (En tono festivo). En prueba de todo lo cual firmo la presente con mi puño y letra y la hago sellar con el gran sello del CÍRCULO COLÓN. (Se sienta. Palmadas entre los asistentes.)

DON ENRIQUE. ¡Caballeros! Propongo que brindemos á la salud de nuestro afamado orador. (Todos, Pepe incluso, se levantan y chocan y vacían, de un trago, sus copas. Mientras cae el telón, se oye la primera estancia de la canción estudiantina:)

Gaudeamus igitur,
Juvenes dum sumus.

BATALLA DE TETUÁN

A eso de las diez se saludaron al fin los dos ejércitos
 Una de las Lanchas Cañoneras que subían por el Martín,

* Tomar las [calzas] de Villadiego, "to put on Villadiego breeches," i.e. such breeches as were worn by the Jews of this village, which, by their form and color, showed that they were specially protected by the king's privilege (granted them by Ferdinand III. in 1223). Whenever any Jew did not have on his protective breeches and was threatened with persecution, he would rush off to get them. Hence the expression, in common parlance, came to mean: run away hastily. See Modern Language Notes, XV., 64.

protegiendo nuestro flanco izquierdo contra el daño que á mansalva hubiera podido hacérsenos desde el lado allá del río, avistó algunos moros que venían por aquel lado, y les hizo fuego. — Este primer cañonazo bastó para alejarlos; pero, como si aquélla hubiese sido una señal aguardada con impaciencia, á nuestro disparo respondieron inmediatamente los cañones de las trincheras moras, y dióse por principiada la batalla.

Los gruesos proyectiles que nos lanzaba el enemigo alcanzaban á nuestros batallones, si bien no les causaban gran daño. Los artilleros marroquíes tiraban por elevación, y las balas caían en los claros de nuestras filas. — Seguimos, pues, caminando, sin atender á aquel mal dirigido fuego ni contestarle por entonces.

Así llegamos á situarnos á unos mil setecientos metros de las baterías contrarias. — Su cañoneo era cada vez más vivo; la Torre de Jelelé había unido sus disparos á los de la llanura; los globos de plomo pasaban zumbando sobre nuestra frente, como aerolitos atraídos por la tierra; las columnas de aire que conmovían, azotaban á veces nuestro rostro, y el golpe brusco y ahogado que daban al sepultarse en el suelo se parecía al último resoplido del toro cuando fenece ó de la locomotora cuando se pára.

Los moros, entre tanto, viendo que nuestro movimiento era siempre de frente, y con dirección al extremo Sur de sus trincheras comprendieron en parte nuestro plan; y, dejando á sus cañones y á sus infantes el cuidado de defender los amenazados campamentos, avanzaron por nuestro flanco derecho en número de cuatro ó cinco mil jinetes, con el visible propósito de interponerse entre nosotros y el terreno que acabábamos de abandonar, y atacarnos por retaguardia cuando más empeñados estuviésemos por el frente.

Pero al General O'Donnell no le inquietó aquella maniobra. Lo admirable de su plan era haber adivinado y prevenido todo lo que los mahometanos habían de intentar hoy. El CUARTO CUERPO, que permanecía inmóvil y sobre las armas en el Reducto de la Estrella, tenía precisamente otro encargo que evitar: el que los moros nos envolviesen de la manera que ya procuraban hacerlo. Dejó, pues, el Conde de Lucena al General Ríos el cuidado de entenderse con la caballería marroquí, y continuó marchando hacia el campamento de Muley-el-Abbas.

Llegamos, en fin, á encontrarnos á un kilómetro de las baterías enemigas, y sólo entonces se mandó hacer alto á nuestras masas y avanzar á la Artillería de Reserva. — Diez y seis cañones ocuparon instantáneamente la vanguardia, y rompieron vivísimo fuego contra la posición enemiga. Densa cortina de humo nos robó un instante la vista del campamento moro; largo trueno ensordecio el espacio, y la salvaje soledad de los montes circunvecinos se estremeció hondamente con el fragor de la descomunal batalla.

¡ Magnífica, soberbia sinfonía; digno prólogo de la espantosa tragedia que se preparaba !

Ya en adelante, la ruidosa tempestad fué aumentando en rápido crescendo. Á la Artillería de Reserva, que empezó á ganar terreno, marchando por baterías, unió pronto sus bárbaros estampidos la Artillería Rayada de á cuatro, de la que un regimiento entero salió al galope por nuestra izquierda, principiando á batir el flanco derecho de los atrincheramientos marroquíes.

Aflojó, en su consecuencia, un poco el fuego de las piezas enemigas. El nuestro, en cambio, se duplicó en breves instantes. Dos nuevos regimientos de artillería entraron juntos en fuego, vomitando granadas encendidas, mientras que dos baterías más, del Segundo Regimiento Montado, cañoneaban el extremo Norte del campamento moro y rechazaban las fuerzas de infantería y caballería que bajaban á apoyar á los seis mil jinetes agrupados en torno de las posiciones del General Ríos.

Por lo que allí pudiera acontecer, mandó entonces el Conde de Lucena al Brigadier Villate que se corriese por aquel lado con sus escuadrones de lanceros, y obrase en combinación con el CUERPO DE RESERVA si los moros insistían en atacar nuestra retaguardia; dispuesto lo cual, nosotros continuamos marchando por nuestra parte en el seno de una verdadera tormenta.

Aun no se había disparado un tiro de fusil ó de espingarda. — Sólo el cañón tronaba reciamente en la llanura. — Así llegamos á unos seiscientos metros de las fortificaciones enemigas.

En este momento se presentaron por nuestra izquierda, siguiendo el curso del Guad-el-Jelú, algunos moros de á pie y de á caballo; pero el General Mackenna se adelantó á su encuentro con dos batallones, y el fuego de nuestras guerrillas bastó para rechazar á los agarenos hacia la Plaza. Sin embargo, el bravo General (ya protegido por la Brigada de Lanceros, que mandaba en persona el General Galiano) permaneció hasta el fin del combate en aquella comprometida posición, interpuesto entre la ciudad y el campo de batalla.

En el interín, el TERCER CUERPO se adelantaba al SEGUNDO, que había vuelto á hacer alto; seguía un recodo del Martín; rebasaba denodadamente el ángulo de la trinchera enemiga; hacía un cambio de frente sobre la derecha, y amenazaba el flanco izquierdo de los moros, á cuatrocientos metros de distancia de sus cañones.

Á igual altura se puso por el frente el SEGUNDO CUERPO.

— Es decir, que el campamento de Muley-Ahmed estaba medio envuelto. ¡Acercábase por tanto el momento de la suprema embestida! . . . Nuestras columnas se pararon por tercera vez.

Tratábase de apagar los fuegos de la artillería enemiga antes de emprender la lucha de unos infantes contra otros. Pero las trincheras de los musulmanes, construídas con tierra y arregladas á los adelantos del arte, no permitían á nuestras piezas desmontar las suyas. Causaban, sí, grandes destrozos en las fortificaciones; introducían la muerte y el espanto en los que las custodiaban; hacían callar á veces á todas sus bocas de fuego . . . mas al poco rato volvían éstas á bramar sedientas de matanza, mientras que desde la Torre de Jelelé, desde la Alcazaba de Tetuán, y desde las artilladas puertas de la misma Plaza nos enviaban una incesante lluvia de sólidos proyectiles.

Nuestros bizarros artilleros no desisten, sin embargo, de su propósito; y, adelantados á todo el ejército, á pecho descubierto (y no detrás de espesas murallas, como los marroquíes), colocan en batería cuarenta piezas, y rompen un cañoneo horroroso, cerrado, incesante, contra los fuertes enemigos. — ¡Nunca faltan del aire diez ó doce granadas! — ¡Nunca se interrumpe el prolongado trueno de los bronces!

En esto principian á alzarse nubes de polvo-reveltas con el humo de las baterías contrarias. . . . ¡Es la trinchera que se derrumba! — Además, muchas granadas entran en el campo contrario y revientan á nuestra vista, incendiando las tiendas y destrozando á los hombres, cuyos cuerpos vemos volar en pedazos. . . . ¡Todo inútil, sin embargo! ¡Nada quebranta hoy el desesperado valor de los agarenos!

De pronto, élévase una anchísima, densa y aplomada columna de humo, que arrancando de entre las tiendas islamitas, sube á nublar el infinito cielo; y un estruendo nunca oído superior al estampido de mil truenos, resuena al mismo tiempo en aquel lugar, haciendo estremecerse hasta el húmedo suelo que pisamos.— ¡Oh ventura! Es que una granada nuestra ha caído en un repuesto de pólvora y lo ha volado! — ¡Que regocijo en nuestras filas! ¡Cómo se adivinan los estragos que habrá producido esta catástrofe en el ejército enemigo!

Y nuestra artillería avanza siempre, corriendo y disparando, estrechando cada vez más en un círculo de bronce el codiciado campamento. . . . — Las Baterías de á caballo se batén en guerrilla. . . . Hay una, la del capitán Alcalá, que gallardea vistosamente delante de los cañones marroquíes. . . . En pos de ellas avanzan las restantes con pasmosa serenidad. Y por los claros de las piezas adelántanse también los batallones, paso á paso, porque así lo mandan los jefes; pero agitados, impacientes, fogosos, enardecidos hasta el frenesí por el olor de la pólvora, por el estallido de los cañones, por la proximidad de la presa.

— ¡Cuándo? ! ¡Cuándo? ! — parece que dicen nuestros soldados, nuestros bizarrísimos infantes, requiriendo sus bayonetas. . . .

— ¡Cuándo? ! ¡Cuándo? ! — parece que preguntan Ros de Elano y Prim, refrenando sus impacientes bridones, á la cabeza de las ordenadas tropas.

¡Cuándo? ! ¡Cuándo? ! exclama todo el mundo, viendo caer deshechos á algunos de nuestros soldados bajo las ponderosas balas de los cañones enemigos.

— ¡Ahora! ! — ¡Ya! ! — ¡Viva la Reina! ! ¡Á la bayoneta! ! ¡Á ellos! ! — grita de pronto el General O'Donnell, cuando calcula que nuestra infantería puede llegar de un solo aliento, de una sola carrera, á las trincheras moras, y saltarlas, y penetrar en los campamentos.

— ¡Á la bayoneta! ¡Á ellos! contestan veinte mil voces.

Y todas las músicas, todas las cornetas, todos los tambores repiten la señal de ataque; y los treinta y dos batallones, y la caballería, y el Cuartel General, y la artillería, y los ingenieros, ¡todos en fin! acometen furiosamente á las posiciones enemigas, como impulsados por un solo y mágico resorte, como un pantano que rompe su dique, como la mar, cuando la vuelca sobre la playa un terremoto.

¡Oh momento! ¡Yo no sé describirlo! Su ríero recuerdo inflama mis sentidos y agolpa á mis ojos lágrimas de entusiasmo. . . . — ¡Qué embriaguez! ¡qué vértigo! ¡qué locura aquélla! — ¡La alegría, el furor, la soberbia española, el miedo de que los moros tuvieran tiempo de rehacerse y nuestros soldados para cansarse; la súbita aparición de la Patria, regocijada por tan hermoso triunfo; la admiración y la gratitud que los unos sentíamos hacia los otros; la curiosidad de conocer el campamento árabe: todo nos enardecía, todo nos arrebataba á tal punto, que jóvenes y viejos, próceres y reclutas, nos saludábamos y hablábamos sin conocernos, como para transmitirnos tanta felicidad!

¡Y, sin embargo, aquel momento era horrible, mortal, desastroso! Corriendo, como ibamos, entre músicas y aclamaciones, entre vivas y jubilosa fiesta, mil y mil tiros nos recibían á boca de jarro. — ¡Treinta mil enemigos guarneían las dilatadas trincheras! ¡treinta mil espingardas nos apuntaban al corazón!

Y ¡cómo caían nuestros jefes, nuestros oficiales, nuestros soldados! ¡Cuántos, cuántos, Dios mío! — Fueron treinta minutos de lucha; treinta minutos solamente . . . ¡y más de mil españoles se bañaban ya en su sangre generosa!

Pero ¿qué importaba? — ¿Ni quién reparó en ello? — ¿Qué importaba, si nuestras tropas habían acometido de frente y de flanco, escalado el muro de tierra con manos y pies, derribado á las numerosas huestes que lo guardaban, tomado los cañones á la bayoneta (después de recibir sus últimos y mortíferos disparos á quemarropa), invadido el campamento como una inundación, luchado cuerpo á cuerpo fuera y dentro de las tiendas, sembrado de muertos su triunfal camino, y puesto en vergonzosa fuga á todo el ejército mahometano?

¡Y he de decir quién mereció más, quién penetró el primero, quién derramó más sangre enemiga? — ¡Todos fueron iguales! ¡Todos eran uno solo! ¡Todos acometieron con igual brío! ¡Nadie pensó en sí propio, sino en el resto del ejército! ¡Nadie deseó triunfar por sí mismo, sino que triunfase España! ¡Nadie trató de llegar al término de aquella carrera, sino de que llegase el Estandarte Nacional!

* * * * *

Y, con todo, ¿cómo pasar en silencio los más culminantes episodios de la jornada? ¿Cómo callar los hechos inmortales que he tenido la felicidad de ver?

Diré, pues, en primer lugar, el arrojo y bravura del General en Jefe, de D. Leopoldo O'Donnell, del héroe de la batalla. . . . — Desde el día de los Castillejos, nadie le había vuelto á ver convertido de ordenador de la lid en instrumento de ella, de jefe supremo en batallador, de caudillo en soldado. . . . — ¡Hoy, sí! ¡Hoy volvió el entusiasmo á su alma, el fuego bélico á sus venas, la ardiente poesía del combate á su corazón. — ¡Hoy, como nunca, inflamado, vehemente, impetuoso, dominaba con su talla marcial y arrogante las masas de infantería y caballería; hoy, como en sus heroicos tiempos de coronel, de brigadier y de mariscal de campo, lanzábase á las balas con el acero desnudo, buscando al enemigo, arengando á las tropas, lleno de actividad y fuerza, resplandeciente el rostro de júbilo y ternura, con el llanto del amor patrio en los ojos!

— ¡En avant! ! ¡En avant! ! (¡adelante! ¡adelante!) ; Viva la Reina! — gritaba, saltando la trinchera, metiendo su caballo en lo más recio de la lid, y penetrando de los primeros en el campamento enemigo.

— ¡Soldados! ! ¡Viva España! ! — exclamaba otras veces, dirigiéndose á los que luchaban y á los que morían.

— ¡Viva la Infantería española! ! — añadía por último, volviéndose hacia el Cuartel General, también entusiasmado al ver la violencia irresistible de nuestros batallones.

Y la voz, el gesto, la actitud del noble capitán nos arrebataban á todos; nos subyugaban materialmente; nos hubieran hecho despreciar mil vidas que tuviéramos.

— ¡Viva O'Donnell! ! — gritaban Generales y soldados.

— ¡Viva la Reina! ! — gritaba el General en Jefe.

— ¡VIVA EL DUQUE DE TETUÁN! ! — se oyó por primera vez en las filas de no sé qué regimiento.

— ¡VIVA EL DUQUE DE TETUÁN! ! — repitieron mil y mil voces, saludando espontánea y cariñosamente al antiguo vencedor de Lucena, al actual vencedor del moro.

Y los acordes de la Marcha Real, confundidos con el toque de ataque que resonaba en una extensión de legua y media, solemnizaban aquella augusta aclamación; la más verdadera, la más legítima y soberana de cuantas he presenciado en toda mi vida.

PARTE DEL COMBATE DE SANTIAGO DE CUBA

EL ALMIRANTE (CERVERA) AL GENERAL EN JEFE (BLANCO)

Excmo. é Iltmo. Sr.: En cumplimiento de las órdenes de V. E. I., con la evidencia de lo que había de suceder y tantas veces había anunciado, salí de Santiago de Cuba con toda la Escuadra que fué de mi mando, en la mañana del 3 del corriente Julio.

Las instrucciones dadas para la salida eran las siguientes: El Infanta María Teresa, buque de mi insignia, había de salir el primero, siguiéndole sucesivamente el Vizcaya, Colón, Oquendo y destructores. Todos los barcos tenían todas sus calderas encendidas y con presión. Al salir el Teresa empeñaría el combate con el enemigo que estuviera más aproposito, y los que le seguían procurarían dirigirse al Oeste á toda fuerza de máquina, tomando la cabeza el Vizcaya. Los cazatorpederos habían de mantenerse, si podían, fuera del fuego, expiar un momento oportuno para obrar, si se presentaba, y tratar de escapar con su mayor andar, si el combate nos era desfavorable. — Los buques salieron del puerto con una precisión tan grande, que sorprendió á nuestros enemigos, quienes nos han hecho muchos y muy entusiastas cumplimientos sobre el particular. Tan pronto como salió el Teresa rompió el fuego á las 9^h 35^m sobre un acorazado que estaba próximo, pero dirigiéndose á toda fuerza de máquina sobre el Brooklyn, que se encontraba al SO. y que nos interesaba tratar de poner en condiciones de que no pudiera utilizar su superior andar. Los demás buques empeñaron el combate con los otros enemigos que acudían de los diversos puntos donde estaban apostados. La Escuadra enemiga constaba aquel día de los siguientes buques frente á Santiago de Cuba: New-York, insignia del Contraalmirante Sampson, Brooklyn insignia del Comodoro Schley, Iowa, Oregon, Indiana, Texas y varios buques menores, ó mejor dicho, trasatlánticos y yates armados. — Realizada la salida se tomó el rumbo mandado, y el combate se generalizó con la desventaja, no sólo del número, sino del estado de nuestra artillería y municiones de 14 centímetros que conoce V. E. por el telegrama que le puse al quedar á sus órdenes. Para mí no era dudoso el éxito, por más que alguna vez creí que no sería tan rápida nuestra destrucción.

Al Infanta María Teresa, un proyectil de los primeros le rompió un tubo de vapor auxiliar, por el que se escapaba mucho, que nos hizo perder la velocidad con que se contaba; al mismo tiempo otro rompía un tubo de la red de contra incendios. El buque se defendía valientemente del nutrido y certero fuego del enemigo, y no tardó mucho en caer entre los heridos su valiente Comandante Capitán de Navío D. Víctor M. Concás, que tuvo que retirarse, y como las circunstancias no permitían perder un segundo, tomé por mí mismo el mando directo del buque, esperando ocasión de que pudiera llamarse al segundo Comandante, pero ésta no llegó, porque el combate arreciaba, los muertos y heridos caían sin cesar, y no había que pensar en otra cosa que en hacer fuego en tanto que se pudiera.

En tal situación, teníamos fuego en mi cámara, donde debieron hacer explosión algunos de los proyectiles que allí había para los cañones de 57 mm.; vinieron á participarme haberse prendido fuego al cangrejo de popa y caseta del puente de popa, al mismo tiempo que el incendio iniciado en mi cámara se corría al centro del buque con gran rapidez, y como no contábamos con agua, fué tomando cada vez más incremento, siendo impotentes nosotros para atajarlo.

Comprendí que el buque estaba perdido y pensé desde luego en dónde lo vararía para perder menos vidas, pero continuando el combate en tanto que fuera posible.

Desgraciadamente, el fuego ganaba terreno con mucha rapidez y voracidad, por lo que envié uno de mis Ayudantes con la orden de que se inundasen los pañoles de popa, encontrándose éste ser imposible penetrar en los callejones de las cámaras á causa del mucho humo y del vapor que salía por la escotilla de la máquina donde también le fué absolutamente imposible penetrar, á causa de no permitir la respiración aquella abrasadora atmósfera; por tanto fué necesario dirigirnos á una playita al O. de Punta Cabrera, donde embarrancamos con la salida, al mismo tiempo que se nos paraba la máquina; era imposible subir municiones ni nada que exigiera ir bajo la cubierta acorazada, sobre todo á popa de las calderas, y en tal situación no había que pensar más que en salvar la parte que se pudiera de la tripulación, de cuya opinión fueron el segundo y tercer Comandantes y los Oficiales que se pudieron reunir, á los que consulté si creían que podía continuar el combate, contestando que no.

En tan penosa situación, habiendo empezado las explosiones parciales de los depósitos de las baterías, dí orden de arriar la bandera e inundar todos los pañoles; la primera no pudo ejecutarse á causa del terrible incendio que había en la toldilla, habiéndose quemado al poco rato. — Ya era tiempo: el fuego ganaba con mucha rapidez y apenas hubo el suficiente para abandonar el buque, cuando ya el fuego llegaba al puente de proa, y eso ayudados por dos botes americanos que llegaron como tres cuartos de hora después de la embarrancada.

Entre los heridos están el Teniente de Navío D. Antonio López Cerón y Alférez de Navío D. Angel Carrasco y faltan el Capitán de Infantería de Marina D. Higinio Rodríguez, al que creo mató un proyectil, el Alférez de Navío D. Francisco Linares, el segundo Médico D. Julio Díaz del Río, el Maquinista Mayor de primera clase D. Juan Montero y el de segunda D. José Melgares, cuyo cadáver salió á la playa.—El salvotaje se hizo tirándose al agua los que sabían nadar, intentando tres veces llevar una guía á tierra, lo que sólo se consiguió á última hora y ayudados por los dos botes americanos de que llevo hecho mención. Nosotros arriamos un bote que parecía bueno é inmediatamente se fué á pique, y se echó al agua un bote de vapor, que sólo pudo hacer un viaje, porque también se fué á pique por efecto de las averías que tenía, al intentar volver á bordo segunda vez, quedando agarrados á él los tres ó cuatro hombres que lo llevaban y que se salvaron unos á nado y otros los recogió un bote americano.

El Comandante, ayudado por buenos nadadores, había ido á tierra; el segundo y tercero dirigían á bordo el embarco, y necesitándose dirección en tierra, cuando ya venían los botes americanos, yo me fuí á nado, ayudado por dos cabos de mar llamados Juan Llorca y Andrés Sequeiro y mi hijo y Ayudante, Teniente de Navío D. Ángel Cervera.

Concluido el desembarco de la gente, fuí invitado por el Oficial americano que mandaba los botes de seguirle á su buque, que era el yate armado Gloucester, á donde fuí acompañado de mi Capitán de bandera, herido, de mi hijo ayudante y del segundo del buque, que fué el último que lo abandonó.

Durante este período, el aspecto del buque era imponente, porque se sucedían las explosiones y estaba para aterrizar á las almas mejor templadas.—Nada absolutamente creo que pueda salvarse del buque, y nosotros lo hemos perdido todo, llegando la inmensa mayoría absolutamente desnudos á la playa.— Pocos minutos después que el Teresa, embarrancaba el Oquendo en una playa como á media legua al Oeste de él, con un incendio parecido al suyo, y se perdieron de vista por el Oeste el Vizcaya y el Colón, perseguidos por la Escuadra enemiga.— Según me ha manifestado el Contador del Oquendo, único Oficial que está en el mismo buque que yo, la historia de este desgraciado buque y su heroica tripulación es la siguiente, que tal vez se rectifique algo, pero sólo en detalles, no en el fondo de los hechos.

El desigual y mortífero combate sostenido por este buque, se hizo más desigual aún porque al poco tiempo de comenzado, un proyectil enemigo entró en la torre de proa matando á todo el personal de ella, menos un artillero que quedó muy mal herido.— Á la batería de 14 cm., barrida por el fuego enemigo desde el principio, sólo le quedaron dos cañones útiles con los que continuó defendiéndose con una energía incomparable.— También la torre de popa quedó sin su Oficial-Comandante, muerto por un proyectil del enemigo que entró al abrir la puerta para poder respirar, porque se asfixiaban dentro.— No conoce el Contador la historia de la batería de tiro rápido, y sólo sabe que disparaba, seguramente, lo mismo que toda esta valiente tripulación.— Hubo dos incendios : el primero, que se dominó, ocurrió en el sollado de proa, y el segundo, que se inició á popa, no se pudo dominar, porque ya no daban agua las bombas, quizá por las mismas causas que en el Teresa.

Los ascensores de municiones de 14 cm., faltaron desde el principio, pero no faltaron municiones en la batería, mientras que pudo batirse, por los repuestos, que á preventión, se habían puesto en todos los buques.— Cuando el valiente Comandante del Oquendo vió que no podía dominar el incendio y no tenía ningún cañón en estado de servicio, fué cuando se decidió á embarrancar, mandando previamente disparar todos los torpedos, menos los dos de popa, por si se acercaba algún buque enemigo, hasta que llegado el último extremo, mandó arriar la bandera, minutos después que el Teresa y previa la consulta á aquellos Oficiales que estaban presentes. Los Comandantes segundo y tercero y tres Tenientes de Navío habían ya muerto. El salvamento de los supervivientes fué organizado por su Comandante, que ha perdido la vida por salvar la de sus subordinados. Hicieron una balsa, arriaron dos lanchitas, únicas embarcaciones que les quedaban útiles, y últimamente fueron auxiliados por embarcaciones americanas, y según me dijo un insurrecto con quien hablé en la playa, también les auxilió un bote que éstos tenían.— Sublime era el espectáculo que presentaban estos dos buques; las continuas explosiones que se sucedían sin cesar, no acobardaban á estos valientes, que han defendido sus buques hasta el punto de no haber podido ser hollados por la planta de ningún enemigo.— Cuando fuí invitado por el Oficial americano á seguirlo, según digo á V. E. I. anteriormente, dí instrucciones para el reembarco al tercer Comandante D. Juan Aznar, á quien no he vuelto á ver desde entonces.— Al llegar al buque americano, que era el yate armado Gloucester, encontré allí una veintena de heridos, pertenecientes en su mayor parte á los cazatorpederos, los Comandantes de éstos, tres Oficiales del Teresa, el Contador del Oquendo y nos reunimos entre todos hasta 93 personas, pertenecientes á las dotaciones de la Escuadra.— El Comandante y Oficiales del yate nos recibieron con las mayores atenciones, esforzándose por atender á nuestras necesidades, que eran de todo género, porque llegábamos absolutamente desnudos y hambrientos; me manifestó el Comandante, que como su buque era tan pequeño, no podía recibir aquella masa de gente, é iba á buscar un buque mayor que los embarcara. — Los insurrectos, con quienes yo había hablado, me habían dicho que con ellos tenían unos 200 hombres, entre los que había cinco ó seis heridos, y me añadieron de parte de su Jefe que si queríamos irnos con ellos, les siguiéramos y nos auxiliarían con lo que ellos tenían, á lo que les contesté que dieran las gracias á su Jefe y le dijeran que nosotros nos habíamos rendido á los americanos; pero que si tenían Médico, les agradecería que curara á una porción de heridos que teníamos en la playa, algunos de ellos muy graves.

Al Comandante del yate le comuniqué esta conversación con los insurrectos y le supliqué reclamara nuestra gente, lo que me prometió, enviando al efecto un destacamento con bandera. También envió algunos víveres de que tan necesitados estaban en la playa.

Seguimos después hacia el O. hasta encontrar el grueso de la Escuadra, de la que se destacó el crucero auxiliar París, y nuestro yate siguió hasta frente á Cuba, donde recibió órdenes, con arreglo á las que, unos fuimos trasbordados al Iowa y otros lo fueron á otros barcos, de ellos, los heridos al buque hospital.

Durante mi permanencia en el yate, pedí á los Comandantes de los cazatorpederos noticia de la suerte que les había cabido, teniendo el sentimiento de saber su triste fin.

De lo ocurrido al Furor, puede V. E. I. enterarse detalladamente por la adjunta copia del parte de su Comandante; en él encontró una muerte gloriosa el Capitán de Navío D. Fernando Villaamil, y el número de bajas acredita cómo se ha conducido este pequeño buque, cuyo Comandante también fué herido levemente.

También acompañó á V. E. I. copia del parte que me ha producido el Comandante del Plutón, quien también está herido en un pie y cuyo buque tiene en este día una historia tan gloriosa como su compañero, y ambos como no puede pedir más ni el más exigente.

* * * * *

Réstame decir á V. E. I., para completar los rasgos característicos de esta lúgubre jornada, que nuestros enemigos se han conducido y se conducen actualmente con nosotros, con una hidalgua y delicadeza que no cabe más; no sólo nos han vestido como han podido, desprendiéndose de efectos no sólo del Estado, sino de propiedad particular, sino que han suprimido la mayor parte de los "hurras" por respeto á nuestra amargura; hemos sido y somos objeto de entusiastas felicitaciones por nuestra acción, y todos, á porfía, se han esmerado en hacernos nuestro cautiverio lo más llevadero posible.

Ignoro aún las pérdidas de gente, por estar repartidos en diversos buques, pero estarán en las ideas que hace concebir el telegrama antes inserto.

En resumen: la jornada del 3 ha sido un desastre horroroso, como yo había previsto; el número de muertos es, sin embargo, menor del que yo temía; la Patria ha sido defendida con honor y la satisfacción del deber cumplido deja nuestras conciencias tranquilas, con sólo la amargura de lamentar la pérdida de nuestros queridos compañeros y las desdichas de la Patria.

Dios guarde á V. E. I. muchos años.—En la mar, á bordo del San Luis, 9 de Julio de 1898.

— PASCUAL CERVERA.

395. UN MONSTRUO DEL MAR

En Chatham (Inglaterra) fué lanzado al agua ayer tarde un enorme acorazado de primera clase, el mayor de la flota inglesa. Bautizóle con el nombre de Magnificent la condesa Spencer, esposa del jefe del Almirantazgo.

Esta asombrosa máquina de guerra, cuyas condiciones justifican su nombre, mide 370 pies de eslora, 75 de manga y $27\frac{1}{2}$ de puntal, desplazando 14,900 toneladas.

Su andar ordinario es de $16\frac{1}{2}$ nudos por hora, pero con tiro forzado puede alcanzar una velocidad de $17\frac{1}{2}$.

En la batería principal se colocarán cuatro cañones de á 12 pulgadas, recubiertos de alambre, y colocados, dos en barbeta en la parte anterior y dos á popa. La batería auxiliar se compondrá de seis cañones de á 6 pulgadas de tiro rápido y la batería secundaria de 16 de á 12 libras y doce de á tres, también de tiro rápido. Llevará cinco tubos lanza-torpedos, cuatro de los cuales podrán descargarse debajo del agua. Los cañones de á 12 pulgadas se colocarán de modo que sea fácil cargarlos en todas posiciones, á mano ó por maquinaria, y protegidos por planchas de tres pulgadas de diámetro colocadas de modo que giren con el cañón. La construcción de este buque empezó hace sólo un año y los trabajos se han llevado á cabo con rapidez notable.

396.

LA PÓLVORA INGLESA

La pólvora infume que usan los ingleses es la llamada "cordita," mezcla íntima de 58 partes de nitro-glicerina, 37 de algodón-pólvora y 5 de vaselina, y se llama cordita porque para comprimirla y secarla se presenta en masas gelatinosas en forma de cuerdas. Se inflama en un mínimo de 180 grados cuando está en grano, y en temperaturas más elevadas cuando en forma de cuerdas de 50 centímetros de largo y centímetro y medio de grueso. La fábrica de Waltham Abbey manufactura unas mil toneladas al año. Al decir de un colega francés, la cordita se ase-meja á la pólvora francesa conocida bajo la denominación "B," aunque la inglesa tiene menos potencia explosiva y desarrolla más calor, lo que ofrece el inconveniente de deteriorar rápidamente las piezas. La lyddita, que según el mismo colega, no es otra cosa que la melinita, cuyo secreto robaron los ingleses á Francia, sólo se emplea en la carga de bombas y granadas.

EL COMERCIO ESPAÑOL EN AMÉRICA

La Cámara de Comercio española de Buenos Aires continúa en su meritoria labor de abrir nuevos mercados en América á los productos españoles.

Al efecto ha dirigido cartas á las Cámaras de Comercio españolas y á los centros de producción, manifestándoles que el Consejo directivo de dicha Cámara insiste en su laudable propósito de celebrar en aquella república una exposición de productos españoles y argentinos. En dichas cartas se hace constar que los argentinos y los españoles allí residentes, en vista de las desgracias que pesan sobre España con la pérdida de las colonias, quieren poner todo su empeño en protegerla y dan cabida en sus regiones á los productos de nuestra patria.

No solamente en la Argentina, sino en otras repúblicas sud-americanas hay también el propósito de estrechar los lazos comerciales con España, fomentando allí la venta de los artículos españoles.

Importantes casas de Valparaíso están decididas á pagar, para reembolsarse después de la venta, los derechos de aduanas y otros gastos que originen las remesas de mercaderías, debiendo ser enviadas libres hasta el puerto.

Crean los conocedores de aquellos mercados que lo más rápido y seguro para abrirlos á la exportación española sería el envío de medianas remesas en consignación, forma que daría lugar á que sin pérdida de tiempo y en terreno práctico se pudieran hacer algunas operaciones.

Los artículos de más fácil y segura venta, según la nota enviada, son :—

Aceite de oliva, aguardiente embotellado, alambre, alambrados, almendras, alfombras, arroz, azúcar refinado, barajas, calzado para niños, camisas, cepillos, chocolate, clavos de todas clases, colchas, cominos, conservas, corbatas, tapones, cortinas y transparentes, cristalería surtida, cueros bayos, charoles, drogas, efectos para el culto divino, encordaduras, escopetas, cobertores, géneros de punto en general, guitarras, jabón común y perfumado, ladrillos y azulejos, loza y porcelana, mantas, mantones, chales y pañuelos, paños y cachemires, papelería en general, paraguas, perfumería, pimienta, pistolas y revólvers, rifles y carabinas, sardinas, sillas de madera curvada, sombreros de lana y fieltro, toallas, velas de esperma y composición, artículos para cazar.

BOLSA DE MADRID

Empezó la contratación de la semana con alguna paralización y pesadez en las operaciones; pero luego mejoró algún tanto el aspecto del mercado, debido á la mejor fisonomía que ofrecían los del extranjero.

Resultado de esta mejor disposición de los hombres de negocios es el alza que ofrece el cuadro comparativo, observándose que se han repuesto los valores, siendo los más favorecidos los de Aduanas, y los que no han tenido alteración, los de Filipinas.

La situación de la plaza no se ha modificado en lo esencial; sigue abundando el dinero para colocaciones lucrativas, y no aspiran más los capitalistas que á un interés que se aproxime al 5 por 100, admitiendo hasta el $4\frac{1}{2}$ siempre que se cuente con firmeza y alguna esperanza de alza que aumente el capital.

En la semana han circulado rumores que pudieron alarmar á los tenedores de valores, como el de que se iban á rebajar los intereses de las obligaciones del Tesoro y de las demás operaciones del mismo; pero este rumor ha sido rectificado de un modo terminante por el ministro de Hacienda, manifestando que no tiene semejante propósito, entre otras razones, porque no podría imponerse por una ley la rebaja, puesto que dependerá de que los acreedores la admitiesen ó que el Tesoro tuviera fondos para reembolsarles sus créditos, y no ocurre lo uno ni lo otro.

En cambio, las noticias que circulan sobre las economías efectivas que se introducen y de la combinación financiera que se prepara, para encomendar á una Sociedad el pago de los haberes de las clases pasivas mediante un canon fijo, permiten esperar que los gastos del presupuesto se rebajarán en unos sesenta millones, y esto asegura la nivelación y aún la posibilidad de suavizar los impuestos que puedan ser más gravosos, con lo cual podría restablecerse la normalidad financiera y darse alguna satisfacción á los que piden alivio en los tributos.

Sin embargo, esta perspectiva halagüeña viene á turbarla la actitud de resistencia que mantienen los industriales de Barcelona, y que en otras poblaciones quieren imitar, porque hasta que no termine ese conflicto, que puede hacer necesario el empleo de la fuerza, si no hay medio de resolverlo en forma conciliadora, no sólo no habrá tranquilidad completa en el mercado bursátil, sino que pueden surgir alteraciones violentas, si ocurre algún suceso desgradable.

Por eso la contratación de valores se halla, al presente, en circunstancias especiales, que exigen prudencia y no dejarse impresionar sin motivo justificado, teniendo la seguridad de que en definitiva el afianzamiento y la mejora del crédito es un hecho que se impone por el conocimiento que se va teniendo de las fuerzas del país y por la tendencia que existe de acometer empresas que desarrollen la riqueza y engendren el movimiento industrial.

Los valores mercantiles siguen siendo predilectos, porque se capitalizan al 5 por 100 y se tiene la seguridad de que reditúan más con los dividendos que se vislumbran.

El cambio internacional ha descendido porque ha cesado el acaparamiento de oro para la guerra del Transvaal, y hay más papel de que disponer sobre las plazas extranjeras. No sabemos si en esto habrá influido también algún cambio en el comercio exterior, y habrá que esperar á la publicación de la estadística para conocer ese dato.

QUIEBRA INDUSTRIAL

La firma de A. D. & Son de Nueva York se ha declarado en quiebra con un pasivo que se hace subir á $500,000.

Dedicábase la sociedad á diversos negocios, pero con especialidad á la fabricación de fieltros para pianos y cajas para los mismos.

En sus talleres trabajaban unos mil obreros, y setenta empleados en sus almacenes y escritorios.

Atribúyese la quiebra á la imposibilidad en que se encontró la firma de levantar fondos con su papel, pues aunque gozaba de buen crédito, los rumores de guerra que han causado tanta perturbación en los negocios, le imposibilitaron hacerse con el numerario indispensable.

Dícese que la firma espera poder continuar más tarde sus operaciones.

SPANISH VOCABULARY

Ch, ll, and ñ, being separate letters, stand after c, l, and n.

Verbs should be looked for under their infinitives, which, when irregular, are referred to the sections where their model verbs are conjugated. All forms so irregular as not to be easily traceable to their infinitives are given. In looking for the infinitives of irregular forms observe that—

1. Forms in ue and u are to be sought for under o: puedo, pude, from poder.

2. Those in ie and i under e: siento, sintió from sentir.

The gender of nouns is indicated by the letters m and f.

All references are to sections.
